THE APPOINTMENT OF MR. SKINNER.

We regret to notice that the appointment of C. N. Skinner to the office of judge of probate for the city and county of Saint John, has met with the disapproval of many friends and supporters of the government. That the filling of any office in the gift of the government should not meet with the unanimous approval of the friends of the party in power is naturally to be expected. Disappointment, and in many cases disapproval, are liable to attend the dissemination of patronage. No one realizes and regrets this fact more than those who are almost daily called upon to choose between loyal friends and supporters in the bestowal of office and reward. Indeed, in order that the disposal of patronage or the filling of offices can remain a part of the functions of the government it is necessary that the disposal of such matters be left to the judgment of the appointing power, and that its decision should be final, or that at least there should be no general public manifestations of disapproval, provided the favor is bestowed upon an acknowledged friend of the party. And it must be also remembered that the necessity of discriminating between friends is not always the only difficulty that a government has to contend with in the dispensing of patronage. Other circumstances and considerations often arise which make it very difficult for the government to satisfy their friends, and at the same time conserve the public interest. In such cases the public interest must first be considered.

The appointment of Mr. Skinner has evidently been no exception to the general rule. The exception in this case lies in the fact that some of the friends of the government have been so keenly felt their disappointment more keenly than is usual under such circumstances, and in the heat of the moment have given expression to feelings and utterances, which the better judgment of sober second thought would have prevented or at least modified. We cannot help but feel and believe that many of the friends of the government in St. John, who under the sting of what they do not feel at the time to be a rebuff, gave public expression to feelings which they should for the time at least, under the circumstances, have mothered, will see the imprudence and futility of attempting to discuss and explain in public what must of necessity be the subject matter of private or party explanation. Already the members of the government, in the absence of the premier, are taking advantage of every little circumstance that can possibly afford them political capital, and it would be a matter of deep regret, if by the indiscretion of friends the hands of the leader of the government were weakened during his absence from his post. Happily the absurd and contradictory stories concocted by the opposition organs as a solution of the alleged mystery surrounding the appointment, have had the effect of entirely destroying any advantage that they might have derived from the dissatisfaction expressed by some of the government's friends.

As a journal outside of the city of Saint John we do not feel called upon to give any opinion concerning the merits of the appointment. There is one point, however, of a general nature, to which we wish briefly to refer. At least one of St. John papers has disapproved of the appointment of Mr. Skinner because he is a conservative. In fact this is the only objection that we have heard of concerning the fitness of Mr. Skinner for the position. The fact that the present government is composed of both liberals and conservatives, should prepare all its friends to hear of appointments irrespective of political opinions. The only questions that can properly be raised are the appointee a friend and supporter of the government, and is he qualified for the office. In the case of Mr. Skinner there can be but one answer possible. As much therefore as we would have liked from a personal standpoint, to have seen a liberal appointed to the office, we cannot say that the friends of the government should either be surprised or disappointed because a conservative received the appointment.

THE RIVER SERVICE.

The people of Fredericton have some one to thank for the nearest and most reliable river service that was ever instituted on a civilized country. Indeed, it is too great a stretch of the imagination to call the miserable conveyance between this city and St. John a service at all. It is simply an insult, and it would be far more to the credit of the proprietors of the steamboat line to place no boat on the river at all, than to ask the people along the river valley to tolerate the old dugout that comes up from St. John one day and tries to get back the next. The matter is made all the more inexcusable when it is known that there is a good steamer available which is only kept off the route on account of the stubbornness and stupidity of someone. The loss to the city of Fredericton this year by means of the want of decent steamer accommodation is very great, and unless there is a speedy remedy of the evil, our summer travel, which has been increasing every year since the beauties of the St. John river and the capital city have become known to tourists, will be entirely lost. We do not want the earth, but we want a chance to live, and it might not be out of place just to call attention to the fact, that while for the first time since confederation every river country, from York to St. John, is represented by a conservative at parliament, the river service is worse than it has ever been from the days of Christopher Columbus. As we said before we don't want the earth, but we would just rise to remark that if the representatives of the people at Ottawa would pay a little more attention to the people's interests, and not devote all their energy to Harris land jobs and other private enterprises of a questionable character, the people around here might not have to hunt so hard for something to be thankful for.

