

to have Branches in the several North American Colonies. But should the remittance in any case not arrive as soon as the Emigrants, the Agent will nevertheless consider himself authorized to make the payments according to the list conveyed in the vessel in which the Emigrants sail, provided it be duly certified and signed as before explained, and if he has not at his disposal any funds out of which he can make a temporary advance, the Agent will forthwith apply to the local Government for the requisite amount, which he will refund immediately on the receipt of the credit sent out by the Commissioners.

8. The Agent will by the first Mail Steamer in each month, transmit to the Colonial Land and Emigration Commissioners, a statement exhibiting in sterling and currency, the sums he may have received, and will at the same time return one copy of each list of Emigrants which may have reached him from England, shewing thereon the number of persons assisted by him, and the mode in which the assistance has been afforded. He will also at the close of the Emigration season, transmit to the Commissioners a summary of all the money received by him for this service during the year, and state generally how it has been applied.

5. Should any Emigrant named in the list not have embarked or die after embarkation, the sum, if any, specifically appropriated for such person by the depositor, is to be applied by the Agent as he may think best for the benefit of any family such person may have on board. But if there be no near relative, such as a father, mother, child, brother or sister, the Agent will retain the money intended for the absent or deceased individual, until he shall have reported the circumstance to the Commissioners, which he will do without delay, and have received their instructions. He will in like manner retain the money in every case in which he may have good grounds for suspecting personation or any other fraud.

6. Whenever the Emigrants are to receive the assistance in money, it will be prudent that the Agent should pay it over to them in the presence of some third person, and should also take a receipt from the Emigrants for his discharge.
