WM. LIVINGSTONE, } Trustees.

CORONER'S INQUEST.

An Inquisition was held on the 2d day of February last, at Blissfield, in the County of Northumberland, before Martin Cranney, Esquire, Coroner, on view of the body of Hannah Weaver; Verdict—

That the deceased came to her death from the effects of a pot of burning Charcoal, which was placed in her bedroom.

It appears from the depositions taken upon the Inquest, that the deceased retired to bed about the usual time in good health, but had imprudently placed a pot of wood Coals, about 3 yards from her bed, in a small room where she slept, and was found in the morning a lifeless corpse.
