

It will, I know, be always most gratifying to that gallant and distinguished officer, Vice Admiral Sir James Hope, as well as to myself, to think that we were, in any way, instrumental in preventing the attack, which was threatened by a lawless band, on this peace-loving Province.

The destinies of all of us are in the hands of a merciful God, and your prayers for my future welfare, will, I fervently trust, encourage me, more and more, to discharge whatever duties may hereafter be imposed upon me, with earnestness and fidelity.
