We are much gratified to hear that the spirit of Agricultural Interest excited in the County of Sunbury, continues unabated. The Annual Cattle Show was held last Friday, and very respectably attended, when, we are informed, upwards of 40 Animals were entered for Exhibition, some of which would not have disgraced a Cattle Show in the Mother Country.

We hope to be able to lay more particulars respecting this Society before our readers.

On Tuesday last, Lady Douglas, and the female part of her Ladyship's family, accompanied by Lieut. Col. DRURY, and Mr. ALLAN, of the Medical Staff, embarked on board the Allan Gilmour at St. John, which Vessel shortly afterwards took her departure.

An account of a Splendid Ball and Supper given to her Ladyship and family at St. John, previous to their departure, will be found in another place: The most respectful and distinguished attentions were paid them up to the last moment of their embarkation.

The late arrivals inform us of the resignation of His Royal Highness the Duke of Clarence as Lord High Admiral, on which the different Journals have put forth various opinions: The real cause, however, had not transpired.

The great length of the Report on Candian affairs prevents our noticing the general reports in circulation on Foreign matters till next week.

The amount of private subscriptions raised in this City in behalf of the unfortunate Emigrants from Rio de Janeiro, was 32l., and Sir HOWARD DOUGLAS, on being informed of that sum having been realized, immediately redeemed his pledge of giving from the Casual Revenue double that amount, namely, 64l.—Observer.

Hurricane in the East Indies—An English paper gives the details of a most destructive hurricane that lately visited the British Provinces in India. At Madras, it lasted thirty-six hours, during which time the rain fell in torrents, and the wind blew with the most tremendous violence. Bars and Bolts, in exposed situations, offered but a feeble resistance, and most of the mansions on Choultry Plain, were very seriously damaged. The ships in the Roads rode out the first twenty-four hours in safety; but the hurricane increased with violence till the next morning, when it began to abate. As day broke, attention was anxiously directed to the shipping, as it was feared that, if they parted in the night, they must have come on shore. All the ships disappeared, and hopes were entertained, for a brief space, that all had succeeded in getting to sea; but it was quickly ascertained that three vessels were wrecked at St. Thome. Five others were afterwards reported to be in the same condition, and some had not been heard of a fortnight after. "The scene presented in the various compounds, gardens, and on the public roads," says the Madras Courier, is "indescribable. Wreck and ruin stared the passengers in the face at every turn, and the number of trees torn up by the roots, walls thrown down, and houses unroofed, is incalculable. A great many cattle perished—we fear, too, that many natives were drowned, or killed in the general ruin."

The storm raged with the same or greater violence at Bombay. The walls of most of the compounds on the Esplanade were blown down, and several of the tents after getting saturated with rain, fell upon the heads of their occupants, and contributed to the destruction of their property. "The loss of lives," says a Bombay paper, "has been truly awful: between three and four hundred persons, at least, it is supposed perished in or near the harbour. Forty of the bodies were washed ashore, and when the tide ebbed and left them exposed, a concourse of people assembled there, and many found in the drowned corpses, a brother, a son, a father, or a friend. It was really a melancholy scene. The sufferers were principally Burahs, proceeding to Surat with their families, to celebrate the wedding of their Moolnah, or high priest. A great number of pleasure and passage boats, hugglas, (some heavily laden) dingies, &c. were driven on shore, dismantled or sunk, and the cargoes and stores damaged or totally lost."

To his friends and relations his loss is irreparable, and to all who knew him, the remembrance of his amiable disposition will be cherished with esteem.

"Honorable age is not that which standeth in length of time, nor that is measured by number of years, but wisdom is the gray hair unto men, and an unspotted life is old age. He pleased God and was beloved of him, yea speedily was he taken away lest that wickedness should alter his understanding, or deceit beguile his soul."
