

The marriage of Miss Edith Johnston, daughter of Mr John Johnston, Paradise Row, to Mr Thomas Wran, of Campbellton, formerly of this city, in St Stephen's Presbyterian church, Wednesday, was a pretty function. The sacred edifice was beautifully adorned with flowers. A large number of both Miss Johnston's and Mr Wran's friends were present to witness the ceremony. The guests were few, relatives and immediate acquaintances being the only invited.

The bride approached the front of the church on her father's arm and attended by her sister, Miss Bessie Johnston. She wore an exceedingly becoming travelling suit of copper-color camel's-hair cloth with velvet trimmings, and dainty headwear of shades to correspond. Her bouquet was of roses and lily-of-the-valley. Miss Bessie Johnston's suit was of chestnut brown camel's-hair cloth, satin trimmings, and pretty hat. She carried rose colored carnations. Mr Harry Wilson, of Campbellton, was best man. Rev D J Fraser officiated and as the newly-married couple left the church the usual tokens of good wishes were showered upon them.

Misses Mame and Minnie Snook entertained a few tables of what was noted for their gallantry than for their wit, and an example of this virtue is found in the case of an Irish judge who presided at a trial in which the plaintiffs were a lady and her daughter. In summing up the case, the judge thus gallantly began: 'Gentlemen of the jury: Everything in this case seems plain—except Mrs. O' Toole and her charming daughter.'

Two Notable Exceptions: Briggs—There's no use talking—a man can't drink and play golf at the same time. Griggs—So you've sworn off golf, have you? His First Business Venture. An American capitalist, who has made a fortune running far into the millions, likes to tell a story of his first business venture, and how he saddened the local grocer. At this time he was fond of frequenting a public salesroom near his home, where all sorts of bargains were offered. One day I noticed several boxes of soap of a certain brand which I had often been sent to buy at the corner grocery, I thought to myself, 'That will go cheap,' so I ran to the grocery and received a promise from the man in charge to buy as much of the soap at a certain figure as I could furnish. Of course he never suspected that I could furnish any of it I returned to the salesroom, and when the soap was put up I bid it in, and it was knocked down to me. My name was demanded, and when I gave it, in a shrill voice, everybody laughed for I was then only eleven years of age. Amused as they were at the sale, the bystanders were amazed when I bid in the whole lot of twenty-two boxes, I had them carried over to the grocery, and received the price agreed upon. The grocer wore a weary look when he heard how I had obtained the soap. He said: 'Well I guess I could have done that myself.' I replied that I guessed he could, too, but he hadn't. a Pretty story. I don't know how anybody knows, only a pretty story comes from Canadian sources that during the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall's long trip each box of dispatches sent to them from home has contained snap shots of their children, taken by their grandmothers and forded means of showing the absent parents precisely how their little ones looked and had gained in size, and also what they were doing at the time. If the Duchess is like other mothers, these prints were better than any letters that accompanied them. Chairs Re-seated Cane, Splint, Perforated, Dual, 17 Waterloo.
