

face their bright footsteps, but while future ages point out their traces, many hearts will beat high, and many an eye brighten and moisten with sympathy. One unspeakable and most enviable privilege they enjoy in the assurance, that they are followed with the blessings, prayers and sympathies of the civilized world—that their cause is one on which we can, with unfaltering heart and lips, implore the benediction of Heaven; and may, without presumption or impiety, cherish the persuasion that there is joy in the presence of the Angels of God, and one voice of gratulation from earth and heaven on this pious, and holy, and benevolent design. When the Spartan, Leonidas, with his few patriotic followers, died gloriously at Thermopylae, martyrs to their country, and to the liberty of Greece—this simple sublime inscription was engraven on the monument erected to their memory by their grateful country—"Go, traveller, and tell at Lacedaemon, that we died here, in obedience to her laws." A nobler eulogy will be paid to those who are now perishing their lives in the cause of humanity by their country—by the world—by posterity—they will have their names enrolled among the excellent ones of the earth, the choice few who have been the real friends and benefactors of humanity—their glory will not fade, it will flourish and brighten as the world improves, as benevolence and virtue rise and prevail among men—it will be recorded in the annals of Heaven, and the blended with the praises of eternity.

Montreal, April 21, 1833.

MONTEAL, 25th April, 1833.

DESTRUCTIVE CONFLAGRATION.—At a quarter before eight last evening, while the company were assembling for the Soiree Musicale of the Messrs. Hermann, at the British American Hotel, the alarm of fire in that noble edifice roused the numerous inmates from their respective occupations, and before almost the alarm had reached the street, this splendid hotel exhibited one mass of fire, extending its sway from one floor to another, producing a scene of awful grandeur and desolation, scarcely paralleled in the history of Montreal. About thirty ladies and gentlemen had assembled in the large ball room to attend the concert—the boards and other inmates were engaged at tea, when the blaze of a lamp, suspended on the branch of one of the evergreens, which formed the decoration of the passage at the Bachelor's hall, and which have remained undisturbed since that period, communicated with the whole range of trees, and produced one instantaneous conflagration, which raged with the most destructive and irresistible fury through the entire building, leaving the inmates to secure their flight by ladders and through windows, possessed only of the clothes they wore, without even a moment's opportunity to secure any of their baggage or property. With difficulty the concert room was cleared by taking the company down by ladders, placed to the front windows, the flames rushing into the room from the burning evergreens in the passage, and prohibiting all egress by that channel. The scene of confusion that ensued, baffles all human description, and all attempts to secure property proved hopeless. Some articles of furniture were removed at the only favourable moment, but, we regret to say, that many of the boards lost all they possessed. Fortunately for the cause of science and philanthropy, Captain Back secured his baggage and scientific instruments, which had been so arranged as to be ready for his movement to Lachine that evening. The Messrs. Hermann & Co. who were about commencing the concert, lost every article of money, property and instruments they possessed, the result of a long and honorable professional career, including among the latter a violoncello of peculiar power, and which cost nearly £200. Mr. Lidel Hermann, in making a desperate rush to secure his trunk, got himself dreadfully burned in the head and face, and is otherwise much injured, but was at last dragged away and saved by the active interference of Mr. Kerrison, of the John Bull inn. A piano, loaned by Mr. Duffy for that evening's entertainment, valued at £120, was also consumed. The houses of Messrs. Walker, Pothier and Mondelot, were occasionally on fire, but through the activity of the various engines were speedily saved. All attempts to extinguish the fire in the British American Hotel having proved unsuccessful, the whole building became in forty minutes a heap of ruins. Every eye was now turned to the Bonsecours Church, the steeple and spire of which had already caught the flames, and which, it was generally thought would spread downwards to the building, but owing to the practice of the engines on the roof and eaves, and to the most heroic devotion on the part of Mr. Jos. Poitras, carpenter, assisted by a soldier whose name we have not learned, the church was saved. Poitras and his companion cut a hole into the steeple with an axe, surrounded by the smoke and flames of the burning spire, as well as ascending from Rasco's Hotel, and after exhibiting the most daring courage and insensibility to personal danger, Poitras effectually succeeded in cutting off the communication of the church with the fire, by throwing down the burning ball and cross, which he effected with an axe and saw. The Theatre escaped uninjured, owing to a fire proof wall between that building and Rasco's.

