

study, although necessarily incomplete, had been provided for.

The number of Undergraduates on the College Board is, I believe, sixteen, but five of them were not examined, three because they were preparing for their degree, and two because they had resided only part of the term. In Greek Testament, and in Natural History, the remaining eleven were questioned as they had been taught altogether. The Classical Studies had been carried on in three Classes, which were separately examined.

The 1st in Pindar and Thucydides.
2d in Herodotus, Juvenal and Livy.
3d in Xenophon and Livy.

In these subjects I expected to find them expert, and was not disappointed; but I was surprised as well as pleased at the proficiency they all exhibited in "Natural History," and so I believe were all those who heard their prompt and accurate answers to the questions which were put to them during nearly an hour by Dr. Robb. I should not have thought it possible to make a whole class of students so juvenile take such an interest in that subject, as they manifestly did.

There was not time to look over the Weekly Essays which each student had composed, but the Vice President declared himself highly pleased with what had been done in that way. I brought away with me some specimens which were particularly recommended, and having since looked over them at my leisure, I am able so far to testify to the justice of the commendation.

The Collegiate School was examined on the day following with the assistance of Dr. Robb and the Rev. J. M. Stirling, who had also assisted at the occasional inspections of the School, appointed by the College Council.

On this occasion the Examination was more than usually exact, as the extent of the new School Room in which it was held, allowed of its being carried on in several subjects at the same time by different Examiners, who all expressed the same satisfaction with the part which came under their observation, as I felt myself with what came under my own.

I can myself bear testimony to the skill and success with which the Mathematical Department is conducted in this School. The first four Books of Euclid's Elements are very thoroughly taught in an excellent manner, and several of the boys showed themselves very expert in those parts of Algebra in which they had been instructed. On this occasion, for the first time, the boys of the English Department were examined in Arithmetic, and although taken somewhat by surprise their performance was creditable.

Dr. Robb, who conducted the Examination in French, reports very favourably of the result; he found them well instructed in the Grammar of that language and able to translate fluently.

In every other respect the School maintains the character it has always borne since I knew anything of it. From the number of the Scholars who now attend it, (about 80,) I presume the manner in which it is conducted, gives satisfaction to the Public, as certainly it ought. It is an invaluable appendage to the College, and deserving of all the encouragement it has of late received.

All which is respectfully submitted,
By His Excellency's most faithful servant,
GEORGE COSTER.
Fredericton, Jan. 7, 1840.

TEMPERANCE MEETING.—We are happy to find that the Total Abstinence Society in this place, purpose having their meetings held regularly every month, and propose that a Lecture shall be delivered on each night of meeting, by some individual who has made himself acquainted with the subject.

In pursuance of this plan, the Rev. Mr. STRONG will lecture this evening; and those who have listened to his talented and animated discourses as a Divine, may promise to themselves a profitable evening by attending at the Baptist Chapel, where a meeting will be held at 7 o'clock; and as much of youthful depravity, and the subsequent crime of after years, may be referred to that prolific source of human misery and misfortune, which it is the object of those Societies to check and prevent, the attendance of the parents and guardians of youth, as well as the philanthropist and patriot should on no account be withheld.

FREDERICTON READING AND NEWS ROOM.
This institution was on Thursday last honored by a visit from His Excellency Sir John Harvey, accompanied by Captain Tryon, Military aid-de-camp, and Major Robinson, provincial aid-de-camp. He was received by the committee and a number of the Subscribers. His Excellency, we understood spoke in high terms of the taste in which the various maps of Europe, France, United States, Canada, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, &c. &c. with the fine prints of the steamers Sirius, Liverpool, Great Western and British Queen were arranged, and the order in which the books and papers were placed.

We may add that every person in the community ought to support this useful institution. We have been requested to state that the Committee will attend at the room on Monday next, at 4 o'clock, and on each succeeding Monday, for the purpose of issuing the volumes of Reviews and Magazines, to the subscribers, under the 9th rule.—Sentinel.

On Sunday last according to announcement, the Wesleyan Chapel in this town, which had been enlarged, was re-opened for divine worship. The service throughout was deeply interesting and the congregation were the largest that ever were assembled in Fredericton upon any religious occasion. Appropriate discourses were delivered by the Rev. Mr. Busby, during whose ministry the present chapel was built in 1832, the Rev. Mr. Strong, one of the resident preachers, and the Rev. Mr. Smallwood.

On Monday the sale of pews took place, when all the new pews on the lower flat and several in the galleries were readily disposed of and produced the unexpected sum of £475. The enlargement will furnish additional accommodation for about 600 persons, and the chapel is now we understand completely free from debt.

MILITIA BALL.—On Wednesday evening, the Officers of the Saint John Militia gave a splendid Ball and Supper at the St. John Hotel, and were honored with a gay and brilliant assemblage of Beauty and Fashion, numbering we should think, nearly three hundred persons.

The Ball Room was fitted up in martial style, decorated with the Colors of the Battalions, Ensigns, and other National Flags, interspersed with glittering Stars of Swords, Bayonets, &c.; the whole displaying great good taste, and producing a very happy effect.

The presence of so large a portion of the beautiful and gay must have proved highly flattering. His Worship the Mayor, Major Brookes, Commandant, and the officers of the Garrison; a few of the gallant 36th, and some Officers of Militia from Fredericton, with many other guests, also honored the party with their presence.

The Supper Table, which was tastefully set out and abounded with all the delicacies of the season reflected equal credit upon the Committee of management and upon the Proprietor of the Hotel.—The fine Band of the gallant 69th was in attendance, and by their excellent and spirited performance, added much to the pleasures of the evening.

Dancing in all its variety of Waltz, Quadrille, and good old fashioned Contra dance, was kept up with the greatest animation to an hour which plainly showed how well the party was disposed to profit by the "rosy moments lent them thus," and we congratulate the Officers of the St. John Militia, who provided this handsome entertainment, upon the general satisfaction thus afforded.—Chronicle.
