The Dartmouth rink never represented a prettier scene than it did Wednesday evening on the occasion of its annual skating carnival.
The galaxy of skaters on the ice and the decorations of the building formed an animated and inspiring sight.
From the apparent delight displayed by the 200 skaters, arrayed in costumes from a British general to a colored dude, everybody seemed to be pleased and in ecstasies over the beautiful sheet of ice which Manager Patterson had for the skaters to glide over, being as smooth as glass.
The costumes were all of a high order, especially those worn by the ladies, and it would have been hard to particularize who would have been awarded prizes, if there had been any offered, for the most original or handsome costumes.
About two hundred spectators were present, who watched with much interest the dazzling glitter on the ice, and listened to the fine programme of music discoursed in a creditable manner by the Victoria band, under the leadership of T Mansley, and DeStephen orchestras.
At the conclusion of the carnival Mr O B Stubbs, photographer, through Manager Patterson, presented each skater with an order to have their pictures taken in costume, free of charge.

O' Cassidy's Daughter.
Her hair from the sunbeams their radiance has stolen,
As with long, rippling glory it hides her from view,
And the deep azure light when young April has fallen
Is the glance of her eye in its heaven of blue.
Oh, love, truth and honor
And joy wait upon her
As she trips with the graces and walks by their side,
For pleasure entrances
And glows where she glances.
O' Cassidy's Daughter, Blush Rose of the Coole.
Her mouth in its dimples and witchery flaming
Where mid Beauty's sweet curves the young loves have their birth,
While the blush of her cheek sets the painter a dreaming
Of a lady supernal no longer of earth,
Her laughter clear ringing,
Like phly bringing
To the heart a new gladness in joy-tide of yale,
Maiden modesty taught her;
She lives o'er the water,
O' Cassidy's Daughter, Blush Rose of the Coole.
Oh, she's glorious in graces of form and of motion,
And her heart, where young purity nestles secure,
Makes her like our young maidens least know the common.
Her glances or smiles cause our awakes to endure,
May sweet joys cause thee!
And heaven's love bless thee!
Thy mind's like the waters of the soft, limpid pool,
Thou dear Irish maiden,
Glory-crowned, beauty-laden,
O' Cassidy's Daughter, Blush Rose of the Coole.

Queer Ailments.
The vegetarian restaurants of London, on account of their low prices and careful cookery, are frequented by many persons not vegetarians. Usually they are satisfied but a lady, whose maid accompanied her about London, was soon the recipient of a protest.
'But, Mary,' she argued, 'the food is palatable,—you cleared your plate,—and it is certainly wholesome. Why do you object?'
'It ain't that bad to taste, ma'am,' responded Mary, firmly, 'but I don't call it wholesome—no, ma'am, but when they fill a body's plate with tomato and cabbage and parsnips and potato all at once, and give you fish ball, things without any fish in 'em, and goose things without any goose in 'em, and croquette things; made all of mix-up greens. Sure, ma'am, it gives me confusion of the stomach!'
Another domestic recently discovered an ailment as new as this, and even more surprising. She was employed in a household where she overheard a good deal of talk about diet, and especially about the dangers attendant upon eating potatoes and other starchy foods, of which the mistress was forbidden by her doctor to partake. As to the reason why starch was deleterious, Bridget drew her own conclusions.
One morning she appeared with a serious and alarmed countenance, and when inquiry was made, explained that she had 'cricks in her neck' and her joints and all over her, and was feeling very queer—but at least she knew why.
'And I'll never eat any more potatoes, ma'am,' she asserted, earnestly, 'for 'tis that that's the matter with me. I ate a big one at dinner yesterday; and O ma'am, when I woke up this morning I was starched as stiff as a board!'
An Irishman's Calendar.
It is always fair weather with the residents of the Emerald Isle. The tourist may be drenched to the skin with the wettest of rain, but every native he meets will assure him that it is "a foine day."
It is only when an Irishman takes his pen to write that he numbers something beside the sunny hours, as in the effusion below, which is marked by rather more truth than poetry:
Dirty days hath September,
April, June and November.
From January up to May
The rain it raineth every day.
All the rest have thirty-one
Without a blessed gleam of sun;
And if any of them had two-and-thirty
They'd be just as wet and twice as dirty.
Not So Bad.
'Norah, will you marry me when I come back from the war?' demanded Mr. Herliby of his sweetheart.
'It's meself that's not prepared to give me answer now,' said Norah, with a coy smile. 'I'll have it ready when you're coming home, Jim.'
'Well, that's not so bad,' said Mr. Herliby, after a moment's reflection. 'Just tell me the one thing now, darlint—will it be yis or no?'

'I wrote Dr. Pierce regarding my case, and received a prompt reply, free.'
'I endured nearly four years of suffering," writes Mrs. J. L. Myers, of Washington, W. Va., "caused principally from improper medical attention after the birth of a child, and female weakness, resulting in a complication of diseases. Had a terrible cough and an incessant pain and soreness in lungs. Was reduced in flesh from 184 pounds to about 100 pounds in eighteen months. I had no appetite, and became so weak and nervous I could scarcely sit up. I doctored with our home physicians for two years with no benefit, I was finally induced to try Dr. Pierce's medicines. I wrote to Doctor Pierce regarding my case, and received a prompt reply, free, advising the proper medicines for my case. After taking four bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and four of his 'Golden Medical Discovery,' three doses each day, also taking one bottle of Dr. Pierce's Compound Extract of Smart-Weed and some of his 'Pellets,' I ceased coughing, and am now enjoying splendid health and have gained thirty-five pounds in weight. I again feel like my former self, thanks to Dr. Pierce and his great medicines."
Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter FREE. All correspondence sacredly confidential and all womanly confidences guarded by strict professional privacy. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.
