

the main body of the Russian army, commanded by Marshal Diebitsch in person, on the 7th ult., had reached Paris from such a variety of sources, as to leave little doubt on the public mind of the correctness of that fact. Those reports differed however, in the details. According to some, the Russians lost 12,000 men and 60 pieces of cannon, and were, with their Commander-in-chief, in full flight. Other statements raise the loss of the Russians to 25,000 men in killed, wounded, and prisoners, and includes among the latter, Marshal Diebitsch himself. The scene of action is said to have been the banks of the Bug. From all quarters the spread of insurrection in Lithuania was reported with increased confidence.

PARIS, APRIL 20.—The following letter on the above subject, was received to-day, at a late hour:—

"Stutgard, April 15, a past 6 o'clock, p. m.
"Complete victory! Poland has triumphed! I hasten to announce to you a piece of news which will fill you with joy. An extraordinary courier, who has just arrived from Berlin, brings the news of combat on the 31st of March and 1st of April, which covered the brave Polish legions with glory. A grand battle had taken place on the 7th—in which Diebitsch was completely beaten, and the deliverance of Poland established. The Russians lost 25,000 men, and 60 guns. The army of the Autocrat may now be considered as completely destroyed. Every one here is mad with joy. God protects the cause of the people!"

WARSAW, APRIL 1.
The following is the letter of the generalissimo, written from the camp of Dembiewskie, the 31st of March at ten o'clock at night. (Dembiewskie is four miles (German) from Warsaw, and one from Minsk.)

"To the National Government.—Before I inform you of the important events of this day, I must premise, that as the army has fought and marched during the whole day, it is impossible to collect the particular reports so as to render a full account of the affair. Forced to postpone this duty to a more leisurely moment, I hasten to communicate to the government the result.

"This day the advanced guard of the national army precipitated itself upon the corps of Gen. Giesmar, which occupied a strong position at Wawer. After a combat of two hours this corps was beaten and pursued on the road to Minsk. Every where as the enemy, aided by fresh reinforcements, which he continually received, wished to profit by the positions which this road so often presented to him, his efforts only drew upon him additional losses. Finally the whole corps of Gen. Rosen united at Dembiewskie, endeavoured to stop us, but the battle which we fought there ended in the entire defeat of the enemy, and carrying of all his positions.

"During this day, so glorious to the Polish arms, the enemy has suffered considerable loss. More than 5000 or 6000 of his men have been killed and wounded as far as we can judge at this moment.

"Among the prisoners are Gen. Lewandowski, and a great number of superior and other officers. We have taken 2 standards, 15 pieces of cannon—of which a part have all their horses—15 wagons filled with ammunition, and some thousand of muskets.

"This victory is the more advantageous for the Polish arms, inasmuch as it has not been bought on our side by any very considerable loss. This is attributed to the surprise of the sudden attack which we made an attack which we followed up throughout the day with the greatest vigour. Many of the enemy's battalions were cut to pieces on the field of battle, and others were made prisoners in a body. Being about twenty hours on horseback, it is impossible for me at this moment to furnish a more complete report. I only pray of the national government to order a solemn service, to thank God for having designed to shed his blessing upon our arms.

"The Commander-in-Chief, SKIRZYNECKI."

Poland.—The Polish victory is looked upon indeed, as a sort of miracle—as a special interposition of Providence on behalf of a suffering and oppressed people, whose courage and whose patriotism, under the most disastrous circumstances, have long gained for them the admiration and sympathy of the whole civilized world. Henceforth the palm of bravery must and will be given to the Poles, who have achieved a victory only equaled by those of the Greeks against countless hordes of Persians that sought to overwhelm them. There are some doubts as to the extent of the defeat which the Russians have suffered, but that they have been signally defeated no one entertains the least doubt.—London paper.

HENRY SMITH, Esq.

The brig William from Liverpool at Saint John has brought London papers to the 25th and Liverpool to the 26th of April, but we perceive that the intelligence which they convey is chiefly of the same nature as we have already communicated; consequently we have continued our extracts from the interesting debates in Parliament on the great and leading question of Reform. Parliament has been dissolved by Royal Proclamation, the writs are returnable on the 14th of this month.

In common with the friends of the Presbyterian Church in this place we are happy to announce the arrival of the Rev. Ebenezer Johnston from Scotland, who has been anxiously expected for some time, having been made choice of as the pastor of that congregation. The Rev. Gentleman entered upon the duties of his important office by preaching two impressive discourses on Sunday last—on both of these occasions the congregation was large, respectable, and deeply attentive,—circumstances, which must have been highly pleasing and encouraging to the feelings of the preacher while expounding the "word of life," on foreign and untrodden ground. The Church which has been erected for his reception is exceedingly commodious, and universally admired for its neatness and pleasant situation. We sincerely hope and pray, that during the period which in the order of Providence Mr. Johnston may preside as a watchman over this Church, his ministry may contribute to the social and religious comfort and happiness of his flock, and that he may abundantly reap of the choicest and best fruits which reward the labours of a faithful minister of the gospel of Christ.

THUNDER STORM.—On Monday evening last, a tremendous thunder storm, accompanied with extremely vivid lightning and torrents of rain, burst over this City. The clouds for some time previous had assumed a truly grand and awful appearance, portending their being charged with a more than usual quantity of electric matter, causing them to roll past in rapid succession. The only damage sustained in this vicinity, as far as we have yet heard, was done to a house in Carleton occupied by Mr. Henry Lord—the lightning striking the chimney, split it from the top to the bottom, tore off the mantle piece, and completely melted the brass from the shovel and tongs which stood near the fire place. A cow which Mrs. Lord was in the act of milking, was knocked down, but not injured; Mrs. L. miraculously escaped unhurt. Mr. Quinton, who was in the room adjoining the one in which the electric fluid descended, was for a while deprived of the power of speech: he soon however, entirely recovered from the effects of the shock.—Courier.

FOR THE ROYAL GAZETTE.

Ye mournful tears of sorrow, silent flow,
The good, the pious Coldwell is no more;
His sympathetic heart, no longer glows,
His life is wreck'd on death's cold dreary shore.

How little thought he on that pleasant morn,
That he no more should see that sun arise;
No more with pleasure, press to his fond heart
The wife he lov'd and children he most prized.

But ah, he never more shall view the smile,
No longer listen to the artless cry,
Of hearts that lov'd him, for they knew him kind;
And now they mourn and in sad anguish sigh.

Oh, fatal hour, which saw him haste away
In fragile bark, to tempt the dangerous wave;
But death relentless rode upon the tide,
And plunged his victim in a watery grave.

No more shall he return the warm embrace—
See! see! they bear him lifeless to the shore;
Oh death! why didst thou level thy dire shaft,
And slay those beauties thou canst ne'er restore.

Nymph of Saint John why wast thou slow to save
A Friend I lov'd from the deceitful stream;
Ah, there was none to snatch him from the wave.

His days are o'er, his life was but a dream.

Oh have I heard him in the house of prayer,
For holy zeal direct his humble breath;
For grace to assist him in that dreadful hour,
When he must cross the gloomy river death.

And now he's erst that narrow, fatal river,
And wears a robe of purest righteousness;
And the Redeemer welcomes him to heaven,
And smiles to see him seated with the blest.

Yes—and he swells a lofty anthem now,
And loud rejoices with the heavenly train;
And bowing low, before the throne of God
Sings a new song of praise unto the lamb.—S.
