DANGERS OF LAUGHING.

Occasional Inopportunities Of Mirth Evidenced.

It was awkward for the czar's confidential adviser, Baron Enidoff, a month ago that he had not a quicker control of his features, for a laugh at the wrong moment lost him his high position of £12,000 a year.

While the royal suit was at Compiegne, soon after the arrival, the czar was tired and a little irritable by the effects of his long journey. While going through the big library, which was part of the great apartments prepared for him, he slipped on a woolskin mat that lay on the highly polished floor, made a wild attempt to save himself and clutched at one of his attendants.

He nearly brought himself and his stand-by to the ground, but he just managed to avoid a fall. The spectacle was rather ludicrous, especially in such a stately personage, and when the rather irritated monarch turned round he found his favorite Enidoff indulging in a grin of amusement, which he could not suppress.

The czar, who detests levity on state occasions, spoke very sharply to the culprit, who next day was dismissed from his post and relegated to an assistant secretaryship, with plenty of hard work to do, and wherein he never sees the czar at all. Although wealthy and of the oldest nobility the baron dared not refuse the minor service. His former stipend was £12,000 a year.

But the Kaiser, on the whole, is the most dangerous person to laugh at, or be fore, and more than one person has 'done for' himself in this way. So did the unfortunate Gough Milbanke find it—the clever but bluff Scottish colonial administrator. It was he who used to command the Sultan Abou Din's troops and manage the Arabian finances.

The Kaiser took him up four years ago as a guest, with a view to making use of him in the new 'expansion' policy of the German empire, and had decided to give him a fine position in the east to guard German interests in China, at a princely remuneration, of course. The Kaiser sees to these things himself, and anybody who becomes one of his right hand men is pretty well set up for life.

At one of the audiences given him at Potsdam, Milbanke was giving the emperor the benefit of his experience and receiving his orders when the Kaiser made a rather absurd suggestion as to eastern diplomacy, proposing to win the confidence of the Japanese and Kurile islanders with presents.

Milbanke, bursting into a guffaw asked the kaiser if he thought the Japanese were Kongo niggers, who could be bought over with a few glass beads and a flintlock gun. The kaiser froze at once, wished Milbanke good night and never re-opened relations with him.

The moral is, when you are chatting with a king don't forget he is a king and dig him in the ribs.

'LOVE LAUGHS AT LOCKSMITHS'—South American Kidney Cure laughs at disease. It's the seemingly impossible doors to disease that it unlocks that makes its cures almost incredible. I will dog your footsteps! hissed the Heavy Villain, while the footlights trembled at his tread.

Ha, ha! gurgled the unhappy Heroine; you forget that you are too heavy to do a dogtrot!

Foiled again, the Heavy Villain lit another cigarette and left the scene, R U. E. muttering to himself,

Dyspepsia

That means a great deal more than pain in the stomach, else it might be easily cured. It means that that organ lacks vigor and tone and is too weak properly to perform its functions.

It means, too, that much that is eaten is wasted and the system generally undernourished.

W. A. Nugent, Belleville, Ont., had dyspepsia for years; so did H. Budan, San Luis Obispo, Cal. Mrs. C. A. Warner, Central City, Neb., was so afflicted with it she could scarcely keep anything on her stomach and became very weak and poor.

Hood's Sarsaparilla permanently cured these sufferers, according to their own voluntary statements, as it has cured others. Take it.

Hood's Pills cure liver ills; the non-irritating and only cathartic to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla.
