A Picture

But years fleeting past have not deadened
The gleam of the gold on the snow.
No artist could pencil the glory
That fell from the heavens that night,
On a world clothed in purity ever,
In purity solemn and white.
Drifts, drifts on the hillside and farmhouse,
White drifts on the meadow and lee,
With the glory of God brooding o'er them
And causing its spell over me.
Ah! the city may lure and attract us,
But the country is God's. It is rife
With the space and the sanctified service
Which marks what His angels call Life.
Eva A. Clute in June Farm Journal.

PERSONAL TIT-BITS

A COSMOPOLITAN. R. A.
"The son of American parents, born in Florence, trained in Paris, living in London, a citizen of the United States, speaking Italian, French, German and Spanish almost as fluently as he speaks English." Thus has Mr. Sargent R. A. whose pictures are again among the most notable at Burlington House been described. Mr. Sargent also pleads guilty for a taste for hunting. There is a story told of a visit he once made to Fairford, the residence of his compatriot and brother Academician, Edwin Abbey. They had had a long day's hunting, and his host was changing his clothes when he heard cries of "Horrible! Horrible!" proceeding from Sargent's bedroom. Alarmed, he rushed in, only to find his friend woefully surveying the ruins of a new top-hat. "My dear fellow," he cried, "what's the matter?" "You see that hat," said Sargent. "My horse put his foot through it today. I was thinking what a terrible thing it would have been if my head had been inside it."

SIR WILFRID'S RETORT

Sir Wilfrid Laurier is the thinnest of Prime Ministers. And yet a big burly Conservative M. P. was once maladroited enough to charge him with "fattening at the expense of the poor deluded people of this country." Sir Wilfrid genially retorted: "I ask the House to look at me, and say which of us is most exposed to the charge of getting fat."

LORD MARCUS BERES-

At the time when Lord Marcus Beresford took over the King's horses His Majesty had only a moderate lot of animals in training. "Well, what do you think of them, and what would you do with them if they were yours?" he asked Lord Marcus one morning as they were watching the Royal string at work on Newmarket Heath. Beresford looked the horses over reflectively for a moment and then said bluntly, "Shoot most of them, I think." "Shoot them by all means, then," retorted the King.

LORD KITCHENER AS

ORCHID GROWER
The Commander-in-Chief of the Indian forces has been described as one whose work is his hobby--a man with no recreation. This, however, is a mistake. For many years past Lord Kitchener has devoted his spare time to gardening and takes a special interest in orchid culture. There is no more enthusiastic amateur than His Lordship, and it is said to be his intention, when he settles down in England after August, when he resigns his command to purchase a small estate somewhere within easy reach of London, where there is a place to collect orchids on a very large scale. He will then devote his special attention to the cultivation of many rare Indian specimens.

In sickness, if a certain hidden nerve goes wrong, then the organ that this nerve controls will surely fail. It may be a stomach nerve, or it may have given strength and support to the heart or kidneys. It was Dr. Shoop that first pointed to this vital truth. Dr. Shoop's Restorative was not made to dose the stomach nor to temporarily stimulate the heart or kidneys. That old-fashioned method is all wrong. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to these failing inside nerves. The remarkable success of this prescription demonstrates the wisdom of treating the actual cause of these failing organs. And it is indeed easy to prove. A simple five or ten days test will surely tell. Try it once, and see! Sold by All Dealers.

Maker of the British Budget

The Right Hon. David Lloyd George, Chancellor of the British Exchequer, who has been called the "second man in the Liberal Government," is descended from a long line of Welsh farmers. He himself was born in Manchester, where his father was following the vocation of schoolmaster. On the latter's death, when his son was still very young, the upbringing of the future Chancellor passed to a maternal uncle, a shoemaker by trade, in a small Carnarvonshire village, where the future Chancellor attended the village church school.

HIS FIRST CASE

David passed the solicitors preliminary examinations when only fourteen years of age. Then after a period of private study, he entered the office of a solicitor in Portland as an articled pupil. In 1884, when 21 years of age, he became a fully fledged solicitor, and set up in practice for himself.

