Official account of the storm of Seringapatam, Tippoos capital.

From Gen. HARRIS, to Gov. General CORNWALLIS.

MY LORD,

The fire of our batteries, which began to batter in breach on the 30th April, had on the evening of the 3d inst. so much destroyed the walls against which it was directed, that the arrangements were made for assaulting the place on the following day, when the breach was reported practicable.

The troops intended to be employed were stationed in the trenches early in the morning of the 4th, that no extraordinary movement might lead the enemy to expect the assault, which I had determined to make in the heat of the day, as the time best calculated to ensure success, as the troops would then be least prepared to oppose us.

[The General here enumerates the troops intended for the assault, composed of Europeans and natives; under Colonels Sherbrooke, Dunlap, Dalrymple, Gardiner and Mignan; the whole commanded by Gen. Baird.]

"At one o'clock the troops moved from the trenches, crossed the rocky bed of the Cavery under an extremely heavy fire, passed the glacis and ditch, and ascended the breaches in the fauve braye and rampart of the fort, surmounting in the most gallant manner every obstacle which the difficulty of the passage, and the resistance of the enemy presented to oppose their progress.

"Resistance continued to be made from the palace of Tippoos, for some time after all firing had ceased from the works: two of his sons were there, who, on assurance of safety, surrendered to the troops surrounding them; and guards were placed for the protection of the family, most of whom were in the palace.

[Many of Tippoos chiefs were killed, and the Princes removed to camp. It was reported Tippoos Sultan was slain. Immediate search was made for his body, and it was found late in the evening, under a heap of the slain. It was carried to the palace, recognized by his family, and buried with military honors, in the mausoleum of his fathers.]

Gen. Harris here mentions the strength of the fortresses which defend Seringapatam; the bravery of the troops employed in taking them, and the loss his army sustained, which he says is found to have been much heavier than he at first imagined.]

"On the 5th inst. Abdul Khalic, the elder of the Princes formerly hostages with Lord Cornwallis, surrendered himself at our out-posts, demanding protection. Kerim Saheb, the brother of Tippoos, had before sought refuge with Meer Allum Behauder. A Cowl Namah was yesterday dispatched to Futieh Hyder, the eldest son of Tippoos, inviting him to join his brothers. Purneah and Meca Kummer Odeen Khan have also been summoned to Seringapatam—no answers have yet been received, but I expect them shortly, as their families are in the fort.

"Meer Kummer Odeen Khan has submitted, with 4000 horse, to rely on the generosity of the English.

"Monsieur Chapue, and most of the French, are prisoners. They have commissions from the French Government.

I have the honor to be, &c.

"GEORGE HARRIS."

Total of killed, 83—wounded, 297—missing 6.

ON THE SUCCESS IN INDIA.

Besides the immense treasure found in Seringapatam, the possession of it secures us the sovereignty of India. The Nabob of Arcot, is no longer powerful; and the Mahrattas are our friends, or at least, dare not now be our enemies. The East-India house has been illuminated on the intelligence.

Like Dr. Slop's wig, the war in India may be said to be burnt out, before it was well kindled.

English Official Accounts of new successes in Holland.

London Gaz. Extra. Sept. 16.

From Gen. ABERCROMBIE, to Hon. Mr. DUNDAS.

H. Q. Schagen Brug, Sept. 11.

"SIR,

I have fully considered the position which the British troops had occupied on the 1st instant, and having in view the certainty of speedy and powerful reinforcements, I determined to remain until then on the defensive.

"From the information which we had received, we were apprised of the enemy's intention to attack us, and we were daily improving the advantages of our situation.

"Yesterday morning, at day-break, the enemy commenced an attack on our centre and right, from St. Martins to Putten,* in three columns, and apparently with their whole force.

[The right and centre columns were Dutch troops, under Gen. Drenthals and Monceau, and the left French.]

"The enemy advanced, particularly on their left and centre, with great intrepidity, and penetrated with the heads of their columns to within 100 yards of the post occupied by the British troops. They were, however, every where repulsed, owing to the strength of our position, and the determined courage of the troops. About ten o'clock the enemy retired towards Alkmaar, leaving behind them many dead and some wounded men, with one piece of cannon, a number of waggons, pontoons, and portable bridges. Col. McDonald with the reserve pursued them for some time, and quickened their retreat.

Gen. Abercrombie here enumerates the various merits of his officers and troops, and particularizes Col. Spencer, Gen. Moore and Col. Smith were wounded.

"The two brigades of Guards repulsed with great vigour the column of French which had advanced to attack them, and where the slaughter was begun.

"It is difficult to state with any precision the loss of the enemy, but it cannot be computed at less than 800 or 1000 men; and on our side it does not exceed in killed, wounded, and missing, 200 men. Exact returns shall be transmitted herewith. I have the honor to be, &c.

R. ABERCROMBIE."

SEPT. 21.

From the DUKS of YORK, to Mr. DUNDAS.

Helder, Sept. 14, 1799.

"SIR,

I have to acquaint you with my arrival at this place yesterday evening, having sailed from Deal on board the Amethyst frigate on Monday morning the 9th inst.

Upon coming on shore, I had great satisfaction in witnessing the disembarkation of eight battalions of Russian auxiliary troops, consisting of 7000 men under the command of Lieut. General D'Hermann, which had arrived from Revel in the course of the preceding day and yesterday morning. I afterwards saw these troops upon their march
