FREDERICTON, OCTOBER 29, 1892.
29 TO 12.

The appeal of the local government to the people has shown very conclusively, it must be admitted, that the various reforms proposed and carried out by attorney general Blair and his administration, have been for the benefit of the province. Where the government was tried on its merits the reply has been an unanimous verdict in its favor. The results in Charlotte, Westmorland, Kings, Queens, Northumberland, Gloucester, Carleton, Albert and several of the other counties have been a decided reply to the machinations and intrigues of those who prefer office to principle and who would make use of any weapon to accomplish their ends.

The government has received a strong support, a great victory has been won. True there is much regret at the result in York; many of those who voted against the government being now sorry for what they have done. It is not necessary, there is no sympathy asked for. Had the government men in York been defeated because they had not attended to the affairs of the county; had it been the result of malfeasance of office, the case might be different. The opposition appealed to the very worst passions of the people, their feelings respecting religion were worked on, the most vile slanders were scattered broadcast, there was never, perhaps, in the history of the county so much deception practiced, so many canards sent to the people and backed by men who have always been held above such trickery. The Bathurst school business, catholic marriage laws, each and everything that might inflame the mind and destroy the judgment were used and the result could not be otherwise. It was an appeal to the worst feelings of the people—not the best. It is to be hoped that such a thing will not again be perpetrated in York. It will tend to ruin business, engender hatred, create animosity between neighbors and the result cannot be foretold. Mr. Blair is safe from the persecutions of those who like leveling hounds followed him during the time he has represented York, taking food from his hand and repaying it with ingratitude. A small majority has been given the opposition, thus showing that there are many men in York who could not and would not enter upon a religious cry and hurl from power the man who has made York respected at home and abroad.

It is not necessary that we should speak in derogatory words of the minister of the gospel whose motto should be "peace on earth, good will to men," but who demeaned himself and his fellows by visiting house after house handing to each man pamphlets tending to rouse his passions; it is not necessary that we should call attention to the deception practiced by the men who placed four of their tools in the field as candidates to bear on their shoulders the burden of odium that should properly be placed on them—these matters will, when considered by the standard of common sense and judgment, carry their own condemnation. What must men think of the so-called temperance candidate who shielded himself behind men who carried liquor to the polls for the ticket he had placed his name on. Although he placed tickets through the city bearing his own name alone, yet none of these found their way outside the city, not even as far as Marysville. It is said on the streets that the temperance people are disgusted; they have felt their cause to be prostituted; they know that they have been deceived and that unthinkingly they have made a whip to scourge themselves.

Victory, victory throughout the province, is the cry. While York hangs its head in shame the friends of good government in other counties lead to the skies a song of York who has won for the people more benefits and advantages than has ever before been the lot of a statesman of New Brunswick to achieve. In the years to come the name of hon. A. G. Blair will be honored above that of any provincial statesman, while his villifiers will sink to that disgrace which all will acknowledge is their just due.

The returns all over the province show the following result:

The Gleaner says that Mr. Lablouis might be asked to lead the government as he has the merit of keeping sober. The Gleaner need not give itself any unnecessary concern. The government of this province has had a sober leader for some years, and will continue to have one. But when has sobriety come to a virtue in the eyes of Mr. Crockett. One would think to hear Geo. F. Gregory take off Mr. Crockett's speech in the Barker on the night of the election that sobriety was not one of Mr. Crockett's virtues. But then we forget Mr. Crockett was celebrating Mr. Pitts's victory. In other words, as Mr. Pitts said of John McKean on election day, he was "happy."

The Gleaner in mentioning the fact that Mr. Blair is talking of leaving Fredericton, goes out of the way to make an attack on W. T. Whitehead, and makes the unwarranted statement that Mr. Whitehead is going to leave also as the town is not big enough for him. It is quite likely that both these gentlemen will do as they think best for themselves without consulting Mr. Crockett. But if they do decide to leave town they are probably in positions to do so without asking permission of the goliath of York county, or without being liable to be brought back as escaped prisoners.

THEY WERE ALL HAPPY.

"One of the happiest men in the court house yesterday over the opposition victory was John McKean, of Keswick."—Reporter Oct. 28.

