NEW YEAR'S ADDRESS.

RESPECTFULLY PRESENTED TO THE PATRONS OF
THE ROYAL GAZETTE.

Tis hope of the future that helps us to bear
The present with all its distraction and care;
'Twas hope made your New-Year's Boy so happy and gay,
When he thought of your smile and your bounty to-day.

KNOWLEDGE! first restrain'd by Heaven,
Dearly bought, yet lov'd the more;
Long is the venturous act forgiven,
That dar'd thy sweetness to explore:
Reason, virtue, bow before thee,
Vice and folly fly dismay'd;
Nations in their pride adore thee,
Even Religion loves thy aid.

From thy parent soil transplanted,
In earth's cold wilderness to grow;
Sweetest boon to mortals granted,
From thy taste what joys may flow!
When with wisdom we betake us
Thy resources to explore;
Even as Gods thy fruit can make us,
Could the tree of life do more!

Patrons! such the gift we've brought you,
As the year has wand'ring away;
While from house to house we've sought you,
With the tidings of the day:
From the chief of British Islands,
(Strange as fancy's wildest dream)
Brit's fields, and Scotia's high-lands,
Now we get our news by steam!

Who can tell what wondrous changes,
Science yet may bring to bear?
As the Sea at will she ranges,
She may yet attempt the Air:
Soon some Cockney walking Engine,
May construct a large Balloon;
Steer in face of storm or sunshine,
To New Brunswick, or—the moon!

Rul'd by our good Queen VICTORIA,
With a fair but steady hand;
BRITAIN holds her post of glory,
Over many a subject land:
Sovereign arbitress of nations,
Homage she may justly claim;
Kings and Princes from their station,
Bow to England's honor'd name.

Richest gem of Earth or Ocean,
Call to Albion's Royal Maid;
Hearts that beat with true devotion
Ne'er be wanting in thy aid:
Those whose counsel shall be given,
Free from flattery or fear;
Arms that shall be bless'd of heaven,
Guide and guard thy bright career!

Strange, the Dons tho' ever waging
War, should never learn to fight;
Like two surly mastiffs raging,
More inclined to growl than bite;
Counter-marching and parading,
Like insects round an empty hive;
Could we believe their gasconading,
Scarcely a Spaniard were alive.

FRANCE for want of shews to hoot at,
(Crazy whether grave or glad)
Makes her King a mark to shoot at,
Strange her rifles are so bad!
RUSSIA tir'd of Colonizing,
In Siberia's iron bed;
Marches south with front surprising,
For a Mine of English lead.

Where the great Atlantic dashes,
Round the palmy western isles;
Once the land of chains and lashes,
There the sun of Freedom smiles:
There, no more the slave shall number,
Every scourge this tyrant gave;
'Till the last unbroken slumber,
Claim'd the shelter of the grave.

Curses of a guilty nation,
War, and pain, and flaming brands
Hold in CANADA their station,
'Mid her "fair and fertile lands":
O'er each tract once sm'd for tillage,
O'er each blood besprinkled plain;
O'er each desolated village,
Mercy's angel weeps in vain.

Rebels and their base advisers,
Soon must cease for spoil to roam;
And the host of Symphysizers,
Keep their sympathy for home:
While their piles of Virgin swords,
Are laid unheeded on the shelves—
Or, carried off by bandit hordes,
Perhaps do service on themselves.

Lo! the STATES' machine is crazy,
Each extreme forgets to play;
And the middle seems uneasy,
Plaster'd with ill-temper'd CLAY;
With high pressure all elated,
In this creaking barge they sail;
While the bubble huge inflated,
Threatens death in every gale.

But how'er our neighbours speed 'em,
One bold fact they can't deny;
Liberty has spoil'd their freedom!
'Till their Eagle scarce can fly:
Leaving thus to History's pages,
Something for the wise to scan,
When some pen in future ages,
Shall retrace the life of man.

