MAY 15.—Mrs J W Ritcher and two children are spending several weeks with friends in different parts of Ontario.

The residence on Franklyn street of Rev. John Currie, D.D Professor at Pine Hill college, was the scene of one of the prettiest of home weddings on Wednesday last, when his daughter Miss Edith Gertrude Currie was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr Charles J Burchell, barrister of Sydney, C B.

The house was beautifully and artistically adorned with palms and other plants. A number of guests were present and witnessed the interesting ceremony which was performed by the bride's father, assisted by Rev Dr. Falconer and Rev Dr Gordon.

The bride was accompanied by her sister, Miss Anna Currie and Mr Harry Jost of Sydney acted in the capacity of groomsmen.

The bride was attired in a becoming creation of white satin with lawn and pearl trimmings. She wore a veil and real orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of white roses and maiden hair fern.

The bridesmaid also looked pretty in a pale pink silk costume with chiffon trimmings. Her bouquet was composed of pink roses.

At the conclusion of the ceremony the happy couple with their guests sat down to a sumptuous wedding repast, after which they left on their honeymoon, amid showers of congratulations. Mr and Mrs Burchell will visit all the principal Canadian and American cities before going to Sydney where they will reside.

Mrs Wm Taylor and her daughter Miss Berta, who have been spending the winter in the Southern States are now in Atlanta, Ga, and will leave for Halifax on 25th of May.

Mrs B Davis is in Boston undergoing medical treatment.

The entertainment in Holy Trinity Sunday school house on Tuesday evening was largely attended. The marches, songs, and recitations by the little one solicited generous applause. The 'dwarfs' especially imported for the occasion were novel and amusing. The farce 'Who's who' by the Dramatic Club captivated the audience. 'A Matrimonial Advertisement,' by three young ladies and two boys, was a feature of the programme and brought down the house. The closing tableau was very effective.

The marriage of Mr Charles Clarke and Miss Jane L Cann took place at the home of the bride at Brenton on Tuesday evening last. The groom is a native of Scotland, and is one of the employees of the staff of the Grand hotel. The bride is a daughter of Mrs Hugh Cann. The ceremony was performed by Rev J P Athony in the presence of a large company of relatives and friends of the young couple. The rooms were especially decorated for the occasion in a most tasteful manner. The bride received many tokens of esteem from her friends.

TENEMENT IDEA OF COMFORT.

Two Illustrations Showing That People Like to Be Crowded Together.

The people of the tenements may be shy on a good many things, but they allow themselves one luxury. They permit themselves to know what they want.

They have their own ideas about things and they don't always take kindly to the exotic notions which philanthropy tries to introduce among them. It seems that the taste for many of these things has to be acquired.

Bathrooms come under this head, as they are finding out down at the new Jacob Riis House which the King's Daughters recently opened in Henry street.

The small boys who come to the house were suspicious of the bath room. They don't take up innovations heedlessly. But one youngster, braver or more curious than the rest, finally offered himself up for the good of the cause. He took his life and a bath towel in his hands and the bathroom door closed upon him.

After a period of anxious suspense on the part of his waiting friends he reappeared. He seemed proud, as befitted a boy who had tackled unknown terrors and come out victorious. But he wasn't enthusiastic. This was a distinct disappointment to the young woman in charge. She tried to draw him out.

'Well how did you like it?' she cheerfully demanded.

'Oh, I dunno,' with evident reserve.

'Why, yes, you do. Didn't you enjoy it?'

A pause; then throwing concealment to the winds: 'Nope.'

'You didn't? Why not?'

'It's too lonesome.'

'People are forever pitying the tenement house folk because they live in a perpetual swarm. Philanthropy is always trying to take them off somewhere and give them quiet and room and peace. Whereupon the people thus transplanted are so lonely that they positively fall ill of homesickness. They are like people who wrap themselves up extravagantly in the winter and half freeze if their allowance of coats and shawls and mufflers is reduced to a proper number.

In the tenements people are wrapped up with humanity until it seems to outsiders as if they must be fairly smothered. But they are so accustomed to it that they like it, and when you take them away they shiver with a sort of spiritual chill. Of course it's all unhealthy, just as it's unhealthy to wrap oneself up to the eyes in winter. But when people are used to it they don't like a change.

A well-meaning alderman got an ordinance passed not long ago setting aside West street from the Battery to Gansevoort market as a Sunday afternoon playground for children. The marginal street here, running in front of the piers, is about 80 feet wide and most of it is paved with asphalt. The alderman had a notion that it would make a lovely playground.

And so it would. It is roomy, clean, smooth and abounds in piles of timbers, groups of idle trucks having a Sunday rest, mountain ranges of barrels and other attractive possibilities in the line of play.

A reporter went along West street last Sunday for the purpose of seeing the happy tenement children enjoying the playground which the kind alderman had provided for them.

Well, if anybody wants a convenient spot for solitary meditation on Sunday afternoons, the marginal street on the West Side is hereby recommended. It comes about as near being absolutely deserted as any place in town. And yet only a few hundred feet away there were narrow, dirty smelly streets which swarmed with children who laughed and shouted and played to all appearances perfectly satisfied with their particular nook in the rabbit warren.

It was simply another instance of the way people think and choose for themselves.

A Dog Hero.

'The world is full of dog heroes,' says a friend admirer of our canine pets; 'but few of their brave deeds ever come to light for they cannot tell their own stories. 'The New York Sun relates the exploit of a St. Bernard. The incident occurred recently at Bloomfield, New Jersey.

Bruno is a splendid specimen of his kind and his behavior in an emergency has endeared him more than ever to his owners heart.

The dog is deeply attached to a fine pair of horses one of whom is his special friend. The dog has often led the animals to water carrying the end of the rope in his mouth. His air of pride and proprietorship on these occasions has been the source of no small amusement to observers.

A few nights ago a fire broke out in the Baldwin stable. Bruno was sleeping outside on the veranda. The family were awakened in the 'wee sma' hours' by the barking and scratching of Bruno at the

'The pitcher that goes often to the well is broken at last.' There's a world of wisdom in that familiar proverb, and a sound application of it to disease, especially to such familiar forms of disease as coughs and colds. Singularly enough the very thing that ought to cause alarm is given as excuse for a feeling of safety. 'It's nothing; only a cough. I've had it before.' The fact that a cough recurs periodically should be warning enough to take it in time, for the most serious and disastrous of all maladies begins with a cough.

The use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery not only stops the cough but cures the cause. It cures obstinate, deep-seated coughs, bronchitis, weak lungs, hemorrhages, diseases which if neglected or unskillfully treated find a fatal termination in consumption.

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is no other medicine "just as good" for weak lungs.

"I was very sick indeed," writes Mrs. Mollie Jacobs, of Felton, Kent Co., Delaware, "and our family doctor said I had consumption. I thought I must die soon for I felt so bad. Had a bad cough, spit blood, was very short of breath, in fact could hardly get my breath at all some times. I had pains in my chest and right lung, also had dyspepsia. Before I took your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pleasant Pellets' I was so weak I could not sweep a room, and now I can do a small washing. I worked in the canning factory this fall, and I feel like a new person. I believe that the Lord and your medicine have saved my life. I was sick over two years. I took thirteen bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and four vials of Dr. Pierce's Pellets."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.