The entire furniture of St. Paul's and the Grand Lodge of the district, including all the original records, &c. were totally consumed, as well as their Charter, which was the oldest in the country. The escape of Mrs. Stephen Sewell and her family, who were at tea, at the time in their private apartments, was secured by a descent from the window by a ladder. The lady has lost, we regret to add, every particle of personal property, including a valuable piano, plate, papers and family records. The engines were as promptly on the spot as the emergency could permit, and were worked with their usual numbers, and with great effect in securing the safety of the adjoining houses. It is impossible to do justice to both the officers and men of the Garrison, from the moment of the first alarm to the present period. Colonel Mac Dougall showed them an example of zeal and activity which they nobly imitated, and at six o'clock this morning might be seen the Commandant and Captain Forbes of the 79th, giving directions to the guards placed over the miserable remnants of half an hour's destruction. We have heard that money, plate, and valuable property to a considerable amount, belonging to some of the boarders, was consumed. It was totally impossible, from the rapid progress of the flames, to secure any object, but personal safety, and that in many instances under circumstances peculiarly miraculous. The loss of property on this occasion, cannot even be conjectured; in a small compass, it exceeded any moderate calculation, as may be inferred from the following statement of the insurances effected:—

The amount of insurance on the building, and the furniture in the same, belonging to Mr. Molson, was £3,300 equally divided between the Phoenix and Alliance Offices. Mr. Rasco's furniture was insured at the Alliance for £2000, and the furniture of the Grand Lodge at £200. The estimated loss is much beyond £9,000. The Theatre Royal was insured at the Quebec and Phoenix Offices, but no damage has been done. The house of the Hon. Mr. Pothier was insured at the Phoenix Office, and those of Messrs. Walker and Mondelot were insured at the Alliance office. Small amounts may be for slight damages to those properties.

We regret to say, that among accidents, of a less serious nature, Doctor Robertson was a sufferer: passing through Notre Dame street, at the time in his gig, the horse took fright and upset the carriage, when Doctor Robertson received a slight contusion, but, we are happy to say, he is fast recovering.

MONTEAL, April 27.—On Thursday morning, Captain Back, Dr. King, and the other persons composing this band of adventurous heroes (accompanied by Colonel Mac Dougall and several other civil and military gentlemen) proceeded to Lachine, and after breakfasting with James Keith, Esquire, at the Hon. Hudson's Bay Company house, embarked there, about noon, in canoes on their voyage to the Arctic regions.—Gazette.

UNITED STATES.

GREAT FIRE AT CUMBERLAND.

On the 14th inst. about 10 o'clock, P. M. a very destructive fire occurred in Cumberland, Md. about 130 miles west of Baltimore. It commenced in a cabinet-maker's shop in the north part of the centre of the town, and the wind being high it soon communicated to other buildings, and was not checked in its ravages, until the very heart of the town was in complete ruins, and a large number of families are now without homes, most of them not even saving more than the clothing upon their backs. The loss is great; but one store remains in the town, (Bruce and Beall's) whose loss is very considerable. A letter dated the 15th inst. says, "There are at least one hundred and fifty houses burnt to the ground; every tavern and store is consumed; many did not even save their wearing apparel. I hope the benevolence of Baltimore will do much for us—I think if the matter is properly represented to them, they will do something for our distressed inhabitants." A meeting was held on the subject on the 15th, by which it was ascertained that the entire business portion of Cumberland has been destroyed. All the taverns and stores are in ashes; about thirty flourishing mechanics, all in prosperous business, have been reduced to ruin, and their families left without shelter to cover them. The three physicians of the town have lost nearly all their property and medicines. It is believed that two thirds of the inhabitants are homeless. The total loss was estimated at two hundred and sixty-two thousand dollars, viz: 7 Merchants, whose loss in personal property and goods, is $94,000; three Physicians $12,000; 3 Hotels, including the loss of the owners, $50,000; 30 Mechanics, real and personal property, stock, &c. $71,000; Citizens not included in this description, $31,000; Citizens not residing in the town, $14,000. A committee has been appointed to draft an address to the people of the United States, inviting their aid in behalf of the Cumberland sufferers.
