The Eyes Of A Lion.

One night, when some troopers were camped in South Africa, it came the turn of Rennie Stevenson to go for water to the spring, which was about a thousand yards distant. He describes the experience in his book, "Through Rhodesia." A comrade volunteered to accompany him. When they were nearing the spring, this man whispered to Stevenson:

There's a lion skulking to the river growth on the right bank.

Yes, there were its eyes, gleaming through the dark.

Sabli I fire? whispered the soldier.

Yes, fire, but take good aim. If you only wound it, we are done for.

The trooper knelt and took a long, steady aim.

Bang! The sound of the shot reverberated through the surrounding trees and up the river. But there were the eyes, still gleaming.

Stevenson asked for the rifle and crawled nearer, trying to get a better shot. Closer and closer went the two, their hearts in their mouths. Suddenly, when they thought they were almost in the face of the lion, they found the eyes to be two glow worms. The alarmingly bright little creatures had not felt it necessary to get out of the way.

His Majesty's Person.

According to the London correspondent of The Western Daily Mercury, the King's decision to present to the Royal United Service Institution certain Nelson relics which have hitherto been housed in the Guard Chamber at Windsor means more than at first sight appears. It is understood that His Majesty desires to reduce as much as possible the inducements that take large numbers of people to Windsor Castle for the purpose of inspecting its historic treasures. Thus, the gifts that have already been made to the Zoological Society and to the Royal United Service Institution are to be followed by others, and the Victoria and Albert Museum, no less than the British Museum and the National Gallery, will be among the first recipients of these gifts. The desire of His Majesty is to make the Castle as much a private home as possible and the many changes now in process are all designed to that end.

Not to be Expected.

"I don't see how he can expect to succeed as an author. Why, he can't write common sense."

"He doesn't have to. All his stories are in dialect."

Dyspepsia

From foreign words meaning bad cook, has come rather to signify bad stomach; for the most common cause of the disease is a predisposing want of vigor and tone in that organ.

No disease makes life more miserable. Its sufferers certainly do not live to eat; they sometimes wonder if they should eat to live.

W. A. Nugent, Bellville, Ont., was greatly troubled with it for years; and Peter R. Gaure, Eau Claire, Wis., who was so afflicted with it that he was nervous, sleepless, and actually sick most of the time, obtained no relief from medicines professionally prescribed.

They were completely cured, as others have been, by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

according to their own statement voluntarily made. This great medicine strengthens the stomach and the whole digestive system. Be sure to get Hood's.
