subject of discussion in the London papers. The dispersion of the insurgents at Saint Denis and Saint Charles was known there, but intelligence of the route of those who collected together at Grand Brule had not yet been received. Of course they had neither information of the ridiculous attempt of M'Kenzie in Upper Canada.-We perceive that The Morning Chronicle, evidently writing by authority, endeavours to allay public apprehension. That paper says, that the despatches received from Sir JOHN COLBORNE, represent the outbreak as in no degree alarming, and that he had not even asked for reinforcement. The Ministers, however, seem determined on sending them, as from various quarters, we have accounts of military movements for the British Provinces. Mr. Roebuck, formerly agent of the French Canadian party, when in the House of Commons, had addressed a letter to the British public on the state of affairs in Lower Canada, in which he boldly asserts that the citizens of this country will flock in great numbers to the assistance of the French Canadians, and

Perhaps the most formi able source of danger brought into view by the advices of vesterday, is the disposition manifested by a part of the people, if not also by the Government of the United States, to make common cause with the Canadian insurgents. Should this disposition prevail to any considerable extent in the American Union, it is clear that the struggle in which Great Britain is involved is a struggle from which there is no possibility of honorable retreat, and which can only be successfully maintained by the prompt, unsparing and energetic employment of the utmost powers and resources of the State!

----The Quebec Gazette, published by authority, posed of contains a proclamation by His Excellency the GOVERNOR IN CHIEF, dated the 7th instant, appointing and commanding "a General Thanksgiving to ALMIGHTY GOD, for having appeased the late seditious tumults, and put an end to the rebellion which has been so lately raised up amongst us, and restored the great and public blessings of peace; to be observed throughout Her Majesty's Province of Lower Canada, on Monday, the twenty sixth February instant."