"Home sweet home!" with fond emotion,
Now to thee my song I turn;
Dearest spot of earth or ocean,
Thee the stranger still shall mourn:
Tho' the tempest oft may hover,
Round thy tall and spreading pine;
Tho' the drift thy fields may cover,
Yet each bliss of life is thine.

Here, each father, friend and patron,
Bears a heart ununs'd to guile;
Here, each Maid, each Wife and Matron,
Beams with beauty's blandest smile.
Here shall piteous harvests cheer us,
While the seeds of peace are sown;
Nor a traitor's breath come near us,
While we rally round the Throne.

While your New's Boy moralizes,
On the themes of life and art;
In your grief he sympathizes;
In your joys he takes a part:
May heaven preserve from cares distressing,
Assist you in each good design;
And grant you every needful blessing,
Tho' the course of THIRTY NINE!

Provincial.

[From the Standard.]

ST. ANDREWS, Dec. 27, 1838.

NEW BRUNSWICK CHURCH SOCIETY.

At a meeting of the Saint Andrews Local Committee of the above Society, held in All Saints Church on Thursday the 27th day of December, 1838.

The Rev. J. ALLEY, D. D. in the Chair.

The meeting having been opened with prayer, and G. D. STREET, Esquire, appointed Secretary, Dr. ALLEY addressed the meeting as follows:—

BRETHREN:—It affords me sincere gratification, in addressing this Committee, to be enabled to report, that since our last meeting, the prospects of our society have brightened, and that the commencement of the united exertions of Churchmen throughout the Province, has already engaged the attention, and excited the most friendly of our brethren in the mother country. The society for the promotion of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, alive, as it has always been to our spiritual wants and willing to co-operate with us in the good work which we have so happily begun, has resolved to allow to each of the four Provinces one travelling missionary, and to pay their salaries on condition that the Church Societies pay their travelling expenses. This is a liberality which should animate our endeavours, and engage our perseverance.

It may, perhaps, be useful to remind you of the designs of our Society, in order that any misunderstanding on this may be obviated. The number of objects, to which the Church Society particularly directs its attention are five; to the furtherance of any of which Members may limit their subscriptions; namely: Missionary visits to neglected places; Establishment of Divinity Scholarships in King's College, Fredericton; aid to Sunday and other Schools in which Church principles are taught, and the training and encouraging of Schoolmasters and Catechists; Supply of Books and Tracts in strict conformity with the principles of the Established Church; and aid to the building and enlarging of Churches and Chapels.—To enter at large on all these several views, and fully explain the great benefits which each and every of them is eminently calculated to produce, would require more time than we can at present afford, it may, however, be useful, to consider briefly their respective bearings.

On the utility of the first, namely, missionary visits to neglected places, there can be but one opinion. It is unnecessary to dwell upon the wide field which is open for labour—of the many, many souls which are destitute of sound spiritual aid, and exposed to the inroads of ignorance and fanaticism, are in danger of being driven about by every wind of doctrine, by the wild ravings of extravagance and error. All this is well known to you, and we may truly say, the harvest is great, but our labourers are few; and consequently an object which professes to provide for clerical visits to those places, calls loudly for the assistance of the pious—of those who having themselves "freely received," are desirous as freely to communicate. As to the second object, namely, the establishment of Divinity scholarships in King's College, Fredericton.—The object here in view is, contributing to the expenses of the education of deserving young men, intended for holy orders. This is an object of no small importance. The appointment of natives of our Province to vacant missions, is, when practicable, much to be wished, as such are under God, more particularly qualified to perform the duties of a missionary in this country, than those from home, accustomed as they are to many difficulties, with which clergymen not natives are unacquainted, and which require the residence of some years fully to understand. The object then deservedly claims the support of those who wish our colonial church to be furnished with native clergy. I come now to the third object which the Church Society has in view, namely, aid to Sunday and other Schools, in which Church principles are taught, and to the training and encouraging of Schoolmasters and Catechists: and here is, in truth, the most important and interesting claimant upon the support of every pious and benevolent Churchman. The Sunday School, is universally acknowledged, to form, I may say, a mighty engine, in advancing the religious and moral improvement of the rising generation, and happy am I, to experience in my own parish, the lively interest taken on this all important subject; and gratefully to thank the teachers, and kind supporters of our institution. The Society it may be proper to remark in this place, has not been inattentive to your school, to which a liberal appropriation has been made, as well as a fair allowance of books and tracts. With respect to the training and encouraging of Schoolmasters and Catechists, the importance of this object, is perfectly self-evident, and is a subject to which the attention of the Legislature has been at all times most particularly directed. The teacher of youth, is an office of not only high importance, but involving serious responsibility; and the person holding such a situation, should be not only qualified by literary attainments, but, in his religious and moral character, irreproachable; wisely then has the attention of the society been directed to this object.

