DOCTORS DID HER NO GOOD.

By the time Miss L. L. Hanson, Waterford, N. B., had taken Three Boxes of MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS She Was Completely Cured.

She writes us as follows:—
"Gentlemen,—I feel it my duty to express to you the benefit I have derived from Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. A year ago last spring I began to have heart failure. At first I would have to stop working and lie down. I then got so bad that I had to give up altogether and go to bed. I had several doctors attend me, but they did me no good. I got so tired until I tried a friend to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I sent to the store for a box, and by the time I had taken three-quarters of it I began to get relief, and by the time I had taken three boxes I was completely cured. I feel very grateful to your medicine for what it has done for me.—Miss L. L. HANSON, Waterford, N. B."

CITY GETS RELIGION

GREAT REFORM

Mayor Leads Way to Mourners' Bench, City Council Follows

Ocean City, N. J. Feb 23—The millenium has come in Ocean City After a ten days' campaign by an evangelist of the name of Webber against the world, the flesh and the devil, the only feature of the town that savors in the slightest degree of worldliness is the proximity of Atlantic City, just across Egg harbor from here.

Mayor Joseph C. Champion, his brother, the city treasurer, and Postmaster Sutton led the way to the mourners' bench in the First Methodist Episcopal Church, where the revival is being held. They were followed one by one by the members of the Common Council until but one of the body remains unreclaimed.

Last night the meeting of the Council, which hitherto has distinguished it from worldly-wise lawmakers of other cities, was opened with prayer, and after the usual adjournment the city fathers tarried a while in the chamber for service of song and further devotions.

The Rev Pennington Carson, pastor of the First M. E. Church, said to-day that "out of the whole population of 10,000 in the town, there remained only fifty who had not confessed their salvation at his church within the last ten days."

A visitor finds this startling statement easy to believe. When he alights from the train, as happened to strangers who arrived to-day, he is met by deputations of citizens, under the leadership of a church officer.

"Are you saved?" asks the spokesman, and if the visitor replies negatively or seeks to dodge the issue by equivocation, he is deluged with tracts and pressed to attend the meetings at the First Church.

The wave of revival has swept the place from end to end. The younger people are foremost in helping the movement along.

The members of the Ocean City Athletic Club, a social organization in which card playing and dancing were permitted, last night passed a resolution barring all cards from the clubhouse and calling upon dealers in the city to destroy their stock of playing cards. The dealers responded gladly and all the cards were torn up and thrown into the street.

But one of the greatest surprises of the week met the residents of the town this morning when they went abroad. Running off the main street of the town in a narrow alley darkly suspected of being the abiding place of a certain "speakeasy," or resort where the sale of liquor is carried on. Whether this place was conducted without the knowledge of the city officials or with their countenance was a mooted question among the residents in this prohibition community.

This morning the alley was decorated with a litter of splintered glass from curb to curb. Beer stood in puddles along the gutters and the scent that arose from the mess informed the citizens that during that night the proprietor of the "speakeasy" had destroyed his stock in trade.

Ever since the arrival of Evangelist Webber two weeks ago, the daily and nightly services at the First Church have been the scenes of the wildest religious enthusiasm ever seen in this city, which occupied during the summer season as a camp-meeting community.

On Thursday night the revival service began at 9 o'clock, after the usual mid week prayer meeting Rev Webber addressed the meeting in a powerful exhortation, and soon the congregation was surging about the pulpit. It was after daylight before the meeting closed.

SUNDAY LAWS

Position in New Brunswick

"Whoever shall openly desecrate the Lord's Day, commonly called Sunday, by shooting, gaming, sporting, playing, hunting, drinking, or frequenting tipping houses, or by servile labor (works of mercy or necessity excepted), shall for every offence pay a fine not exceeding forty shillings, or be committed to jail for a term not exceeding four days."

This law, passed previous to Confederation, but never repealed, is the law of New Brunswick regarding Sabbath observance, now that the subsequent legislation on the subject has been declared unconstitutional. A lawyer who has had much to do with the enforcement of Sabbath laws, said to the Globe to-day that this old law, passed in 18th Victoria, still remained on the statute book, and under it there would be opportunity for those interested in the strict observance of the Sabbath to take action. The main difficulty would arise over the question of what is meant by the term servile labor. Magistrate Ritchie had once recorded a conviction under this act against a city merchant who had opened his store on the Sabbath. The defence contended that the merchant could not be charged with doing servile work, as he was working for himself. Apparently there is a nice point here for argument. On the face of it, the man working for others might be considered as performing servile labor, but courts might not hold that this applied to the merchant who conducted his own business on the Sabbath. There is also room for wide discussion as to what is meant by works of necessity and mercy. The street cars, the ferry and such like might be held to be works of necessity, as might delivering milk, running hotels, etc. The minister preaching in his pulpit and the paid organist and choir singer might also come under the category of those performing works of mercy, while the servant at home preparing their dinner would hardly be doing either a work of mercy or necessity. The question is a very broad one. The legislature of New Brunswick, so the lawyers said, could repeal this old act if it so desired, but it would seem to be doubtful if it has any right to amend it or to give a meaning to its provisions. It was pointed out to the Globe as somewhat strange the very indefinite form in which the act was framed, when old acts in England and other provinces were careful to state more clearly the kinds of work that could not be performed on the Sabbath.

