Downing Street, 26th August, 1844.

SIR,—A question having recently arisen whether Clergymen in Holy Orders or other Ministers of Religion in the British Colonies, on obtaining leave of absence, should receive that indulgence on the same terms as those which apply to the cases of similar Officers in the Civil Service of the Crown, I have thought it necessary, with the concurrence of the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury, to lay down the following Rule for general observance on this subject.

The Clergy or Ministers of Religion in the Colonies may be considered as all falling within the two classes of beneficiaries or stipendiaries—that is, they are all, either in possession of Benefices, the emoluments of which are fixed by and depend upon positive Laws; or, they are in the receipt of Stipends, which the Queen, or Officers acting under Her Majesty's authority, may diminish, suspend, or take away, without the infringement of any such Law. It is to the last of these two classes only that any rule regarding the pecuniary conditions on which leave of absence is to be granted can apply. But in reference to Clergymen or Ministers of Religion of that class, the regulations respecting the stoppage of the half Salaries of secular Officers in the Civil Service of the Crown must be considered as strictly applicable.

To whatever extent the authority of the Queen or of Her Majesty's Officers may be competent to enforce it, the further rule must also be enforced, that no Clergyman or Minister of Religion must be permitted to absent himself from the Colony in which he serves, until adequate and satisfactory provision shall have been made for the performance of his Clerical duties during his absence.

I have the honor, &c.

(Signed)

STANLEY.
