FRILIS (F FASHION.

Black velvet is taking a prominent part in fashionable book ing, and women are wondering why it didn't happen before. since the results are so good. Black velvet slippers are not only becoming, but so ve y comfortable. They are almost devoid of ornament.

A charming pair have only a small silver crown to relieve their sombre richness. They look exactly as it they might have been worn by some fair belle of France during the reign of the pleasure loving Louis. Decidedly out of the ordinary are the slippers of black satin with very high black satin covered Logis XV. heels a d a butterfly tongue with a large gilt buckle studded with amethysts.

The bandy and charming silk muff linings introduced last year are once more to the fore. Intended to slip through miffs either as a renovation or a quick transformation to barmonize with each costume they are very tasteful. In no case is omitted the fluffy trill, often embroidered, and nestling may be in a flower, over which droops the deep lace flounce annax ed to all dress muffs, whether in fur or any rich material.

There are a few new and quaint color schemes such as a brillian; lobster red and a faint rose pink in combination. With pure white evening toilettes one sees wrinkled velvet or satin bel's of tan or pale brown, sometimes mingled with dull suturnal green or a ffron. A slight touch of bright gold sometimes relieves the somber ness of dark costumes of cloth or velvet, intermixed with silver embroidery.

A few threads of gold, allver or steel are often used in order to heighton the effect of the embroideries on dark blue and crim son. Tinsel effects are, however, sparingly employed this sesson, although the Cz r's visit to Paris has brought gold and silver back again for the small accessorie

To preserve flowers: In several waters thoroughly wash some fine, clean sand and dry it in the sun. In a box of suitable size spread sufficient of it to hold the a ma of those to be preserved. Po k while they are fresh, but u and stand them in the sand care ut. to prevent their touching each other. Now, with a sieve, gently sift in more sand, mean while arranging in place every leaflet and pe'al. Continue until the topmost leaves are covered, and set away in a dry place for ten days or two weeks. Then gently tip the box, allowing the sand to s ft out, and the flowers will remain colored and intact like so many beautiful mum-

A medical journal tells how a saucerful of shaved ice may be kept in a sick room through a day and night if need be, even with a fire in the room. Put the saucer with another; then place the soup plate bus arranged on a good heavy pillow, and cover it with another pillow, pressing the p llows so that the plates are completely imbedded in them. The paragraph adds hat one of the best ice shavers is an old jackplane set deep. It should be turned bottom upward, and the ice moved backward and forward over the cutter.

From the small leg of mutton a dish of mock terrapin can be made. A thick brown sauce, seasoned with salt, paprika, or a dash of cayenne, the diced meat added with two tablespoonfuls of sherry or Madeira and simmered gently for 10 minutes. At the last moment a few quartered hard boiled eggs are laid in and, when taken from the fire two tablespoonfuls more of wine should be stirred in. It should be served on a platter garnished with parsley, quartered hard boiled eggs and slices of lemon

To make good pastry all the ingredients should be very cold and should be mixed with a knife rather than with the hands. This is also the case in mixing mayonnaise dressing, which is a failure if all the ingredients as well as the fork and bowl are not icy cold, but they may be mixed with little trouble when all the conditions are as they should be

The parlor is rapidly becoming obsolete, says an interior decorator. This is particularly true of suburban houses, and ap plies also to city houses that have been remodelled to conform to the new order of things. The reception hall seems to be a necessity, and opening on this is the library, living room, or whatever you choose to call it. Some people call it a music room, but, whatever the name, it takes a grod thing, too.

'I Suppose we all recall the days of our our youth, when the parlor was something to be spoken of in whispers and regarded

Catarrh

It originates in a scrofulous condition the blood and depends on that condition, It often causes headache and dizziness impairs the taste, smell and hearing, affects the vocal organs and disturbs the stomach. It afflicted Mrs. Hiram Shires, Batchellerville, N. Y., twenty consecutive years, deprived her of the sense of smell, made her breathing difficult, and greatly affected her general health.

She testifies that after she had taken many other medicines for it without lasting effect it was radically and permanently cured, her sense of smell restored, and her general health greatly improved, by with awe. It was a large, darkened room, containing stiff, sparse furniture, that always had to be arranged just so. It was sacred to company and even on the rare occasions when the sunlit was admitted it smelled strange and musty. I am glad to see that sensible people no longer have parlors.

Teo Many Compl'cations.

A lawyer received a new client the other day-a big man named Frazier, who wanted to sue to recover £500 advanced on a note and not repaid.

Who is the debtor ? asked the lawyer. Ob, she's a relation of mine.

How nearly related?

Very nearly.

But, my dear sir, persisted the lawyer, you must be more explicit.

Well, she may be my mother in law. May be? Then you are likely to marry her daughter.

'I've already married the daughter.' 'Oh, then, of course, the defendant is your mother-ir-law?

·I guess you better bear the whole story,' said the man named Fr zier. He heaved a weary sigh and then went

'You see a year ago we lived togethermy son Bill and I. Across the way lived the Widow Foster and her daughter Mary. Well, sir, I married Mary because she was good looking. My son Bill married the widow because she had beaps of money. Now, perhaps you can tell me whether the old lady is my mother-ir-law or my daugh-

But the lawyer couldn't-at least, not just then. The problem had struck him all in a heap. He looked wild eyed and his brain was reeling.

'Perhaps, when yo 've settled that quetion you will undertake my suit. Fri zier added. The old lady borrowed the money tair and equare, and she can pay it back, but she won't, and I've got to sue.

'I don't think I'll take your case faltered the lawyer. 'The case-er-er presents too many complications.

'By the way, said Fr zier, disappointedholding the ice in a soup plate and cover it | ly, as he took up his hat and prepared to go, since the donble we'ding a child has been born to each couple. Can you tell me what relation the children are to each

But the lawyer could'nt.
