

The Officers of the different Companies have discharged their duties in a manner satisfactory to His Excellency. Some, however, have shewn more particular attention to the care of the men under their charge, and His Excellency desires those who have shewn an aptitude for this most important part of an Officer's duty, to rest assured that they will not be forgotten or overlooked by him.

The Non-Commissioned Officers of Her Majesty's Regular Forces, attached to the Brigade in various capacities, have all acquitted themselves creditably; but the zealous and efficient services of Color Sergeant Hewitson, H. M. 2nd Regiment, whilst acting as Garrison Sergeant Major, merit His Excellency's special recognition.

Finally, and in the most emphatic manner, His Excellency thanks the Non-Commissioned Officers and Men of the Brigade for their admirable conduct during their period of service. Their willingness to learn their duties and aptitude for learning, their readiness to submit to the necessary discipline of a camp, their constant cheerfulness, their habitual sobriety and good order, have surpassed his expectations. His Excellency earnestly trusts that they will strive to maintain the high character they have gained, and that the habits of regularity, promptitude, and order, which have distinguished them, will ever be characteristics of the Militia of New Brunswick.
