LOOKING BACK

To the time when she was plucked from the very grasp of death, the natural impulse of the womanly heart is thankfulness for the means which saved her, and a desire to help other women in like case. Those are the motives which prompted Mrs. Eva Burnett to write the accompanying testimonial to the curative power of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This is only one cure out of thousands. No one would dare say that the average woman was not as truthful as she is good. And it is the truthful testimony of the average woman that "Favorite Prescription" cures womanly diseases when all other means and medicines absolutely fail. It establishes regularity, dries the drains which weaken women, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. It tranquilizes the nerves, restores the appetite and induces refreshing sleep.

"I have intended for some time to write to you," says Mrs. Eva Burnett, of Russellville, Logan Co., Ky., "and give a testimonial in regard to what your medicine has done for me. My baby came in July, 1889, and I had congestive chills, and lay at death's door for ten long weeks. I was in a dreadful condition and had six of the best doctors of the city. After everything had been done and I had been given up to die I asked my husband to get me a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. He had no faith in it, but he got it, and when I had taken it two weeks I was able to walk to the dining room to my meals, and by the time I had taken three bottles I was able to cook for my family of four. I can never praise Dr. Pierce and his medicine enough."

In Indianapolis last Friday, Richard Mansfield's deposition was taken in the suit brought against Edmond Rostand by S. E. Gross, of Chicago, who claims that Cyrano de Bergerac was stolen from his play, The Merchant Prince of Cornville. Mr. Mansfield deposed that he had seen the manuscript of The Merchant Prince of Cornville before he produced Cyrano, but he denied that Rostand's play infringed on Gross's rights.

Mr and Mrs. N. C. Goodwin (Maxine Elliot), Mr. and Mrs. James K. Hackett (Mary Manning), and Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Campbell (Henrietta Crossman), all sailed for Europe last week. Mr and Mrs Goodwin, who left on the St. Louis, Wednesday will not return to this country until the season of 1902-03. They will summer at their country place, 'Jackwood,' Shooter's Hill, Kent, and will appear next season at the Comedy Theatre, London, in When We Were Twenty-one and other plays. Upon their return here they will revive another Shakespearean play.

A Lost Opportunity.

Among Noah Smithwick's memories of old days in Texas, entitled 'The Evolution of a State,' is an incident belonging to his stay, as a youth, in San Fernando, Mexico. Slight as the experience was, it was of a kind to be keenly felt by a lad, so keenly that even the memory of it must carry a pang.

A band of Empirico Indians was in town and one of them had a horse that I coveted. It was a mountain mustang, a strawberry roan, as beautiful a piece of horse-flesh as I had ever laid eyes on.

I was determined to own it, and was struck dumb with delight at being told that for twenty silver buckles, with which to bedeck the Indians hair, I might have it.

I took twenty old Spanish hammered silver dollars and began to convert them in buckles, in a fever of anxiety lest the Indian should go back on his agreement. I had almost finished them when news came that the French had been repulsed, whereupon the Mexicans got up a grand parade, to celebrate.

The Indians took part, and one horse, my beautiful roan, was frightened at the trumpets, became unmanageable, threw his rider and killed him.

Then came my disappointment. The entire tribe knew of the bargain I had made but nevertheless they would not give up the horse. They held that inasmuch as he had not been delivered to me he was still the property of the dead brave, and so must be killed, to accompany his dead master to the happy hunting-grounds.

In vain did I offer them twice and even thrice the sum agreed upon. They clung to Indian law.

So, decked out in all the glory of war-paint, the doomed steed was led away beside his dead master, followed by the chief mourners with shorn heads and blackened faces, giving vent to their sorrow in blood-curdling howls.

Wrapped in his buffalo robes, his bow and arrows beside him, the dead Indian was laid to rest in a shallow grave. His saddle and bridle were placed at his feet. The horse was then led up to the grave and shot, and his body afterward burned.

Moreover, there were twenty silver buckles for sale, and no buyers, for not one of the tribe would take them off my hands.
