

payment they possessed by restraining them from the harmless recreations of a race course, or any other public scene of amusement, where they are disposed to enjoy themselves peacefully. The disposition to molest and attack the military was even more strikingly displayed on Sunday evening, when two of the most respectable sergeants in the 24th Regiment, men of excellent character, who were peacefully returning to their quarters through the Quebec suburbs, were attacked by a set of ruffians who drew their bayonets from their scabbards, and severely ill-treated them with their own weapons. These men, so far from provoking any hostility, did not, as we learn, even resent the outrage, further than securing the recovery of their bayonets, which were actually bent in the struggle. —Montreal Gazette.

EXECUTION AT CAPE BRETON.—The three persons found guilty of the murder of John Flavin, were executed on Thursday, September 18th, on the northern extremity of the Peninsula of Sydney. These wretched persons are represented as having become very penitent, and from the fatal scaffold they acknowledged their guilt, expressed their readiness to suffer for it, and warned the attending multitude against the dangers of evil company and drunkenness. So closed this horrible drama; a husband, a father of a family, was barbarously murdered by the perfidious wife of his bosom, and her abominable paramours; and Providence answers his ascending blood, by the ignominious scaffold and rope. The public mind feels satisfied at the execution, and would, no doubt, willingly banish the whole monstrous tale from the imagination, but a moral should remain: the "evil company," the "drunkenness," warned against by the condemned as they stood on the threshold of the other world, should be avoided as the common avenue to every crime; and the distant approaches of bad desires and passions, should be combated with, as if reputation, peace and life depended on the struggle. None are safe who tamper with evil, and none can say, Hitherto will I go, in sin, and no farther, for the first step often entails endless and insurmountable obstacles to a return to propriety and character.

A considerable display of military force was made on the occasion of the execution; a body of Rifles and about 300 militiamen under arms attended. The Cape Breton Herald intimates that the array of force was not called for by any want of proper feeling in the populace, although it was a very wise precaution. We could scarcely imagine that proper feeling in such a case, could be wanted in any community of the civilized world, and were rather surprised at the display alluded to, which surprised the mention of "precaution" has not removed. Precaution against what? Exhibitions of military have been considered injudicious, and have been carefully avoided, on similar occasions, in Great Britain, except where, from the nature of the offence and the political state of the community, such "precaution" seemed necessary. The laws possible should be supported by their own dignity, and their execution should appear as the spontaneous act of the public through the medium of its established institutions and officers. Fewer criminals suffered, with whom the public mind could not be expected to have sympathy, we imagine that Charlotte Flavin, Johnston and Easman were of that character. Man is now done with them, however, and we trust that they have employed the brief space which elapsed since their detection, in making peace with him whose decisions, extend through Eternity, and whose mercy is as boundless as his power. —Hat. Decider.

Extract of a letter from a Gentleman of respectability in St. John's, N. F., to his friend at Sydney, dated 31st Aug. last.
"We have just had reported to us by Capt. Kelson, of the brig 'Terra Nova,' that he spoke the brig 'Goose' on the Banks on the 20th inst., from Figuera, with the Cholera on board. She had lost the Captain, Mate, and one seaman, and another seaman then dying—there were only two men on board left to take her into port—she was bound for Fortune Bay. A special messenger has just started for that part of the coast she's bound for. The result will be frightfully fatal should the disease make its appearance in this island."

MIRAMICHI, Sept. 17.—Robbery.—The store of the Messrs. Canard, in Cuthbert, was robbed on the night of Tuesday last. It would appear that the robber had secreted himself in the store, and remained concealed, until the premises were locked up for the night, when, with the assistance of an augur, he forced open one of the desks in the office, and took therefrom a sum in notes to the amount of about forty pounds; he effected his escape through a door in the rear of the store. —Gleaner.

New Vessels.—Launch. On the 30th ult. from the building yard of Mr. J. N. M. Brewer, the fine ship Ada, of 462 tons register, built for James Douglas, Esquire, of St. Andrews, and intended for a regular trader to Liverpool. This very superior vessel is named the Ada, in compliment to Sir Archibald Campbell, our Lieutenant-Governor—being the name of the capital of the Burmese Empire, the scene of His Excellency's various campaigns. —Standard.

The Harvest.—A great variety of opinions are entertained about the general results of the present harvest. That it is not one of overflowing abundance, unmarked by the feebleness or failure of any branch, cannot be disputed—and so far as the eastern counties are concerned, it is below the average of the past year. It will differ from it, however, in some essential particulars. In 1832 the greatest scarcity was in wheat, and perhaps more American flour was consumed in some of the townships than had been imported for years. Warned by so important a deficiency, the great bulk of the farmers had this year planted an increased quantity—and we certainly never saw such fields of wheat growing in any season that we can remember. Along through Musquodoboit, Sydney County and the Gulf Shore, there has been an extent of land covered with fine looking wheat, that a few years ago would have astonished a believer in ancient prophecies; and which forces upon the mind the irresistible conclusion that many years will not pass away before American flour, though it may be bought as an article of traffic, or to satisfy the insatiable taste of the wealthy classes of the sea-port towns, will not enter at all into account with the great mass of the population. Generally speaking—the wheat looks well, and should the weather continue fine for a few days, nearly the whole will be housed in safety. It would appear that the cold of this season has not affected so much as the damp and sultry weather of some former ones. Blight and mildew are almost unknown to the eastward, and where there is a falling off it arises from thinness, shortness of ear, and in some few situations, from the late gales having shaken out the grain after it had ripened. Oats do not look so promising—but as they are more hardy, they may turn out better than we fear. In some situations they are very backward—a week ago many fields on the Gulf Shore were quite green, but as the frosts hold off much longer upon the sea coast, than upon the high lands and along the fresh water rivers of the interior, they may yet do well—if they do, we should think that the average of Bread Stuff would be a very fair one. Hay is every where deficient—perhaps a fifth; to be attributed partly to the freshets in July, which swept away some and damaged more. The potatoe crop is now looked to with great anxiety throughout the country—and nothing can be more opposed than the appearances of different fields in different situations. Nearly all the vines along the Musquodoboit—the forks of St. Mary's and the intervals of Antigonish, were nipped off not completely killed a fortnight or three weeks ago—but along the line of the Gulf Shore and the Basin of Mines they looked, a few days since, as fresh as in midsummer. So far as we can judge, we cannot apprehend any great deficiency in this root,—on the contrary, though some farmers have experienced a considerable falling off in those already dug, a very general impression prevails that it will not as a whole disappoint the hopes of the husbandman either in quantity or quality. Every thing as respects the great result of the harvest must now depend upon the ripening of the oat, and the turn out of the potatoes, if the former escapes, there can be no great deficiency in bread stuffs—if the latter are abundant, the failure in the hay crop can be partially made up, with the assistance of a little straw foddering. There was but little Indian corn planted to the eastward this year—and what there was has not been very profitable. Garden stuffs of all kinds are very abundant. The turnip fields look healthy, but there is an apparent slovenliness as regards the management of this root, that ought to be corrected. It sowed in drills and properly thinned it would yield abundantly—whereas, it is no uncommon thing to see half an acre of small turnips so crowded together, that there is neither room for the root to swell or the leaf to unfold. The consequence is, the space and time bestowed upon them are often wasted—for if they do not fall a prey to flies or worms, which are very likely to be attracted, or engendered by their crowded and sickly condition, they yield a very unsound and insufficient crop. —Nova Scotia.
