OPENING OF THE LEGISLATURE.

THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR'S SPEECH.

Mr. Wilson's Address in Moving the Reply.

The House of Assembly was opened on Thursday afternoon with the usual ceremonies. Lieutenant Governor Sir Leonard Tilley was present, attended by grand officers from the Royal School of Infantry. The usual salute was fired.

On motion of Mr. Baird, seconded by the Attorney General, A. S. White, of King's, was elected speaker without opposition.

The following is the Lieutenant Governor's speech:

The Speech. Mr. President and Honorable Gentlemen of the Legislative Council.—

I have much pleasure in meeting you in legislature convened for the despatch of public business. It affords me great satisfaction to be able to congratulate you upon the continued prosperous condition of business generally throughout the province.

The leading pursuits in which our people are engaged, I am happy to say, have been carried on profitably during the past year, and even in the great lumber industry, notwithstanding the decline in prices in Europe, there has been, during the present season, more than usual activity in lumbering operations.

I have some reason to hope that his excellency the governor general will be able to make a visit to the maritime provinces during the present year, and thereby become personally acquainted with this important portion of the Dominion. Should my expectations in this regard be realized, I am well assured that, as the representative of our gracious sovereign, as well as on account of his excellency's many estimable personal qualities, he will receive a loyal and hearty welcome from the people of the province.

The subject of the rate of stamptage imposed on the licensees of the crown operating on its lumber lands has been much discussed between my government and the licensees, and frequent attempts have been made by negotiations during the past year to arrive at an understanding which would afford some relief to this important industry, and at the same time would not necessitate a reduction in the usual grants for necessary public services. You will be fully informed of the nature of these negotiations, and I shall ask you to consider the propriety of appointing a special commission to investigate and report upon the whole question of stamptage dues upon the timber lands of the crown.

I regret to inform you that during the recess the controversy over the right of property of the provincial government in the fisheries in non-navigable waters upon ungranted crown lands, has been reopened by the general government. Communications between my government and that of the Dominion have taken place upon this subject, and I have given directions that the same shall be laid before you.

The claim of the province upon the liquidators of the Maritime Bank to be paid in preference to their well-earned remuneration of giving a first-class entertainment.

large cuts which they have done with profit.

Continued Prosperity of our Province from a source of high authority ought to strengthen our faith in its resources and in the physical, mental and moral capabilities of its people.

Development of the Mining Industry of this Province.

Development of the Mining Industry of this Province. It is gratifying to know that there are indications of such mineral deposits in certain sections of the province which, with proper machinery and assistance, could be worked.

It is to be hoped that the mining industry will be so developed that it may form a new source of revenue, which will assist in supplying the wants of the great public service of the province, and in the meantime, the mineral resources of the province, which are so rich, must not become depleted. I am sure that any measure that may be proposed by the government for development of this industry will receive the hearty approval of this house.

All that appertains to a well rounded civilization, at which no son of New Brunswick need be ashamed, and if we truly recognize the claims which our country has upon us, and unite our efforts for the development of its resources and the improvement of its institutions, New Brunswick will make further advances and become one of the most flourishing provinces of this fair Dominion.

High and Distinguished Position which he occupies; on account of the constitutional manner in which he discharges the duties of that position; on account of the effort he appears to have made to become acquainted with the resources and people of Canada; on account of his many social qualities, and above all on account of the fact that he is the representative of our Queen whom we delight to honor, and such will be the enthusiasm of his welcome that, when he returns to his gubernatorial chair at Ottawa, he will feel satisfied that down in this province his seat is there.

No Feeling in Favor of Annexation to the United States.

No Feeling in Favor of Annexation to the United States; that we are a loyal people; that we glory in the achievement of the empire in any department of human endeavor; and that if ever the time should come when assistance is required to preserve the integrity of the empire, New Brunswick will not be found wanting.

Important indeed, sir, is the subject of the crown lands referred to in the second paragraph of the address.

Important indeed, sir, is the subject of the crown lands referred to in the second paragraph of the address, and perhaps the most important in the whole range of local politics in this province. That the government maintained when the present government came into power have been preserved, and under the regulations adopted, with the approval of a majority of the members of this house, the territorial revenue has been gradually increased. That increase, it has been claimed, has been at the expense of the lumber business of the province, and it has also been claimed that if other and less stringent regulations had been adopted, the revenue would have been equally as large.

Our Struggling Lumbermen would have been materially assisted in their operations.

Our Struggling Lumbermen would have been materially assisted in their operations. These views have been constantly and persistently urged upon the consideration of the members of the government and of this house, by the representatives of the lumbermen, and the hope has been frequently expressed by a large number of the government supporters in this house, whenever the question of the policy of the government in regard to the crown lands was under consideration, that the government would see its way clear to release the lumbermen, to some extent, of the duties which the government regulations imposed.

A wise and Equitable Policy may be adopted in regard thereto.

A wise and Equitable Policy may be adopted in regard thereto. I venture to assert, sir, that a majority of the members of this honorable house will regard such a course as advisable, and in the meantime will feel disposed, until inquiry is made and the information obtained, to leave in the hands of the present executive the control, and feel satisfied that no regulation will be made, the adoption of which will mitigate against the best interests of the province, especially when we are informed that no reduction will be made in the usual grants for the necessary public services.

