That Gold Spoon.

There are some men who seem to be favorites of fortune. They are industrious, cheerful workers, full of overflowing of the energy of splendid health, and success seems fairly to drop into their hands.

It is of such as these that the less hardy and less successful man says enviously, "That fellow was born with a gold spoon in his mouth."

And yet on analysis it will be found that this success is largely due to splendid health, the endowment of a healthy mother.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription gives the mother health to give her child. It cures nervousness, nausea and sleeplessness. It makes the body comfortable and the mind content. It gives physical vigor and muscular elasticity so that the baby's advent is practically painless.

"I will endeavor to tell you of the many benefits I have derived from taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription," writes Mrs. B. E. Robertson, of Medicine Lodge, Barber Co., Kan. "In the fall of 1899 I was expecting to become a mother and suffered terribly with pains in the back of head; in fact I ached all over. Suffered with awful bearing-down pains; I was threatened with weeks with mishap. A lady friend told me to use Dr. Pierce's medicine. She had taken them and felt like a new woman. I began using the 'Favorite Prescription' and took four bottles before my baby came and two afterwards. I suffered almost death with my other two children, but hardly realized that I was sick when this baby was born and she weighed twelve and one-quarter pounds. She is now eleven months old and has never known an hour's sickness; at present she weighs thirty-seven pounds. I owe it all to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription."

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, and sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the most desirable laxative for delicate women.

MR. MCKINLEY'S FINE MEMORY. One New York Assemblyman of Whom It Made a Lively Friend.

While President McKinley lay dying in Buffalo, Assemblyman Charles S. Adler of the Eighth district remained alongside a telephone, and when the news of the end came the tears were streaming down his cheeks as he went home.

Assemblyman Adler was one of the warmest admirers the late President had in Buffalo. Their acquaintance began in 1891 in a railroad train near Steubenville, Ohio. Adler was then a traveling salesman and Major McKinley was a candidate for Governor of Ohio against former Governor Campbell.

"I boarded a train one day at Steubenville," said Adler, "and the brakeman said to me: 'Go inside that car. There's the Major there. Just introduce yourself.'"

"I walked up to Major McKinley held out my hand and said; 'Major, allow me to congratulate the next Governor of Ohio.'"

"Thank you," he said with a smile. "You're a travelling man I take it. Sit down. I am always glad to meet you gentlemen."

"I sat beside him, and I will never forget the pleasant conversation we had. He talked glowingly of the future of the United States and incidentally the tariff issue was brought up."

"Young man," he said, "we love the United States. When anybody advocates free trade for this grand, rich Republic just tell them for an answer that one of the reasons that you love this country is for the gold there is in it and you want it to stay here."

"At that time I had no thought of going into politics, but from then on I was a protectionist. In 1895 when I was a member of the Assembly Speaker Fish one day announced to the members: 'Gentlemen, allow me to introduce to you Gov. McKinley of Ohio,' and we members all passed up to shake hands with the Governor. When it came to my turn he looked at me sharply and asked: 'Aren't you the young man I met on a train one day near Steubenville? I think you are and that you said you were a drummer.'"

"I am," I replied.

"Then what are you doing up here?" he asked.

"The people down where I live sentenced me up here, I said.

"Are you a member of the Assembly?" he asked.

"Yes and a good Republican member, I answered.

"I am glad to hear it," he replied. "I am glad to see one of your profession so highly honored. I won't forget you, young man."

It was only about a year ago that I went to Washington to seek a pardon for one of my constituents. It was a deserving case and I felt that after I had talked with the President he would grant my request. The minute I entered his chamber he recognized me and held out his hand.

"I am pleased to see you," he said. "You are the young drummer I met on the train in Ohio and afterward in Albany. Are you still in politics?"

"Yes, I am still a member there. I said I explained my errand and my request was granted right away. The next day I had the pleasure of restoring to his wife and children a father who had been sentenced to a long term in Sing Sing for a crime of which I knew he was innocent."

The news of President McKinley's death came as a shock to me. To meet him once was to love him, and I believe that that feeling of love for him existed in every American heart. His death will carry deep sorrow into every household.

Before a man is capable of a great love he must have felt the need of it in his life.

A truth fits every other truth in the world but a lie fits nothing but some other lie made specially for it.
