We have much pleasure in complying with the request, to insert the following Reply of Sir HOWARD DOUGLAS, to the Address recently forwarded to him, by the Magistrates, Merchants and others of the Town of Fredericton:—

LONDON, 10th June, 1842.

GENTLEMEN,—Retaining a lively and affectionate recollection of New Brunswick, and of the happy time that I passed in the Government of that Loyal and important Province, and in social intercourse with an excellent and interesting People, it is with vast satisfaction that I receive the evidences contained in the Address of the Magistrates, Merchants, and other Inhabitants of Fredericton, and its immediate vicinity, in the Province of New Brunswick, that I am not forgotten by them.

The congratulations expressed in this Address, on my Election as one of the Representatives for Liverpool, that great commercial community, with which New Brunswick is so closely connected, are doubly pleasing to me, and whilst, I trust, I shall faithfully discharge my duties as one of the Representatives of that great Empire, I shall certainly carry to that duty the knowledge which I have acquired, and the deep interest which I feel in that important portion of the British Empire, of which New Brunswick forms so important and valuable a part.

Lady Douglas desires to acknowledge most cordially, the kindly and affectionate remembrances expressed in the Address from the Inhabitants of a place, so many years our residence, and we both return our warmest acknowledgments for the very gratifying assurances and expressions towards us and our family, from so large and respected a community.

I have the honor to be, Gentlemen,

Your most obedient humble servant,

(Signed) HOWARD DOUGLAS.