I think, sir, all will agree that it is a matter of regret that the government have found it necessary to call the attention of the house to another attempt on the part of the Dominion government to interfere with our Provincial Rights.

I think, sir, all will agree that it is a matter of regret that the government have found it necessary to call the attention of the house to another attempt on the part of the Dominion government to interfere with our Provincial Rights. It might reasonably be supposed, in consequence of the numerous discussions, and the highest tribunals in our land in favor of the right of the local legislatures of the Dominion to control the inland fisheries thereof, that no further attempt would have been made to interfere with that control, and yet the general fishery regulations recently approved by his excellency the governor general in council, under the authority of the fisheries act, in respect of the granted territories of Canada, show conclusively the central authority in this Dominion does still claim the right to control the inland fisheries of this province to a certain extent.

Mr. President and Honorable Gentlemen of the Legislative Council.—In your deliberations upon the various subjects which may engage your attention, I have the fullest confidence that you will display the utmost loyalty and zeal in the public service, and I trust that under the Divine guidance your labors may materially advance the welfare of our people, and strengthen their attachment to the institutions under which we live.

In moving the address in reply, Mr. Wilson said: Mr. Speaker, I am satisfied that every hon. member of this house will concur in the satisfaction expressed in the first paragraph of the address, at the continued prosperous condition of the business generally throughout the province.

In moving the address in reply, Mr. Wilson said: Mr. Speaker, I am satisfied that every hon. member of this house will concur in the satisfaction expressed in the first paragraph of the address, at the continued prosperous condition of the business generally throughout the province. Not only in the leading pursuits in which our people have been engaged has prosperity been continual, but I think it may be safely said that in every avocation of life in which honest effort has been put forth, that success which has been the reason for the adoption of these regulations, and whatever difference of opinion may matter, a United Support will be Given the government on the adoption of a policy for the protection of our provincial rights.

It certainly will be regarded as a source of gratification to learn that, substantially, the claim of the government against the liquidators of the Maritime Bank has been allowed by the supreme court of Canada, and that if no appeal be taken the amount of that claim will soon be paid.

It certainly will be regarded as a source of gratification to learn that, substantially, the claim of the government against the liquidators of the Maritime Bank has been allowed by the supreme court of Canada, and that if no appeal be taken the amount of that claim will soon be paid. When the decision of the supreme court was announced in regard to this matter, I will remember that our opposition press stated that the contention of this government had been admitted, and that the government would lose the amount of its claims. If such had been the case, it is difficult to understand how it could have been regarded as a source of congratulation. Mr. Blair—The hon. member is giving evidence of a very early impetuosity. He should be calm. He should possess his soul in patience, and he would get all the information available—perhaps a little more information than he requires, therefore, events such as this, when he gets it, will cause him to conclude that very much better. The yearning desire to be leader of his party was overcome by the hon. member's discretion. He should allow the leader whose party had selected in preference to him to discharge the functions of that office.

As to the question of jail accommodation he would assure the hon. gentlemen opposite that the government had not been at all unkind of the question as to the obligation developed upon the local government in respect to short term prisoners.

As to the question of jail accommodation he would assure the hon. gentlemen opposite that the government had not been at all unkind of the question as to the obligation developed upon the local government in respect to short term prisoners. The Dominion government, although many years ago urged to do so, refused to submit that question to the supreme court. They maintained that there was no obligation to maintain short term prisoners resting upon them or, in other words, maintaining jails for their confinement. But that matter was entirely outside the present question. The present question was entirely of a local character. The question was whether the jails which required to be maintained for prisoners put into them under local laws, debtors for instance, should not be maintained properly. From a sense of humanity, if no other, it was important that these people should be suitably provided while so held under the laws of the country. It was unfortunate that in some counties the jails were not in the condition they ought to be in. Some of them were not secure, and others were actually unhealthy, and to this subject the judges attending the various circuits have repeatedly called the attention of grand juries, to little or no purpose. An obligation, therefore, rested upon those charged with the government of the country to see that this state of affairs was a reproach to the province and when a formal intimation came to us from the minister of justice in Ottawa, that the governor general had been obliged to order the discharge of a person confined upon violation of the law, owing to the condition of the jail in which he was confined, showing that some of the houses should put upon the statute book legislation that would remedy the evil. He regretted that the mention of this subject had brought from the hon. member an expression of the opinion that it was not the business of direct taxation. The remark did not seem to be in keeping with the admirable tone of the rest of his speech. He should look to the leader of the opposition to co-operate with him in this matter.

After speeches by Messrs. Alward, Atkinson, and Stockton, the address was passed.

Public Temperance Meeting.

Public Temperance Meeting. The temperance meeting in the city hall Thursday evening, under the auspices of the W. C. T. U., was fairly well attended, but not so well as its merits demanded. Sir Leonard Tilley presided. Excellent music was furnished by a choir of ladies and gentlemen. After a few introductory remarks His Honor introduced Dr. Silas Alward, M. P., who gave a very fine address, showing that the liquor traffic from a financial standpoint.

H. A. McKewen, M. P., was next called on. He made a very effective address, urging prohibition.

Wm. Wilson, M. P., was next introduced. Among other things he spoke of the run in the recent election and denied that the government committee of management had anything to do with it. He thought his being invited to take part in the meeting by the ladies of the W. C. T. U., was a sufficient answer to the charge.

His Honor delivered the closing address. Acknowledgements.