The above John McKean was one of Mr. Pitts's most prominent backers and claqueurs in the late election. Mr. McKean's "happiness" was the result of a too liberal indulgence in rum, which flowed freely at all the election booths in the interest of Mr. Pitts. Mr. Pitts views with approval the "happy" condition of Mr. McKean, indeed Mr. McKean made several calls on Mr. Pitts since election day, and he is still bubbling over with the "oh be joyful!" Mr. Pitts does well to speak kindly of these poor wretches who went to their homes reeling drunk on Saturday night as the result of his temperance campaign. In former days he abused them, but since he has prostituted the temperance cause in the dust, and trailed the temperance banner in disgrace for the sake of gaining his election, he can afford to be charitable. To the rum-sellers who threw open their bars and took off their coats and worked for him on election day, he will probably have no more opprobrious epithets. He will likely refrain from calling the attention of the public to the fact that the city clerk's office was turned into a rum shop in order to secure the election of himself and his associates.

"Give me a bottle of whiskey and I'll vote for you," said an elector in this city to the temperance candidate.

"Oh, I can't do that; go to that man there!" said the immaculate Pitts, pointing to an opposition heeler. The heeler and the voter went up to city clerk Beckwith's rumshop, and the temperance banner was carried a step nearer victory.

At Canterbury Station the notorious rum-seller, H. N. Grant, kept an open bar in the interest of Pitts, and hustled for him at the polls.

"I don't want to vote for Pitts; I'll vote for the other three," said an elector to Grant.

"You'll vote for the whole ticket or you won't get a d—cent," said Grant.

"Well, give us a bottle of whiskey and I will."

"All right," was the reply, and another vote was scored for the cause of temperance. And so went the story all over the county.

Honest temperance men are beginning to have their eyes opened to the fact that they were grossly duped and deceived by Pitts for his own selfish ends, and no amount of scriptural quotations can cover up from the public eye the fact that in lending itself to accomplish the defeat of the government party in York, the temperance cause has suffered a shock that long years of honest temperance work can not undo. The better minded class of citizens know and know well who have helped to fight the temperance battles in the past, and who have gained the temperance victories, and they will not forget that the temperance sentiment, joined to other issues, has turned and struck to the ground its best friends. We believe that in reality, Mr. Pitts is not the representative of the best element in the temperance cause, as he is not the representative of the better thinking class of orangemen, although for the time being he has succeeded, by misrepresentation and fraud, and by appeals to passion and prejudice, in catching their support for himself and his associates. He is rather the tool and mouthpiece of a few ignorant fanatics, whose zeal and enthusiasm run away with their judgment, and if this class is entitled to a representative in the assembly of our province, they could not be better represented than by the hollow canting hypocrite, who with chilling blasphemy, attributes his run bought victory to God.

JAMES H. CROCKETT, editor of the Gleaner, who has scandalized most men of the city with impunity met a tartar last night in the Barker house. Placing himself in his general roster like attitude he began to get off some of his latest scandal. The "principles" of the C. P. R. met him right between the eyes and he dropped like a stack pig. The official threw him over decks and sofas, till the legs, arms and coat-tail of truthful James, resembled an old-fashioned windmill. After the floor was sufficiently mopped with him he was dropped in a heap on one of the cupboards where, after screwing his head from some place on his back where it had been driven he bleated like a calf, the tears coursing down his nose as in accents wild he ejaculated: "Was it an earthquake?"

What a lot of cheek and gall some people are capable of carrying. At Kingsclear last Saturday, the peerless John Black stood at the poll in the interest of the opposition ticket. W. Smith, of this city, acted in the interest of the government candidates at the same poll. Both gentlemen are well acquainted and friends. Mr. Black, with that effrontery so characteristic of him, approached Mr. Smith and requested him, as a personal favor, not to work; or instead of doing his duty, to ease up and allow Black to carry things as he liked. Black got a reply that has stunned him ever since.

DEATH OF THE RAIL.
Chas. Goodhue Killed by St. John Express.

Another fatal accident has been added to the list that has this year in this vicinity far exceeded that of any previous year. On Saturday evening the St. John express train ran over a man at Salamanca station, about half a mile before the city proper. He was a shingle sawyer in Morrison's mill, known as Charles Goodhue, and belonging to Carleton. He had been up to the city and it is supposed that being overcome by liquor laid down on the track and went to sleep. Both arms and body crushed, one being almost cut in two. He received other injuries as well. It is supposed that the cow-catcher threw him into the ditch as he was badly bruised all over. The train had no passengers, and the unfortunate man was left where he had been thrown by the train for about an hour and a half. Dr. McLearn was called and did all possible for the wounded man, but he died on Sunday morning. He was about twenty-eight years of age and had a wife and two children. All acquainted with him here speak of him as a good workman and a pleasant man and not apt to get intoxicated.

