A CANADIAN

(Captain Frederick George Scott, 14th Bat.)

THE glad and brave young heart
That came across the sea;
He longed to play his part
In crushing tyranny.

The mountains and the plains
Of his beloved land
Were wine within his veins,
And gave an iron hand.

He murmured the thought of fear,
He murmured not in pain;
The call of God was clear,
The path of duty plain.

Beneath the shower of lead,
Of poison and of fire,
He charged and fought and bled,
Abashed with one desire.

O Canada, with pride
Look up and greet the morn,
The youth of thy wounded side
Shall bleed of men is born.

Vanmontreal, April 27, 1915.

THE INCORRIGIBLES IN HOSPITAL

On the first bed on the left, as you come into the ward was a red-haired portly fellow of five-and-twenty, with a cradle to keep the clothes off his wounded leg.

"Yes, Sir," he said to my greeting: "keep-cap for me, an' rather a mess of it. I haven't quite decided whether I'll have the leg off, or just go about with a stiff tin. I'm leavin' that for the doctor. It's his funeral, after all, ain't it?"

"I hope it won't be a case of amputation," I said, then, waving my arm vaguely. "And what is it like out there?"

"First-rate, Sir! First-rate, if it wasn't for those bloomin' allments what they deals out for matches. When I got this bit o' shell in the knee it hurt me for a bit, but I soon got picked up, an' I was all right 'till the Red Cross chap says, 'Ain't you let on, o' course, an' as soon as I got down to the Base Hospital I could get civillised wear vests, so that was all right. But them allments—what they call 'em'—splinted hundreds of our pore fellers. I give you my word!"

I dispensed cigarettes of the peculiar kind that Tommy seems to love best, produced an illustrated paper, and after shaking hands with all to the next cot.

"Well, I said, 'and how are you?"

"Oh, fair to middlin'! I was in luck's right way up to Noove Camp, but after that the o'ly jam we ever got was plum, an' you can get pretty tired o' plum jam if you've enough of it, even without a bullet through the blasted fashion, an' 'Ain't you let on, o' course, an' as soon as I got down to the Base Hospital I could get civillised wear vests, so that was all right. But them allments—what they call 'em'—splinted hundreds of our pore fellers. I give you my word!"

News in Brief

The annual convention of the Union of New Brunswick Municipalities will be held in Fredericton on August 25 and 26.

The steamship Terraces has been blown up in the St. John's harbor, and the ship was destroyed. She was bound for Liverpool for Yokohama. She was the last of the Blue Funnel line of ships owned by the company.

A plebiscite vote on the prohibition of the sale of liquor in the Province of Alberta was taken on July 22. Prohibition was carried by a majority of nearly two to one throughout the Province, one city only, Lethbridge, giving a majority against. The new Liquor Prohibition Act goes into force on July 1, 1916.

PEER'S SON SENTENCED

At Sussex Assizes on July 5, the Hon. Jacob John Aulley, 32, younger brother of Lord Hastings, pleaded "Guilty" to various charges of forgery at Brighton and was sentenced to 18 months imprisonment. The judge said that in view of the prisoner's ill health, he would not impose a sentence of hard labour.

It was stated that prisoner was convicted of fraud in South Africa in 1913. He afterwards served in the Natal Light Horse, came to England, and was gazetted second lieutenant in the North Somerset Yeomanry in June. Two days later his commission was cancelled. He opened an account at Charing Cross Bank with his own allowance and advance pay. He received a book of 25 cheques and on his first cheque withdrew the amount paid in. The remaining 15 cheques were presented in payment of various accounts, the prisoner's practice being to draw a cheque for an amount greater than that of the amount he was paying and to receive the balance in money. The total value of these cheques was $122.

It was suggested on the prisoner's behalf that he was subject to attacks of mental fever. The family were willing to make good the money obtained, and the prisoner himself would also probably help.

The judge said he was satisfied the prisoner was a thoroughly fraudulent person.—The Times.

White, of St. John; and a number of delegates from the various hospitals and medical societies in the province.

The meeting was held at the Hotel Fredericton, and was attended by a large number of medical men from all parts of the province. The program of the meeting was very full, and included a number of interesting papers and discussions.

FISHERIES ENGINEER FOR ONTARIO

Canada is certain to be visited by increasing numbers of tourists and holiday visitors during the next few years. Conditions in Europe and in other parts of the world preclude the possibility of a large number of tourists visiting Canada in the near future. For this reason, it is necessary to encourage tourists by perfecting and adding to her many natural attractions. The recent action of the Ontario Government in appointing a consulting fisheries engineer and a consulting fisheries biologist, will be a great help in this regard. The new fisheries engineer, Mr. J. B. Fielding, F. Z. S., of Barrie, Ontario, and his work will be to examine the waters of the province to determine scientifically their suitability for the various species of fishes. He will also be a guide to develop new and attractive fishing grounds for holiday sportsmen. Another important branch of the new officer's work will be to attempt to improve the strain of some of the Ontario fishes, which have steadily deteriorated during recent years. Mr. Fielding has an excellent opportunity for performing valuable public service. Conservation Bulletin for July.

The remaining 15 cheques were presented in payment of various accounts, the prisoner's practice being to draw a cheque for an amount greater than that of the amount he was paying and to receive the balance in money. The total value of these cheques was $122.

It was suggested on the prisoner's behalf that he was subject to attacks of mental fever. The family were willing to make good the money obtained, and the prisoner himself would also probably help.

The judge said he was satisfied the prisoner was a thoroughly fraudulent person.—The Times.

FISHERIES ENGINEER FOR ONTARIO

Canada is certain to be visited by increasing numbers of tourists and holiday visitors during the next few years. Conditions in Europe and in other parts of the world preclude the possibility of a large number of tourists visiting Canada in the near future. For this reason, it is necessary to encourage tourists by perfecting and adding to her many natural attractions. The recent action of the Ontario Government in appointing a consulting fisheries engineer and a consulting fisheries biologist, will be a great help in this regard. The new fisheries engineer, Mr. J. B. Fielding, F. Z. S., of Barrie, Ontario, and his work will be to examine the waters of the province to determine scientifically their suitability for the various species of fishes. He will also be a guide to develop new and attractive fishing grounds for holiday sportsmen. Another important branch of the new officer's work will be to attempt to improve the strain of some of the Ontario fishes, which have steadily deteriorated during recent years. Mr. Fielding has an excellent opportunity for performing valuable public service. Conservation Bulletin for July.
