By one of the saddest accidents on Wednesday afternoon last four of the breadwinners of four families of this town found watery graves, and left wives and children, who depended on these loved ones for their daily bread. The suddenness of the blow, and the circumstances surrounding the loss, and the delay in the recovery of the bodies, has left these families in a dazed condition from which they will not recover for some time. Little ones must be fed, and clothed, but the provider has, by an all-wise providence been taken from them.

Under these sad circumstances it behooves the citizens of Campbellton to come to the assistance of those. With this object in view and so that it may be brought to a practical head, the Graphic will throw open its columns and use its influence to collect funds to assist these families in this, their hour of need.

All sums sent to the Graphic will be acknowledged in its columns and we trust that there will be a hearty response to this call. Let us all give something, even though it be the widow's mite.

THE QUEEN'S RUSE. A charming story is told of the former queen regent of Holland, the mother of Queen Wilhelmina. The old king had bought a fine service of Sevres porcelain for the use of the royal family, and he gave orders that any servant who should break any piece of it should be punished by being instantly dismissed. One day a man who had been many years in the royal household, offered to the young queen that he had broken one of these Sevres cups. Queen Emma spoke comfortingly to him, and suggested that he should mend the cup.

"That said the man, would be useless, for the king would surely notice the cracks. Nevertheless, the queen told him to mend the cup as neatly as possible, and to be sure to give it to her that afternoon at tea time, when the king would be present.

Tea time came, and the queen, after drinking from the mended cup, suddenly rose and let it fall to the floor. It was smashed to atoms. "Think of me as one of the most awkward of your majesty's servants," she said humbly. "I have broken one of your precious Sevres cups. You must dismiss me at once. I don't deserve to be retained in your service." The arbitrary old king was highly amused at her demure manner and considered it a good joke. He never knew the story of the broken cup.

VIOLIN RECITAL. The recital given on Friday evening in Beethoven Hall by Miss Jennie Redden, violinist of Canby, N. S., was a rare musical treat. Miss Redden delighted the audience with the precision and brilliancy of her performance. It was heard in four numbers, and under the efficient and painstaking teacher, Miss Ayer, the music on Friday evening exceeded the most sanguine expectations.—Sackville correspondence, St. John Telegraph, May 18. Miss Redden above referred to is a daughter of Mr. Redden, music instructor of this town.

VICTIMS BURIED SATURDAY MORNING

Largely Attended Funeral of Simon Tennier and Joseph Rousi.

THE PALL BEARERS

The double funeral of Simon Tennier and Joseph Rousi, two victims of Wednesday's drowning accident, took place Saturday morning at nine o'clock and was very largely attended. The members of the Catholic Order of Foresters, of which the former was a member, attended in a body.

Requiem High Mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Wallace, assisted by two of the Capuchin Fathers from Mission Point. The church was appropriately draped for the service, and the choir assisted in the solemn service.

The pallbearers were, for the late Simon Tennier, Simons Levesque, John Gervase, John Kierstead, Joseph Payne, John Allen, and Alex. Arsenault, and for the late Joseph Rousi, James Craig, Xavier Mercier, Allan Miller, Baptiste Levesque, Henry Saisant and Frank Nadeau.

LAPORTE, Saturday.—The burial last night of Andrew K. Helgelein was the beginning of the final stage in the Guinness farm mystery so far as human knowledge is concerned. Two more corpses, supposed to have been those of Jennie Olsen and Ole I. Rudberg, have been partially identified, but the identity of the remaining cadavers no clue exists that gives promise of fulfillment. The relics taken from the death farm, such as watches and rings, may ultimately lead to the determination of the identity of some missing individual who was caught in the Guinness trap but they will give almost no aid in identification of any particular body. The potters field is most likely to be the ultimate resting place of these seven bodies.

Yesterday witnessed two conclusive findings regarding the bodies unearthed. One by the dentist who fitted Mrs. Guinness' lower jaw with artificial teeth and who established that the piece of jaw bone found in the ruins was from her skull. The other showed that the body taken from the barnyard of the farm was that of Andrew Helgelein.

The methods by which the victims were put to death will never be known and the identity of the seven corpses is another puzzle. The extent to which Ray Lamberton shared in the secrets of Mrs. Guinness is a third. The state insists that it has positive evidence against Lempiere's and the defence positively states that the prisoner cannot be proven guilty of setting fire to or having participated in the murders.

The Grand Jury, it is announced, will begin to investigate the evidence gathered by Sheriff Samster and Prosecutor Smith on Monday.

ST. JOHN, Sunday.—Will Premier Hazen at the next session of the legislature ask for authority to take a plebiscite on the question of prohibition in New Brunswick? At the Every Day Club last night Rev. J. W. Kierstead, said he had heard a whisper to that effect and he hoped it was true. The government should know who his friends were and many of them he believed were old Liberals who were strong temperate men.

The late government had made a mistake in not putting a prohibition plank in its platform, but if the new government retailed itself and went to the provinces and asked for a prohibition in the next general elections he thought it would be returned to power. This was not a question of party politics. He himself had always been a Liberal, but his present attitude of the late government when an effort was made a few years ago in Campbellton to apply there the local option clause of the license law. If a plebiscite were taken he believed it would sweep the whole province.