REVEREND.—Fred. Estey, son of R. A. Estey, of this city, has returned from the west, after a two years' visit, and purposes to remain here.

NON RECOVERED.—F. McGarrigle has been ill for some time and is not showing that return to good health which his many friends hope for.

ST. JOHN ELECTION.—The writ has been issued for an election in St. John for the Dominion parliament. Nomination is on November 14th, election on the 22nd. Sheriff Harding has been appointed returning officer.

DR. MUR.—Doctor Marcus Aurelius Atkinson, M. D., is his name. The elector of Carleton county have seen fit to attach another letter or rather dropped it between the M. and D., making it appear very much like mud. Mud is his name in politics henceforth.

ANARCHIST METHODS EMPLOYED IN YORK.

That all may see the vile methods adopted by the opposition in York to carry their ticket and stir up religious strife and discord, specimens of their campaign literature finds space in this issue. Not content with the most suppurative appeals to the orangemen, inducing numbers of them to believe that Mr. Blair was favoring the Roman Catholics, they mailed these maldororous what-planes they should pursue in the coming campaign. With the earnest desire to strengthen our beloved order, and carry out the principles so dear to every true member of the members, an orange convention is hereby called to meet in the orange hall, Fredericton, on Friday afternoon, October 7th, at 2 o'clock, to discuss the situation and our true course as an orange association.

We cannot but remember that only a few months ago it was evidenced on the floors of the legislature that not one representative could be found in the members, though there were many who "rode in on the protestant horse" but who considered it a reproach to be so, and denied it. There was not one of them who would part with the position for a protestant and justice from the Rome-cursed minority at Bathurst. Are we to hold up our hands and say Peace! Peace! where there is no peace? Shall we be content to remain idle while the wages of the wicked are paid? Shall we be silent while the minions of a Romish hierarchy buy up the constituencies, and close up the mouths of our politicians for the sake of the support? Will orangemen quibble over personal matters, and allow the foe to break down the doors of our public schools? No! The orangemen of York are not built to be led by the nose. Let us support for office only those candidates who will pledge themselves to give us an untrammelled school law, and a policy of "equal rights to all every true orangemen be on hand. I admonish you, that ye fall not, and that ye notify every member within your reach to be present.

HERMAN H. PITTS,
County Master.

Protestants and Orangemen, Awake!

The signs of the times point to a crucial test of Protestantism and the Orange order, and an epoch in provincial history equal to the days when our people fought out this principle of a free education for the children of the country regardless of wealth or position.

The powers and the persons that then aligned themselves against the home and the school, are still at work, and to-day we have the spectacle of a legislature in the members gagged against any infringement or encroachments on the interests of the church of Rome, and further, that this church's methods must be above criticism. This is "hail to be Protestant liberalism, which, for the sake of peace, will not protect its own people and its own homes. Do not be deceived by the argument that this is an agitation for political effect. The people: these are facts that cannot be truthfully refuted.

The leader who now controls the government of this county has always been a questioner of our free school system. He has been a candidate more than once against it, and it was not until the matter was finally settled, the law passed, and the question not a political issue at the polls that Mr. Blair could be elected to represent the people of York. Does the Roman Catholic church forget his labors in their behalf in the past? No. Almost as a man the Roman Catholic vote in this country is cast solid for Mr. Blair, and Mr. Blair's government. Is there any wonder then, that the assertion is made to-day, even in the government ranks that "the Roman Catholic church has not yet received what she is to get; and that more privileges are to be granted them;" while even Mr. Blair's weak-kneed, limber-jointed Protestant supporters are wondering where this thing is going to end, and hosts of them are roundly denouncing his course and will take no part in this election. If, then, you are so tied to Mr. Blair as to feel inclined to vote against him, in his open violation of honest, fair play and Protestant principle, don't vote at all.

Then we have two members of the Orange association, one of whom having the highest honors, and the other aspiring to such, namely Wilson and Colter, in collusion to prevent a simple petition, asking for a committee of investigation into the wrongs of the persecuted Protestant minority at Bathurst, from being presented to the legislature, while this is approved of by the leader of the government, who is anxious that the matter should be kept out of the assembly. Then we have the same petition treated as a laughable farce in the legislative council, and Orange members present, viz. Wilson and Pugsley, chucking over its being shelved.

Then we have the government party, assisting, and Mr. Colter stating it as a fact that they have the Roman Catholic vote anyway, and they can buy enough of weak-kneed Protestants and Orangemen to elect them beyond peradventure. This is
