

that the party will proceed at once to the great Slave Lake, and instead of penetrating to the Arctic Sea by either of the former routes of the Copper mine or Mackenzie's River, Captain B. will pursue a new and more easterly tract. The country beyond the lake just named is unknown to European Travellers, but the Indians describe a large stream called the Thloo-ee-choh, or great fish river, which flows due north, or nearly so, and discharges itself into the sea about the 100th meridian. By this river it is Captain Back's intention to proceed, and from its mouth will sail in search of the lost navigators. From the mouth of this river to Prince Regent's Inlet, Captain B. computes the distance to be 300 miles, but he will first shape his course to Point Turnagain, the seat of his former exertion, when with Sir John Franklin, (unless he should find a point of land described by the Indians, running a long distance to the north, in which case he will proceed at once to Regent's Inlet.) Having reached Point Turnagain he will diligently search for any traces that may exist of Captain Ross having been there, and should none be found, he will then launch his adventurous barks into the bosom of the Arctic Sea, and stand across to Regent's Inlet, to the spot where the Fury was lost in Captain Parry's last expedition. It is not generally recollected, we believe, that Captain P. directed all the provisions and stores saved from the Fury to be landed and carefully covered up with seals and tarpaulins, in the event of another voyage being made. This fact, however, was well known to Captain Ross, and it was his intention to proceed to this spot, and there re-supply himself with those great necessities for the further prosecution of his voyage. To this point, then, it is obvious Captain R. would exert every effort to arrive, and it is here that Captain Back ardently hopes to gain the wished for tidings of his long lost friend. May providence in its infinite wisdom crown his labours with success.

Should it appear, and the fact can easily be ascertained, that Captain Ross has been there, and not at point Turnagain, the conclusion will be irresistible that he has been carried down by the ice into the bight formed by the Melville Peninsula and the northern edge of the continent. This bight is probably studded with islands, shoals, &c. and there perhaps Ross may be found frozen up, or his vessel wrecked, and he with his companions living with the Esquimaux. Should such be the fact, and should Captain Back there find him, the imagination may easily conceive the tumultuous joy of such a meeting. We will not attempt to describe such a scene in such a place, under such circumstances; nor to depict the gratitude of one, and the happiness of the other, as they rush into each other's embraces. They are feelings which monarchs might envy, and will be enjoyed in their full luxury, not only by the two gallant and intrepid chiefs, but by every individual who are partners in their fate. But turning from this exciting and glowing picture, and supposing that Ross has not penetrated the Inlet and arrived at the wreck of the Fury, Captain Back will, after a feeling of the deepest disappointment, abandon the main design of his voyage and turn to the objects of science connected therewith. In pursuance of this part of his plan, he will pass down and survey the western coast of Melville Peninsula as well as that part of the northern edge of the continent between the Peninsula and the mouth of the great Fish river which he descended, and thus make out the whole coast from Regent's Inlet to Point Turnagain, which, together with the discoveries of Sir John Franklin, will make known the entire shore from the 90th to 150th degree of longitude. This will be something gained for science at any rate. Another object of Captain Back will be to discover the magnetic pole, which is known to exist on the west coast of Melville Peninsula, as laid down in our diagram. Having completed these observations, Captain Back will retrace his steps, and we hope, revisit us in New-York about three years hence.

Captain Back is accompanied by Mr. King, of the Royal College of Surgeons, London, in the capacity of Surgeon and Naturalist to the expedition, and also by three of his former companions. At Great Slave Lake he will be joined by a party of Hudson's Bay people, in addition to the voyageurs which he will take with him from Canada. It is most gratifying to state, that the Hudson's Bay Company have extended every facility to the enterprise, and have given Captain Back a Commission investing him with full command throughout their extensive territories, and unlimited authority over all their servants, the Governor alone excepted.

Honorable Conduct.—We learn from the Boston Daily Advertiser, that on the arrival of Captain Back and his associates at New-York in the Hibernia, the Collector of that port took upon himself the responsibility of admitting the equipment of the expedition free of duty, until he could receive definite instructions respecting it from the Treasury Department at Washington. There can be no doubt (says the Adv.) that the officers of Government will do all in their power to facilitate an enterprise which is of equal importance as respects the interests of science and humanity.

The Directors of the Hudson River Steam Boat Association also liberally offered Captain Back and the Gentlemen of his suite, the use of the Steam-Boat Ohio, for their conveyance from New-York to Albany.

We are enabled at the conclusion of the publication of the Laws passed at the last Session of the Legislature, to present our readers with a few of the latest particulars of European intelligence. The arrivals during the past week on this side the Atlantic have been numerous, and generally short passages have been made. The Ship Jeon Hastie, 20 days from Greenock to Halifax, brings the latest dates which are to the 23rd of March:—we have copied from the Halifax prints the substance of every thing new brought by her. Several important Bills are in progress through Parliament, and Ministers are actively engaged in concerting measures which we sincerely trust will be for the permanent happiness and peace of the British Nation. The Irish coercion Bill has passed a second reading in the House of Commons, by a large majority. For Continental affairs, we refer our readers to our extracts.

PROSPECTUS

OF A
WEEKLY NEWSPAPER, TO BE PUBLISHED AT FREDERICTON,
AND CALLED
THE WATCHMAN.
"Constitutional Rights."

THE want of a LIBERAL NEWSPAPER PRESS at the Seat of Government in this Province, has for a long time been generally lamented; and to supply that want, "THE WATCHMAN" is about being issued.

As the principles of THE WATCHMAN are intended to be purely and truly liberal, all radicalism shall be avoided; and while the discussion of any subject connected with the interest of the Country, will readily find a place in its columns, every thing like personal invective and scurrility shall be rejected.

Native Talent shall meet with especial encouragement; and the essays of Youthful Genius will be gratefully received, and kindly treated.

THE WATCHMAN shall never slumber or sleep. "Constitutional Rights" being its motto, any measure of Government whereby those rights may be invaded, shall be vigorously opposed; and expediency alone shall induce THE WATCHMAN to sanction an innovation.

Official oppression shall be exposed, and all the secret springs of Government shall be closely inspected. A narrow watch shall be kept upon Public Men and Public Measures: the former shall receive censure or commendation as they may deserve, and the latter shall be fearlessly and independently discussed.

Every endeavour will be used to give a fair and impartial report of Legislative Debates and Proceedings; and the individual improvement or deterioration of our Representatives shall be noted after each Session.

Unceasing attention shall be paid to the Political and Physical Geography of the Province in general, and of the County of York in particular; and every endeavour shall be made to discover to the world, in a true light, the capabilities of the Country.

The Agricultural interest of the province shall be attended to, and a portion of THE WATCHMAN shall always be set apart exclusively for that very important subject.

From the numerous and respectable pledges which have been made to the Proprietor, he can assure the Public that the "Original" Department will be constantly well supplied with communications on varied and important subjects.

The Proprietor asks for a trial—and he flatters himself the decision of an enlightened Public will be favorable.

TERMS.—THE WATCHMAN will be printed on a Royal Sheet and published every Monday, and delivered to Subscribers in town for 12s. 6d. per annum.—To those who reside at a distance, whose papers are forwarded by mail, the price will be 15s. which includes the postage.—Payable half yearly in advance.

The first Number will be issued on the second Monday in May next.
G. K. LUGRIN, Proprietor.
