

THE PATHS OF PEACE.—At a recent Anti-Slavery Meeting in Exeter Hall, at which Prince Albert presided, Mr. Buxton closed an able speech with the following allusion to her Majesty, and the high destiny before her:—

It may be excused if I venture to express the deep feelings of respect and participation with which this vast multitude hail your Royal Highness in that chair, and to declare my fervent and earnest desire that her Majesty, your Highness's Royal consort, may long reign upon her throne with boundless prosperity and with surpassing glory. I do not forget—who ever was?—the military triumphs of this country; but I do say, that there is a road to glory more illustrious and purer far than victories like those of Waterloo and Trafalgar could open to us. To arrest the destruction of mankind—to throw a blessing on a Continent in ruins—to give civilization and spread the gospel over a region in comparison with which the extent of the British Empire itself is insignificant—I do say this is the higher ground, the loftier path; and my desire is that her Majesty may tread it. (Tremendous cheering.) My prayer is, that with every blessing, her Majesty may to far distant days be the beloved Sovereign of this people—that she may

"Shine, the leader of applauding nations,
To scatter happiness and peace around;
To bid the prostrate captive rise and live;
And see new cities tower at her command,
And happy nations flourish in her smile."

A number of gentlemen, friends and neighbours of the Rev. Robert Williamson, minister of Crook, invited that gentleman to dinner, on Friday the 1st instant, at the Balmagown Arms, Bonar Bridge, previously to his leaving Ross-shire, for the Scotch Church in Pictou, Nova Scotia. Donald M. Leod, Esq. Glenfield House was in the chair, and Elin Mackay, Esq. Invercarron House, acted as cronier. Among the company were, Mr. Ross, Balmuir; Adjutant McKenzie, Ardenzie; Rev. Mr. McKenzie, of Cromarty; the Messrs. Ross of Ardgay; Rev. Mr. Allan, Kincaid, &c. &c. A number of excellent and appropriate speeches were delivered in the course of the evening; and this friendly meeting, which terminated at an hour befitting such a company and purpose, was as cheerful as it was complimentary and rational. Some very suitable remarks by the excellent chairman, in proposing Mr. Williamson's health were most feelingly replied to by the reverend gentleman. Though his departure is much regretted, it is hoped that his talents, attainments, and other qualifications, will render him a most useful minister in the important situation to which he is now going, and that, besides benefiting the large congregation in the capital of Nova Scotia, he will uphold the character of the Church of Scotland there, and defend her against the many assaults by which she is there surrounded. Several of Mr. W.'s friends, as well as some of his brethren in the Ministry of Tain, are contributing for the purchase of a few standard works in divinity to send along with him across the Atlantic. A good many families from the Highlands, and among them not a few of his own old parishioners, are accompanying their minister to Pictou. The vessel in which they are to embark receives the emigrants at Lochlinver, North Assynt, in the course of this week.—Aberdeen Banner.
