HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY YORK, NOV. 15
MESSAGE.

T. MAITLAND.

The Lieutenant-Governor feeling persuaded that the sympathy of the House of Assembly will have been excited by the distressing accounts which have very recently been published of the injury sustained by the inhabitants of New-Brunswick, from fires which have laid waste large tracts of country, and reduced the inhabitants of several towns and villages to great distress, is desirous to assure the House that he will be happy to concur in an measure that the Legislature may have in their power to adopt, for the purpose of alleviating in some degree the suffering of their fellow subjects, who have been visited with so afflictive a calamity.

Government House, Nov. 15.

YORK, U. C. Nov. 21.

We rejoice to state, that the people of this Province have been roused by feelings of humanity to afford some relief to the unfortunate sufferers in New-Brunswick. His Excellency notified by message to the House of Assembly, that he would give his sanction to any measures they might adopt for the relief of those deplorable people; and they have passed a bill granting £1000 for that object. This sum, from such a Province, under such calamitous circumstances, is we think, much too small -- it is not more than two pence a head from each individual. We are sure there is no man of a feeling heart that can disapprove of his representative doubling it; and if there be, he is most certainly unworthy of a representative.

The Hon. George Crookshank was busily engaged in the noble cause, on Friday and Saturday; He waited on most of the inhabitants with a subscription paper, and obtained, we understand, upwards of £200. His Excellency, who placed his name at the head of the list, subscribed largely.---Observer.

KINGSTON, U. C. Nov. 22.

The following article copied from the Chronicle of last Friday, will show what the inhabitants of Kingston have done.

We, the undersigned, being the collectors of subscriptions in the town of Kingston, for the relief of the sufferers in New-Brunswick, submit to the public in general, the result of our labours, and take the opportunity of expressing our gratitude for the kind reception we individually and collectively experienced from the contributors whom we visited, and our respect for that sympathy for suffering humanity by which all were actuated.

We anticipate the most happy consequences from the beneficent and humane exertions which generally prevail, to rescue from misery and distress the multitude now rendered perfectly destitute by an awful and unparalleled visitation of Divine Providence.

We beg to state, that the amount has been forwarded to his Lordship the Earl of Dalhousie, through A. W. Cochrane, Esq. Civil Secretary at Quebec.

GEORGE OKILL STUART,
Archdeacon of York.

JOHN BARCLAY,
Minister of St. Andrew's Church in Kingston.

The English ship Ramble, A. B. Greaves, master, from London, on a whaling voyage, struck on a reef of rocks, on the morning of the 19th Aug. 1825, on the west coast of Madagascar, about 16 miles to the northward of Port St. Felix, and was totally lost. The following particulars are extracted from the ship's log book:---

Aug. 10th, commences with strong winds from the southward, the ship under double reefed topsails, and heading E. S. E. At night a man was stationed on the bowsprit, to look out for land. At half past 3 in the morning, the ship struck on a coral reef, about 3 or 4 miles from the land.---Called all hands, put the helm a lee, and made every attempt to back the ship off the reef, but to no purpose. She continued to strike, and at half past 4 had beat over the reef into smooth water. Bent a cable and let go an anchor, and brought the ship up in 18 fathoms water, manned the pumps, and finding her leaking very fast, got a spare topsail under her bottom. At 6 cut away the fore and main mast, to prevent her capsizing. At 8, the water being above the cabin floor, the officers and crew left the ship in 4 boats, and proceeded down the coast for Bembarooka Bay, as the nearest place where they might expect relief. Just after leaving the ship, and about 1 mile from her, passed the wreck of a large brig, white waist and billet head, lying on an inner reef, appeared not to have lain there long. On the 21st the 1st Officer separated from the other three boats, and arrived at Bembarooka Bay on the 27th, and in the evening of the same day the 3d Officer arrived with another, and brought the melancholy news of the other two boats being cut off by the Natives.

The following is the account given by the 3d Officer: The three boats on the 21st, put into a small Bay, between Munumburgh and Cape St. Andrew, being short of provisions. The crews, excepting two in each boat, landed, and the captain, with several others walked up towards some huts. The natives treated us with great kindness, and gave us some Indian corn to eat. The captain gave them several presents. They then sent into the country after a bullock, and brought it to the beach, and asked for a rope to tie it. The captain offered them money, but they refused it. While we were killing the bullock, we observed a number of natives armed with muskets, taking hold of the boats. The captain immediately ran to them, but being pursued he took to the water, when two of the natives thrust their spears into him. He fell, but got up again and walked to the shore, where they stabbed him again, and he fell in the water. They then dragged him on shore, and strapped him. While I was running to the beach to regain my boat, I passed some of my shipmates weltering in their blood. I was closely pursued by several of the natives, but by the help of God swam to the beach. I then took up an unloaded musket and aimed at them, when they immediately fell on their breasts and crawled away. This was the means of saving our boat and several of the crew. I looked towards the shore and beheld all my shipmates massacred, except an English Boy and two blackmen, who were closely pursued by the natives.
