The weather this week has been perfect, and one would judge were it not for the trees which have been robbed of their beautiful foliage, that it was early autumn instead of the last day of October.

Valuable Collections. The Daily Lancet tells the following story of untailing remedies for colds, all of them infallible: Uncle Allan, asked the caller, 'do you know of anything that is good for a cold?' Uncle Allen Sparks opened his desk, took from one of the pigeonholes a large number of newspaper clippings tied with a string, and threw them into the caller's lap.

Questions and Answers. Here are some more queries propounded by the Bookman together with the appropriate answers. They concern well-known authors, about whom, apparently, we do not know enough.
