1100 MEN KILLED

In Mine Explosion in Northern France

FEW RESCUED

Europe's Greater Mining Disaster Depopulates French Village

PARIS, March, 10.—A mining catastrophe of incalculable horror and magnitude has stricken the great coal centre of northern France. An explosion of fire damp at 7 o'clock this morning carried death and destruction through out the work of coal mine centres at Courrières, and fire followed the explosion, making rescues difficult and almost impossible. The intense excitement and confusion in the vicinity prevented early estimates of the exact loss of life, but a despatch received here at 2:35 p.m. gave 1,045 miners entombed and probably lost. At 8:45 o'clock this evening a brief despatch from Lille announced the awful total of 1,193 dead. All France has been profoundly shocked by the magnitude of the disaster, which is said to be the greatest in the history of continental mining.

President Fallieres sent his secretary, accompanied by Minister of Public Works Gauthier and Minister of the Interior Dubief, on a special train to the scene of the disaster. The ministerial crisis was temporarily forgotten, senators and deputies joining in the universal public manifestations of sorrow. SCENE OF CATASTROPHE The scene of the catastrophe is the mountainous mining region near Lens, in the department of Pas De Calais. Here are huddled small hamlets of the miners, who operate the most productive coal mines in France. The subterranean chambers form a series of tunnels. Six of the outlets are near Lens, and others are at Courrières, Verdun and many other points. The output of these mines is practically combustible and is largely used in the manufacture of gas and smelting. About 2,000 miners work the group of mines, and with their families make a population of from 6,000 to 8,000 souls.

The catastrophe took place shortly after 1,795 men had descended the mine this morning. There was a deafening explosion, which was followed by the cages and mining apparatus being hurled from the mouth of the Courrières mine. Men and horses nearby outside the mine were either stunned or killed. The roof of the mine office was blown off.

PARIS, March 11.—The worst fears as to the enormity of the mine disaster in the Courrières district of the Pas De Calais Saturday morning have been realized. The death list stands at 1,100, and the whole of the region stands appalled at the terrible tragedy which had brought sorrow to six thousand fathers, mothers, wives and children. The vast mortuary camp is under military guard, 400 soldiers having arrived there to assist in holding in check the crowds of distracted mourners. For a time hope had been held out to the people that the volunteers, who include a number of those who were successful in escaping at the time of the explosion, do not hesitate to descend the shaft. Some of them have been down more than a dozen times. One of them, after having brought up fourteen bodies, was suffocated in his fifteenth attempt, and it is feared that other fatalities among the volunteers will follow, as the air in the mines is still impregnated with noxious gases. A number of the men engaged in rescue work have already been brought to the surface unconscious, and as they were driven to their homes in closed carriages the women followed and broke the windows, suspecting that bodies were being hurried away.

Several miners have come up from pit No 11, which is connected with pit No 3. They effected their escape by means of a ladder, and as they came from the mouth of the pit they appeared to be bordering on madness. All of them were more or less injured. When asked about their comrades, one of them said: "It is horrible. All of them are dead."

A MINER'S STORY A young miner who escaped from pit No 4, where about 500 men remain, said: "I was working about fifty feet from the shaft. Suddenly I felt a puff of hot gas and started toward the shaft. I was half suffocated and was unable to advance further because of the fumes. Finally, however I succeeded in reaching the cage and came up in it."

tapping on pipes by the imprisoned men had been heard, but gradually this hope vanished, and the people demanded admission to see the bodies, and even threatened to break through the cordon of troops, who had the greatest difficulty from keeping the crowds from the pit. One man named Sylvestre succeeded in entering the mine, but he never returned. RESCUE PARTY SHUT OFF It is reported that a rescue party numbering forty, has been cut off by the caving in of one of the galleries. Minister Gauthier and Dubief have received complete details of the catastrophe from M Lavrurs, the director of the mine. His voice was choked with emotion as he spoke. "Of 1,800 miners who went down in the pits when the explosion occurred," he said, "675 were working in pit No. 4, 483 were in pit No. 3, 571 in pit No 2, 15 escaped through pit No 11. 490 came up from pit No 2, and 74 from pit No 10. A number of these were injured and some died since. At the present moment over 1,000 men remain imprisoned."

BERLIEVES ALL DEAD To this the director replied, "No; I believe all of them are dead." This was whispered into the ear of the minister in order that his words might not be overheard by the palefaced miners who stood anxiously about the mine building waiting for an official view on the state of affairs. The ministers listened to a graphic picture of the scene in the mines by Leon Cerf, one of the men rescued, and who is still suffering from the terrible effects of his experience. "I was working with a gang when the explosion occurred. The foreman immediately shouted for us to follow him, and dashing into a recess in the gallery, we were followed by a blast of poisonous gases, which rushed by, however, without affecting us. We remained there for eight hours, when, feeling that suffocation was gradually coming on us, we attempted to escape. We crawled in single file toward the shaft, but several of the men dropped dead on the way, including my son and the foreman. I carried my nephew on my back for forty minutes and succeeded in saving him. It took us four hours to reach the shaft."

A TERRIBLE SIGHT. For the time being the mine building has been transformed into a mortuary chamber, and all about it lie the carbonized and almost unrecognizable bodies, which were taken there as they were brought up from the mine. Stricken relatives arrive at the mine building from time to time searching for missing members of their families, and indescribable scenes of grief occur as women recognize loved ones.

Despite the danger incurred, the volunteers, who include a number of those who were successful in escaping at the time of the explosion, do not hesitate to descend the shaft. Some of them have been down more than a dozen times. One of them, after having brought up fourteen bodies, was suffocated in his fifteenth attempt, and it is feared that other fatalities among the volunteers will follow, as the air in the mines is still impregnated with noxious gases. A number of the men engaged in rescue work have already been brought to the surface unconscious, and as they were driven to their homes in closed carriages the women followed and broke the windows, suspecting that bodies were being hurried away.

Several miners have come up from pit No 11, which is connected with pit No 3. They effected their escape by means of a ladder, and as they came from the mouth of the pit they appeared to be bordering on madness. All of them were more or less injured. When asked about their comrades, one of them said: "It is horrible. All of them are dead."

GERMANY BACKS DOWN

Berlin, March 10.—Intense indignation and mortification manifested here at Russia's action in throwing off her attitude of reserve and standing squarely by the side of her ally with the force for policing Morocco shall be entrusted to France and Spain jointly. This with Great Britain's intention, made unmistakable from the first, of throwing in her lot with France, should the quarrel be forced to the arbitration of arms, has compelled general recognition of the fact that the game is up, that no more concessions can be obtained, and that Germany must now show her hand and back down. At least some such reserve as that shown by the United States was expected from Russia after the support given to Russia by Germany during her disastrous war with Japan. In gratitude is talked of, and this, it is bitter commented, is what the Kaiser gets for allowing Germans to be ill-treated on the Russian frontier and for her know-nothing generally. Much sympathy is expressed that the brilliant career of von Radowicz, who is one of Germany's best diplomats, should be spoiled by this Morocco fiasco. Some profess to believe that Russia's opposition is as much against Radowicz as against Germany.