In his first law case he raised the banner of revolt, and not for the first time. By a newly-passed Act of Parliament, Nonconformists could bury their dead in churchyards. An old quarryman of Llanfrothen, a neighboring village, asked on his deathbed that he might be laid beside his daughter in the village churchyard; but the vicar selected a desolate corner.

SUGGESTING STRONG MEASURES

The indignant relatives sought advice from the young solicitor. David Lloyd George, who at once counselled his clients that they should go to the funeral in a body and if refused admission to the graveyard, should force their way in, even to the extent of breaking down the wall. This actually happened, and the funeral took place in the desired spot. Legal proceedings naturally followed, but the late Lord Chief Justice Coleridge decided that the villagers' apparent lawlessness was really merely the due exercise of their legal rights.

Mr. Lloyd George had already taken part in the public life of Cricieth. He was selected as Liberal candidate for the Carnarvon Boroughs, and in 1890 won his first election.

A curious incident occurred in connection with this election. The fight between the candidates was very keen, Carnarvon Boroughs having long been regarded as a safe Conservative seat. At the count the votes ran almost level throughout the evening. At last the task was ended, and the Conservative candidate was elected with a majority of ten. The Liberal candidate was actually receiving the cheering condolence of his friends and supporters, when a small packet of uncounted votes was discovered with the rest: that Mr. Lloyd George was the winner by twenty votes.

Mr. Lloyd George's political career has been a stormy one. Hardly had he taken his seat in the House, when he startled his fellow-members by opposing no less a man than his leader, and the "G. O. M." himself. At a later period, when the Agricultural Rating Bill was brought forward, he opposed it with such bitterness that he was named from the chair, and suspended for the remainder of the Session.

HIS FIRST BUDGET

Such a fighter as this must perforce make his mark, and in 1905 Mr. Lloyd George became President of the Board of Trade. In this capacity he did splendid work. Two of his greatest achievements were the settlement of the threatened railway strike, which would have had disastrously far-reaching effects, and the readjustment of the Patents Act.

Last year he took another step, this time being appointed Chancellor of the Exchequer, and at the end of last month he introduced his first Budget.

THE OLD BURIAL GROUND

The old burial ground on the St. John road has been cleaned up by a number of men and boys. Bushes, trees with straggling branches and decayed trunks and wild shrubs, that filled the cemetery so that tombstones and graves were hidden from view, have been cut down, pulled up and carried away making a decided improvement in the spot where "the dead reign alone." A visit to the town's first and for many years only graveyard, the reading of the familiar and the unknown names on the tombstones, cause thoughts both regretful and curious to one whose memory carries him back to the days of the death and burial of his forefathers, relatives or friends, to one, who heard his father speak many times in loving terms, of perhaps many a man whose name we may read on the monuments.

"Beneath those rugged elms,
That yew trees shade,
Where leaves the turf in many
A mouldering heap;
Each in his narrow cell forever laid,
The rude forefathers of the hamlet sleep.

That the oft repeated remark "the town is filled with strangers," is true those of us who learned our A. B. C's but a few short years ago know well but it was ever thus and the names one may read on the monuments in the old churchyard will prove this. Where are the descendants of the Thompsons, Southernlands, Billings, Drapers, Taggart, Kennedys, Vernons, Austins, Kirks, Elliots, Davidsons, Howes, Bolton, McConnells, Walkers, Knights, Munsons, Randles, Trokes? and many others whose names may be seen. In this short list are names unknown to many here yet they lived and died in St. George.

