From The Secretary of State for the Colonies

To His Excellency the Governor General.

Cable.

LONDON, 2nd December, 1901.

In consequence of the establishment of martial law at all British South African Ports, it has been decided with the concurrence of the Government of Cape Colony and Natal, that after the first of January next, persons desiring to land in those colonies must provide themselves with a permit.

Permits are to be issued in this country by a special permit Officer on the production of a certificate signed by a member of Parliament, Justice of the Peace, Clergyman, or Minister or Officer of His Majesty's Forces to the effect that the applicant is in possession of at least £100 or is in a position to maintain himself in South Africa, that the object of his journey (object to be stated), is bona fide and that he has not been deported or sent out of South Africa as indigent.

Applicants after producing satisfactory certificates are required to sign a declaration to the same effect with the additional statement that they will not directly or indirectly assist in any way whatsoever His Majesty's enemies in South Africa, and that they are aware of the penalty for so doing under Martial Law. Members of one family to be shown in permit issued to the head provided that a separate permit will be required for each son and daughter over 16.

Notice published stating that passengers from Colonial ports must supply themselves with permits from the Colonial Secretary or some Officer appointed by the Colonial Government who will satisfy himself, as far as possible, that applicants fulfil the above conditions.

Specimen copies of permits and of notice summarized above are being sent to you by mail.

Permits are available only to enable passengers to land in South Africa and are no guarantee that they will be allowed to proceed inland.

Two copies of each permit issued will be retained, one for record in the office of issue and the second to be despatched at the earliest opportunity to the officer at port to which the passenger is proceeding, viz.: the embarkation officer, Capetown, the Commandant Port Elizabeth, the Commandant East London, the embarkation officer, Durban.

His Majesty's Government feel sure that it may confidently rely upon the special assistance of your Government in this matter as the authorities in South Africa are all agreed that this measure is necessary to prevent undesirable persons from entering South Africa at the present time.

Persons proceeding from foreign ports are being notified that they should obtain permits through the British Consular Officers.

CHAMBERLAIN.
