

on the assurance of the gentleman that he had nothing to do in the affair, deponent, with two other servants, carried the deceased to the Pavilion. Recognised the body shown him as the one he saw in the morning. Does not know any of the parties.

J. B. Lanouette deposed that about 5 A. M., he saw four persons in Ross' field near the Grand stand, walking about, that he was then about four acres from them; but seeing two of the party take positions as if for fighting a duel, he approached to within two and a half acres from them; that the antagonists appeared to him about fifty feet apart, that he heard the words "ready, fire," when one pistol was discharged, and one of the parties leaped two or three feet in the air, and fell down, upon which he went up to him, and saw him expire. He was ordered off the ground, and at first refused, but afterwards went away, but previous to doing so, he addressed the individual whom he supposed had shot the other, as follows:—"You have made a bad beginning of the day," that he got no reply, but that the individual addressed threw the pistol on the ground, and began to sob; the other two knelt down by the body, laid their hands on the breast of the deceased, and appeared highly agitated and grieved. Deponent does not know any of the parties, did not see the deceased or any other person attempt to leave the ground, after the word "ready," and before the word "fire" was given.

A. H. David, Esquire, M. D., deposed, that on an external examination of the body, he discovered a gun shot wound in the right side, which had fractured the seventh rib, and had taken a direction backwards and downwards, coming out on the left side about one and a half inches lower than the wound on the right side, and also wounded the inner part of the left arm, corresponding to the wound on the left side. A large quantity of blood had evidently escaped from the wound, but does not know if enough, of itself, to cause death. The Jury then decided that Dr. David should open the body, which he did, and gave the following additional testimony. Opened the body, raised the breast bone or sternum, found the lungs and heart quite collapsed, and great effusion of blood on both sides of the chest, also some small pieces of bone. On examining the lower lobe of the right lung, he found an opening corresponding to the wound on the right side, which passed through the back bone or vertebra, cutting the spinal marrow. On introducing the finger into the opening, he found the bone completely shattered, portions of which he produced. Following the direction of the wound, he found the lower lobe of the left lung perforated in a slanting direction, and the wound making its exit between the eighth and ninth ribs on the left side; has no doubt the wound was occasioned by the perforation of a bullet. Identified the body as that of the deceased Major Warde; is of opinion that the right arm must have been raised horizontally, or drawn back in a constrained position, or it would have been injured by the bullet.

W. H. Laverock, cabinet maker, residing at the Pavilion, deposed, that about half past five o'clock in the morning, he was awake by the knocking at the door, and on looking over the window, saw a gentleman who asked him if the landlord was at home, and that he wished a room to put a gentleman in who had been shot in a duel. Before he opened the door, he looked out at the back window of the house, and saw a person on the ground, with two or three round him. The door was subsequently opened, and the body placed in a room, on a handkerchief which the deponent procured for that purpose. While washing the body a bullet fell out from the left arm. A person who styled himself Captain Mayne's servant, told deponent that deceased was Major Warde, and two other gentlemen were Captain Mayne and Dr. Knox, all of the Royal Regiment, that he did not know who the other parties were, though the gentleman who shot Major Warde lived near the Haymarket, and that his name was Sweeney. They all appeared very sorry at what had occurred.

"Friday evening.—The funeral of the late Major Warde took place this afternoon at 3 o'clock, the mournful procession moving from his late residence in Dalhousie Square along Notre Dame and Bonsecours streets, thence across the Camp de Mars, Craig street, and up the main street to the old burying ground. The whole of the Regiment to which he belonged, with their arms reversed, were in front; then followed the bands of the three Regiments, the body, and all the officers in garrison as mourners, including Major General Clitherow. Real grief appeared on the countenance of not only those in the procession, but also on those of the thousands of spectators that walked with the procession and lined the streets where it passed.

Loss of the Steamer Gazelle.—The Steamer Gazelle, Capt. John Leavitt, owned by Mr. James Whitney, of this city, and employed on the Bay of Fundy, went ashore on Quaco Ledges, in a thick fog, on the morning of Wednesday last, and became a total wreck. She was on her passage from this place to Windsor. The following particulars have been hastily gathered from a passenger.—The Steamer left St. John on Wednesday morning last at two o'clock, (then very dark and foggy) bound for Windsor, and at half past seven, struck on the top of the Quaco Ledges—tide about half ebb, and quite calm. When the tide left the boat, she did not appear to be much injured, and every exertion was then made to caulk the seams which had been strained; but the returning flood was accompanied with a heavy rolling sea, which bilged the boat, when she filled as the tide rose. The passengers and crew then took to the three boats, and at two P. M. left the Steamer, and made the best of their way to the Quaco shore. It was clear at this time, but the fog set in again very soon and they remained in the boat till half-past nine in the evening, when they landed on Quaco Beach. There were twenty-five persons on board, and the boats were so crowded that it was found necessary to leave behind a great part of the baggage. Immediately on the arrival in town of the news of the disaster, the steamer Nova Scotia was despatched to the spot with the means of raising her, but returned yesterday without having been able to discover her.—Saint John Courier, June 2.
