

about 10 or 12 feet in perpendicular height—the concussion was so great as to precipitate both of them between 30 and 40 feet down a hill, the steepness of which rendered a wall necessary in that part of the road for its support.

The severe contusions which Mr. Abbott received on his head, completely deprived him of his senses, and the injury which his wife had sustained, prevented her from calling for assistance. Fortunately Mr. Grant and Mr. A. Hay, from the lower district, came along shortly after the accident, and having succeeded in getting Mrs. A. into Casey's house, obtained more assistance to remove Mr. Abbott.

Mrs. Abbott had been thrown with so much violence across a stump, that the wounds she received were of a nature at once to preclude all hopes of recovery, and her suffering, which she bore with the most astonishing fortitude, were dreadful, but they were also brief, for in 24 hours her spirit passed away to that Being in whose mercy she evinced the most perfect reliance.

Mr. Abbott's right collar bone was broken and he has many severe bruises on head and other parts of his body, and is not yet considered out of danger.

The mortal remains of Mrs. Abbott were consigned to the grave on Saturday, and we never witnessed a funeral in Miramichi so numerously and respectfully attended.
