The Committee of the Fredericton Dispensary again submit to the Subscribers their Account for the current year, and ask for further contributions. The medical officer, whose kindness and attention have been unremitting, reports a large number of cases, in which attention has been given either by prescriptions or personal attendance.

The Committee think it unnecessary to reiterate the claims of this institution to the liberality of all blessed with the means of affording assistance to the needy and the suffering. While they feel thankful to those who from the first have cheerfully responded to their call, they would gladly receive additional contributions.

The expense incurred for Medicines, at the reduced rate kindly supplied to the Dispensary, is small, and the valuable services of Dr. Toldervy are, in ordinary cases, wholly gratuitous; but it is well known, that restoratives and proper nourishment for the feeble and the convalescent cannot be procured at a trifling cost. The Committee would willingly do more in this way, if further means were placed at their disposal.

Contributions for the present year are earnestly solicited; and may be forwarded to the Secretary and Treasurer or to any Member of the Committee. Tickets will be furnished to those Subscribers who request them.