The reporter raised the question if the recent decision would not affect the provisions of the liquor law regarding Sunday selling, but the lawyer said no. The Supreme Court of Canada has held the act to be legal and the Sunday provisions are merely regulations in an act the legislature is admitted to have had the right to pass.

MR. J. H. KELLY'S SPEECH

A nation that turns its mind to agriculture is always a prosperous nation, and so it is with a province. Show me a nation that devotes its time to agriculture, and I will show you a nation that is strong and great.

To-day the world over we read of troubles and uprisings, of discord and discontent, of large masses of men defying the constitutions of their country, but these happenings are never found in the agricultural classes of society, and that is why I say that our province is destined to become great and strong for the great masses of our population is made up of people, whose interests are concentrated in their farms and homesteads.

The Grand result achieved by our farmers produced at the St. Louis fair is one that is most gratifying. At this great exhibition we find products and farm produce coming, not only from the new world, but also from the old. The best farming countries sent their best produce. The Province of Quebec was of the number, and the Province of Quebec carried off some of the highest honors.

This result is one which will be most beneficial. It speaks volumes in favor of our government which decided to enter into this great competition with the rest of the world. It proclaims to the universe the superiority of our Canadian soil, and above all is a great and lasting tribute to our brave Canadian farmers.

Viewing from the present time the wonderful progress that has been accomplished in the province of Quebec, and lifting the veil of the future, we cannot do otherwise than come to the conclusion, that the future of the country is one of proud destiny.

We have in the province of Quebec the essential ingredients to become a solid substantial commanding factor in the great confederation of which we form a part. Our territory commencing at L'Anse au Blanc Sablon, at the entry of the strait of Belle Isle, the gateway of the Atlantic, and stretching westward to Lake Temiscamingue, covers an area of 347,000 square miles, that is to say a territory as large as France and Germany, or three times as large as the Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland. In this immense stretch of land we have some of the finest water ways to be found on the face of the globe. The noble St. Lawrence, with its wide extending branches, penetrating to the very heart of our country, offers facilities unsurpassed anywhere as natural powers of commerce. Our water powers are many, and they excel not only in their numbers, but also in their power and impetuosity. Our lumbering interests which since a few years only have commenced to be developed, and our great forests still unpenetrated contain the wealth of our people. The ground on which we tread, which yields from its surface alone the bread of our people, hides still deeper in its bosom, minerals which when explored will attract the attention of nations. The facilities and advantages of manufacturing pulp, which is such a demand of the world at large is another of the many resources with which Providence has endowed us. The great district to the north of us, which was annexed to our Province in 1858, containing an area of nearly 123,000 miles, promises much for the future. This district is as yet not completely explored. It is true, but from what we know of it we feel safe in saying that we have there the nucleus of another great and large province. Were the present government so disposed, by a stroke of the pen it could by relinquishing our claim to a part of this new district, wipe out our large provincial debt and remain with a balance on the credit side.

When we consider for a moment what was accomplished during the last century by our people, and the circumstances under which they labored, we compound with our position to-day our future works begin still.

We commenced the last century with a handful of men without means or resources, scattered here and there along the banks of the St. Lawrence; the two grand elements forming our population of To-day were at war. I might say with one another; and discord and discontent prevailed throughout the land; the next step saw our forefathers engaged in the serious war of 1812, which called to the battle fields the flower of our youth; no sooner had that word passed over when we had to have recourse to the rebellion of 1837; then followed the wrangling and fighting against the family compact that held the weight of power in Upper Canada and it was only in 1847 that we se-

Womens should Walk More.

Doctors who have closely studied the matter unhesitatingly assert that walking is the best exercise a woman can engage in for the development of her physical charms. The woman who is in the habit of taking a car ride every time she wishes to travel a few hundred yards is the one who has a bad complexion and complains of growing stout. She will tell you that her spine troubles her and that her feet are rheumatic; that she cannot walk—positively must not do so. If you are among the number, take a walk every day, give up the car habit unless you have some real riding to do or time is an object and every day walk a little farther. An excellent thing is exercise, and if you do not find walking agreeable with you, then take to the gymnasium. After you have tried all the indoor physical exercises try the open air ones.
