

philosophy, which I displayed, has been attributed to wrong causes. The truth is, that although my body was awake, my mind was almost wholly insensible; it recovered its consciousness by very slow degrees, and it was not until I was left alone at night, that I became completely sensible of my deliverance.

[We have much satisfaction in saying, that this imprudent and most unhappy young man, for whose interesting narrative we reckon confidently on the thanks of the reader, is now pronounced to be out of danger. He has been removed to the house of a friend of his father, an eminent Solicitor in Gray's Inn: but even while in the hospital, he was visited by many persons of the highest respectability. His most constant attendant, however, was a young female, who had been dug out of the ruins, almost unhurt, very soon after the accident happened. We are restrained, by considerations of delicacy, from advertg. in a particular manner, to her connection with the narrative: but if she was the lady who stood upon the stage at the time of the catastrophe, Mr. Williams' informer must have been mistaken in her person, for she is not Mrs. —, but Miss —.]
