The Dutch papers encourage a rather favourable view of the present prospects of the Greeks, and give, on the authority of Dr. Gosse, of Geneva, a statement of the Greek force by sea and land, which, it is added, was as accurate as could be obtained, by which the Military are reckoned at 28,000, and their Marine at 121 polacres, brigs and fire ships.

Trieste, April 12.—During the celebration at Nauplia of the late victories obtained over the Turks, salutes of artillery from the fortress of Palamide announced the arrival of Lord Cochrane. This brave mariner entered the port of Nauplia on the 17th of March. Scarcely was the name of this new Messiah for Greece heard, when all the population hastened to the port. In a few minutes the whole shore was lined with men of all ages and classes, and the women impatient to see the long expected hero, soon filled the ramparts of the fort.—Lord Cochrane no sooner stepped ashore, than the cries of joy burst forth on every side. No just idea can be given of the scene. We are assured that Lord Cochrane and all his suite were much affected by the enthusiasm of the Greeks. He entered Nauplia, amidst reiterated cries of "Cochrane and liberty." The women on the walls scattered garlands of flowers on him. The Government Commission has rendered all possible honour to the hero who comes to embrace the cause of Greece. This new defender of Grecian liberty has had some conferences with the Greek leaders, and he has determined to sail in three days, with fifteen ships under his command. We know not whether he intends to direct his course; but he has found every thing he had required ready. The Greeks who had conversed with him are full of enthusiasm. They recognise him a man who does not lose his time, but who is eager for action. Accounts from Zante state, that this news having reached that island, three regiments of volunteers were formed there, and their chiefs are only waiting for a favourable opportunity to ship them for the Peloponnesus. We trust that this year will prove a fortunate one for Greek independence. Every thing is favourable, and the spring commences under promising auspices for Greece.

Canada Company.—We have much pleasure in giving place to the following communication, which announces the foundation of a new city, on the Company's lands, to be called GUELPH.

We congratulate the Canadas that the operations of the company have commenced; and it is further satisfactory that the first step was an act of gratitude and compliment to his Majesty.

Upon St. George's day, kept also in honour of the King's Birth-day, Mr. Galt having made suitable preparations for laying the foundation of a Great City, proceeded from Waterloo, attended by a number of surveyors, axe-men, and new settlers, and having marked a commanding situation, deemed the centre of the intended city, Mr. Galt took an axe and gave the first stroke to a great oak tree, which was soon felled, and in its fall gave notice to the sounding forest of their speedy extermination. Mr. Galt, standing on the trunk, proclaimed, "God bless our beloved King, and prosperity to the city of Guelph"—after which, refreshments with libations of wine, were partaken of by the multitude, while the air rang with "God save the King."

This, we believe, is the first city so named in honour of the Royal family. From the site selected, the liberal encouragement the Company held out, so ably carried into effect by their servants under the personal superintendence of Mr. Galt, we look forward with confidence to an increase of the city, equal to any in modern times. We further learn, that the agent of the Company in New-York has already received application from the following description of persons for lots in the new city.

- 2 Farmers, 11 Weavers, 5 Tailors, 3 Bakers, 6 Carpenters, 3 Shoemakers, 2 Engineers, 15 Labourers, 1 Butcher, 1 Mason, 1 English, 17 men, 10 women, 27 children; Irish, 24 men, 11 women, 30 children; Scotch, 15 men, 8 women, 12 children. Total, 154.
