PROPOSALS
For Publishing by Subscription,
ST. URSULA'S CONVENT,
Or the Nun of Canada.

Containing Scenes from real Life.

"The moral world
Which though to us it seems perplex'd moves on
In higher order, fitted and impell'd,
By wisdom's finest hand, and issuing
In universal good."—THOMSON.

NO Country presents more interesting subjects for the pen of a Novelist, than Canada. The romantic scenery, the history, and feudal character of the early colonists, their peculiar institutions and customs, the state of society, the habits and manners of religious orders, the Noblesse and Peasantry, derived from their ancestral connexion with France, and their own colonial circumstances, and modified by the introduction of British Laws, examples and intercourse, in consequence of the cession of the Province to Great Britain, afford ample and appropriate material for a Novel.

In the work offered for publication, the author has drawn fully from these sources. He has laid the main plot in Canada, extending it, however, to connect incidents and situations in France and England. His outlines are filled with the touches of a master. The manuscript has been perused by Critics of good taste, who think the performance cannot fail to gratify the lovers of moral tales exhibiting scenes, characters and occurrences of real life.

This native production of the Country is now offered to the patronage of the public, upon the following terms:

To be printed in two Volumes 12mo on good paper, and bound neatly in boards at 8s. 9d. the 2 volumes

Subscriptions received by W. REYNOLDS, Bookseller, St. John, and at this Office. Persons desirous of procuring a copy of the abovementioned work, should make no delay, as the lists are to be returned to the Herald Office, in Kingston, U. C. on or before the 10th day of August next.