The original settler is buried in the old graveyard. The stone tells you Peter Clinch died July 31st 1816, that his wife died the day before July 30th, Peter Clinch was a captain in the war of the revolution. He landed at the site of the public wharf in 1784, a soldier named Hurley and several others were with him and to him was granted practically all the land in this vicinity from Letang to the Magaguadavic. Hugh McKay another officer of the king is buried here as are Rev. Samuel Thompson and Dr. Robt. Thompson who is well remembered by old settlers. Tyler P. Shaw who came in 1812 and who was a very wealthy man died in 1851 he built the brick house and manufactured the brick, in the old tannery on Carleton street, Josiah Wetmore, a loyalist of note and his son A. J. Wetmore and others of the original family are lying at rest here and the Rev. Mr. McGivern, of whom the old people speak with reverence and kindly words. The story of a terrible tragedy is told on the marble slabs erected in memory of Philo Sedye his two sons and young Somerton, who were burned to death in a lumber camp in the fifties. Other slabs tell of loved ones drowned at sea, of a two year old babe adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Crivthes drowned in 1854. Here may be found the names of the ancestors of the Meetings, O'Briens, Youngs, Dewars, Baldwins, Messinets, Halls, McVicar, Campbells, Russells, McGees, McLeods, Maxwells, McLannaghans, Oivers, Lees, Phillips, Spinnies, Sparks, Steens, Tayles, Thomes and many others whose names are familiar in the town. Old deeds are from the lines of Engineer Mahood who is resting here. The oldest date found records the year 1799.

The dead are there,
"The youth in life's green spring
And he who goes,
In the full strength of years
Matron and maid,
And the sweet babe and the
grey headed man,
Shall one by one be gathered to thy side,
By those who in their turn shall follow them."

WEDDING BELLS

A very pretty ceremony took place Tuesday, June 15th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Dick, L'Etoile, when their daughter Miss Pearl was married to William N. Campbell. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. V. Buchanan at 8 o'clock on the lawn under a handsomely decorated canopy of white ribbon and bells of flowers. The bride wore a director gown of cream broadcloth sleeves and yoke of tucked net over meshine, director sash, white veil caught up with moss roses and apple blossoms and carried a large bouquet. The bridesmaid Miss Mildred Dick sister of the bride wore a white princess gown of silk poplin. The groom's man was Wellington H. Dick, Miss Violet Williamson played the march. After the ceremony luncheon was served, and the night was spent in games and dancing. Among the many presents were a beautiful dinner set from D. Campbell, a silver service and numerous other presents. Mr. and Mrs. Campbell left Wednesday morning on a tour to unknown parts. The bride's travelling suit was of brown, with a cream lace basket hat with pink rose buds and velvet ribbon.

Joseph McCormick of this town and Mrs. Jennie B. Steele of Potomac, N. Y., were married, Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock at the home of the groom's sister Mrs. Benson in that town, Rev. Mr. Cowan officiating. Mr. and Mrs. McCormick came directly to his home on Elm Street. A number of young friends gathered at the home to welcome the worthy couple, tendering them a reception; refreshments were served, after which the guests departed leaving some valuable and useful gifts and hearty congratulations and best wishes. Mr. McCormick has lived in town for a number of years, coming here from St. George N. B., and has gained a large circle of friends.--Northfield Vt. Paper.

LOCAL AND SPECIAL

Mount Vernon Lodge will be formally opened on Wednesday, 23rd inst.

The fires appear to be under control everywhere.

The western crop outlook is said to be the best for years.

Steamer Connors Bros., will carry excursions on July 1st from St. Andrews, Campbell and Deer Island to the big celebration at Blacks Harbor.

The same steamer will run to Eastport July 5th from Beaver Harbor, Blacks Harbor and L'Etoile (public wharf) arriving at Eastport at 9.30 a.m. Returning will leave Eastport at 7.30 p.m.

W. P. Wetmore, who has been connected with the N. B. S. Railway for some years, latterly discharging the duties of superintendent, has tendered his resignation, to take effect the first of July. Mr. Wetmore was a hardworking official, well liked by all patrons and the announcement of his contemplated retirement from the service will be heard of with regret by all who have business relations with that organization. No announcement of Mr. Wetmore's successor has as yet been made.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from ten drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio.
Sold by Druggists, 75c.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.
