A DESERTED WIFE.

Considerable space was devoted in the Sun newspaper this week to the story of an alleged bogus marriage, of which a Chatham girl residing at the Dunphy hotel in this city, was said to be the victim.

The young woman in question, Annie Hatfield, who is of respectable parentage, came here from Bathurst a few months ago at the earnest solicitation of her husband Arthur Hatfield, who stated that he had provided a comfortable home here for her.

The deserted wife, who was an orphan and friendless, came to the Dunphy hotel on Saturday last, and the story as related by the Sun correspondent as to her difficulty in obtaining lodgings there is denied.

The young woman having desired the attendance of a priest Father McDevitt was communicated with and that gentleman gave orders that the unfortunate girl was to have all that she desired, and he would be responsible for the cost.

Mrs. Hatfield says she was legally married, but the desertion and cruelty of her husband has thrown her on the mercy of God.

The Fredericton brass band gave a very successful concert, Thursday evening in the city hall to a large audience.

The concert program was as follows: 1. Fantasia—Morrington. Gorton Band.

2. Solo—Because of This. Tours Miss Logan.

3. Violin Solo—Romanza Andaluza. Arthur Neville. Sarasate.

4. Solo—The Four-leaved Shamrock. Moore.

5. Quartet—The Rock away on the Billows Gay. Emerson (Sailors Chorus).

6. Solo—The Spang. Abt Miss Shenton.

7. Selection—The Trovatore. Verdi Band.

8. Solo—My Love Went Sailing. Wilson Miss Evans.

9. Violin Solo—Legende. Wieniawski Arthur Neville.

10. Solo—In Old Madrid. Frofrie Mrs. John Black.

11. Characteristic Song. Wm. Adams.

12. Waltz—Light and Gay. Round. God Save the Queen.

Concerning Mr. Neville's violin playing it may be said that he plays with sweetness and evenness of tone.

Who can listen with great pleasure, and give vent to a successful future.

His triple recall, after his second number, was a compliment that few violinists have received from a Fredericton audience.

The band shows much improvement; the selection from Trovatore especially being rendered in a manner which we have not hitherto expected from our amateurs.

The several vocal soloists were encored as was the quartette. Just a suggestion to those who get up amateur concerts in future.

They give more quartettes, duets and trios and fewer solos. There is a good deal of work, of course, in getting up a good quartette, for example, but the public like such music, well-rendered, much better than solos.

The good game has now begun in earnest at the curling rink, and the following are the arrangements of the rinks for this season's play.

THE CHEOPIAN BANQUET.

What the Reporter saw at the Church of England Banquet.

Mirth, music, and mystery, these were the leading characteristics of Keop, a banquet gotten up on a scale of oriental magnificence by Mrs. John Black, assisted by a score or so of golden haired harem girls from Mrs. Black's harem.

The Japanese booth around which brightly costumed damsels hovered in Japanese array, where oriental draperies fitted hither and thither, was a popular resort.

THE GREAT METROPOLIS.

Short Account of a Visit to England by a Frederictonian.

Wesley Vanwart who has just returned in good health and spirits from a flying visit to the old country had a very enjoyable trip.

Taking passage from the Lime street station for London, Mr. Vanwart was impressed with the perfect system of accommodation offered by the great railway, and the custom of reserved cars.

The journey to London a distance of some two hundred miles is usually done in a few hours.

While in town Mr. Vanwart had the pleasure of meeting George R. Parkin formerly of Fredericton, who is now located in London.

Mr. Parkin is engaged on the biography of the late Dr. Thring of Uppingham and is also writing a history of the British colonies for use in the public schools.

The Lord Mayor's procession with its brilliant pageant of guards, cavalry, volunteers and historical tableaux was a splendid show.

Mr. Woods, relict of the late C. W. Woods of this city, died at her residence on George street on Wednesday last.
