Contestants in English Quizzes. Mrs. Elizabeth Hanbury, one of the recognized ministers of the Society of Friends died yesterday at the very remarkable age of 108 years and 114 days. The death took place near Wellington, Somerset. It is always difficult to verify the ages of reputed centenarians. Mrs. Hanbury is an exceptional case, for the date of her birth is recorded in the admirable register kept by the Quakers in the parish of All Hallowes, London Wall, where she was born on June 9, 1793. Mrs. Hanbury was a Miss Sanderson, and some of the same stock as the Bishop Sanderson of the times of Charles I and Charles II. Her father, a Coins tea merchant in London, joined the Society of Friends. Her husband was Mr. Cornelius Hanbury led an active philanthropic life. For years she visited the convict ships for women before they left the Thames and helped to ameliorate the conditions to those unhappy persons. The women convicts in those days were sent to the antipodes under the sole charge of men. Drink was abundant, and there was no employment. Mrs. Hanbury was one of those who helped to bring about reforms. She also took part in the anti slavery movement. This remarkable woman was able to read and write till the age of 100. Speaking of her own long life, she wondered why she lived so long. 'The prospect is so bright,' she would say 'it is sometimes difficult to be a patient.'