The supply of books and tracts, is an object of vast consequences. When books, and tracts are circulated, they should come to us recommended by the most unexceptionable authority. By means of the tract, great good, or great mischief may be done; and there is no mode of instruction made use of in the present day, which requires more serious attention than this. Many are the tracts, which convey to the reader the truth as it is in Christ Jesus, while I fear, there are many in which doctrines and opinions, are contained, far different from those entertained, or approved by serious and orthodox christians. The circulation, then, of tracts, stamped with the authority and approbation, of Bishops and clergy, must be allowed by the churchman to be a most desirable object. Upon the fifth object, which the Society has in view, few words need be said. Many here are the calls which will be made upon the bounty of the Society; as very many are the places which require aid, in building, repairing and enlarging of Churches and Chapels. All will agree that the benevolence of the pious christian is deservedly called for, in the promotion and furtherance of this design.

Having thus briefly considered the several designs of the Society; permit me to call your attention to the necessity of a general and cordial co-operation, on the part of every churchman amongst us, in the furtherance of views so eminently calculated, with the divine blessing, to promote the religious and moral improvement of our fellow men.—Every person on seriously considering the field for exertion, which now opens before him, the extent and increasing population of this Province, the small number of spiritual labourers, and the consequent destitution of many places, will be surely induced to lend his aid; and in proportion to the worldly goods, with which he is gifted by the providence of God, to increase the means and power of the society, to carry its several objects into effect; that so, every year may present an advance in spiritual improvement and a diminution of spiritual want, until the light of the glorious gospel of Christ shine upon our land. Thus united in a systematical endeavour to extend the influence and benefit of the church to every part of the Province and more particularly to the neglected portions thereof; we shall enable our friends to contradict with effect, accusations made against us in many parts of the mother country, and even in Parliament, that indifference to the faith of our fathers, is daily exhibited; that there is an evident want of liberality in the support of the church.—That our church has hardly an existence—that its members are few, and those few are but slightly concerned for her welfare and advancement.—That we are content to leave the support of our church to others, without exerting the smallest exertion on our own part. Surely we shall not suffer such accusations to go uncontradicted; by no means; we shall rally round our altar, and by actions which are better than words, we shall expose the malice and falsehood of our enemies: we shall not permit our church alone to be a subject to the accusation of disunion and indifference, but shall, to a man, from north to south, and from east to west, unite in heart, and in sincerity, in our exertions and prayers, for the advancement and prosperity of our Zion, and while we leave others to worship the God of their Fathers according to the dictates of their own conscience, we shall not leave our Venerable and apostolical church to succumb to her enemies, while God has placed it in our power to avert the blow.

JEROME ALLEY, Rector.

The following resolutions were then severally put, and unanimously carried.

By Jacob Allan, Esq. seconded by Colonel Wyer.

RESOLVED,—That a Committee be formed to assist the Rector in the collection of subscriptions, and that the Church Wardens, together with Messrs. Garnett and Parkinson be members thereof.

By Col. Wyer, seconded by Captain Smith.
