POETRY.

LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT.

WHAT angel so lovely and pure
Now gracefully crosses the street?
No eye has beheld, I am sure,
A mortal so charmingly sweet!

How lovely her form and her face!
Her eyes, how enchantingly bright!
She moves, and her motions are grace;
She smiles, and her smiles are delight!

Her bosom is white as the snow,
And as pure, or I'll forfeit my life:
Ah! ne'er can the man feel a woe,
Who calls this enchantress his wife!

I'm in LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT, and I feel
An affection no time will remove;
To the magnet as true as the steel,
Will I to my conqueror prove!

O! tell me the name of the maid,
With impatience to hear it I die!
Alas! ne'er before it I'm afraid,
Her beauties have have dazzled your eye!"

A youth as he stood at the door,
Thus question'd the host of an Inn;
Who said, "Yes, I've seen her before---
SHE OWES ME TWO SHILLINGS FOR GIN!"

A PARODY.

TO dun? or not to dun? that's the question!
Whether its better that the purse should suffer
For lack of cash, by hareful emptiness,
Or by a gentle dun to fill it up?
To dun---to be denied---denied with "call again!"
Ah! there's the rub!---for in that "call again"
What evil's done---what disappointment sore---
Chagrin and woe; what time is wasted?
What shoes are worn, in consequence,
must give us pain.
'Tis this that makes so many debts not worth collecting;
'Tis this which sickens business to despair,
And keeps from honest labor its reward!
While thus in language of complaint we speak,
We dont forget our many many friends;
To them our gratitude we owe,
To them our gratitude we freely pay;
Bouyed by their kindness, still our bark shall sail,
Enjoy the pleasing calm---
Nor dread the boistrous gale,

ANECDOTE.

A methodist preacher having taken for his text, 'And they all with one consent began to make excuse,' took up the context in the following whimsical manner: 'The first said I have bought a piece of ground, and I must needs go and see it,' That, says the preacher 'might be a reasonable excuse.' 'Another said, I have bought five yoke of Oxen, and I must go and prove them.' That might very well be, exclaimed the orator. 'And another said I have married a wife, and therefore I cannot come.' That's a lie cried the methodist, for he might have brought his wife with him.

THE DERVISE.

A Dervise, travelling through Tartary, being arrived at the town of Balk, went into the King's Palace by mistake, as thinking it to be a public inn or caravansary. Having looked about him for some time, he entered into a long gallery, where he laid down his wallet, and spread his carpet, in order to repose himself upon it after the manner of the eastern nations. He had not been long in this posture, before he was discovered by some of the guards, who asked him what was his business in that place? The Dervise then told them he intended to take up his night's lodging in that caravansary. The guards let him know in a very angry manner, that the house he was in was not a caravansary, but the King's palace. It happened that the King himself passed through the gallary during this debate, and smiling at the mistake of the Dervise, asked him how he could possibly be so dull as not to distinguish a palace from a caravansary? Sir, says the Dervise, give me leave to ask your Majesty a question or two. Who were the persons that lodged in this house when it was first built? The king replied, his ancestors. And who says the Dervise was the lsst person that lodged here? The king replied, his father. And who is it, says the Dervise, that lodges here at present? The king told him, that it was he himself, and who, says the Dervise, will be here after you? The king answered, the young Prince his son. 'Ah, Sir,' said the Dervise, 'a house that changes its inhabitants so often, and receives such a perpetual succession of guests, is not a palace but a caravansary.'