LUDLOW.

Just as Mr. and Mrs. Heron, of Gibson, spent a few days in this vicinity last week. While Mrs. Heron was enjoying herself among her friends and relatives, Mr. Heron visited the border districts of York and Northumberland. A pie-society was held at Lower Ludlow last evening, for the purpose of building a Baptist church. Several of the young folks from Upper Ludlow were down and spent an enjoyable evening. The people of Ludlow were happy to see the greater number of the young men return home mid-day after a long route of driving on Dunlop's with Jas. Fairley.

PROV. NORMAL SCHOOL.

The Graduating Exercises Much Appreciated.
TASTEFUL DECORATIONS, CHOICE PROGRAMME, PLEASANT FACES.

THE LAST GOOD BYE.

The closing exercises at the Normal school, preparatory to the final examination, took place on Friday. There was a large attendance, many being present from other cities and from the rural districts. The morning was devoted exclusively to examinations as follows: Professional work, principal Mullen; mathematics and industrial drawing, Mr. Creed; chemistry and botany, Mr. Brittain and reading by Miss Clark. The exercises took place in the hall, the pupils showing that they have profited much by the drill during the last nine months. Those who attended noted with pleasure the advancement made not only in the manner of imparting information but in the subjects dealt with by the teachers and students of the Normal school.

AFTERNOON.

The afternoon saw a still larger crowd than in the morning, all available space being taken up. The large hall was replete with flowers, with music and pleasant faces, made a very attractive scene indeed. On the platform were chief supt. Inch, Mr. Beckwith, ex-mayor Allen, sheriff Sterling, chancellor of the university, principal Mullen, H. C. Creed, Mr. Brittain, Miss Landers and Miss Clark. In the audience were seen many of the representative men of the city, including the pastors of most of the churches. Several were present from Gibson and Marysville. A temporary platform was erected at the southern end of the room where the various features of the programme took place. The orchestra, which was excellent, was composed as follows: Piano, Miss Jordan; 1st violin, Miss Porter; 2nd violin, Prof. Cadwallader; mandolin, Miss Habbitt. The following programme was rendered: Recitation—Education and the State..... A. W. Colpitts. Chorus by school. Songs from King John, by lady students. Violin solo—Last Rose of Summer. Reading—Two Boat Blacks, Miss Hanson. Orchestra.

Principal Mullen then announced that the medal for the senior class had been won by Miss Richardson of Albert, that for the primary class by Miss Laura Wilson. Several pupils received honorable mention as being very close competitors, among whom were Miss Agnes Carr, Miss Bessie Fraser, Mr. Jones and Miss Hanson. The winners were then called forward when chief supt. Inch addressed them. Miss Landers, the examiner in reading, by request, gave a reading which took the large audience by storm. It was entitled a ride against time and detailed the rescue by a daughter of her father from the hands of the King Kux Klan. Miss Daisy Hanson, the valedictorian, then said the good bye of the students in the following:

MR. SUPERINTENDENT, LADIES AND GENTLEMEN: Although the honor of valedictorian has been conferred upon me by my classmates, I feel that I can but feebly express the sentiments of my members. A backward glance at the past shows that the deep interest you have manifested towards us during the last nine months has not diminished. Although with the thought of the last day at our school, (the school which is and always will be very dear to each of us) there is a feeling of regret that the time has arrived when we must say "Good bye." Our number here is larger than ever before, and of course with us, it is the best of all preceding classes.

We feel very sorry that some of the students that came in September are not with us to-day. Two left us for a better world. Those who had to leave this time will come back in the near future, made stronger by their failure this time.

This year we issued a paper, and under the management of our energetic editor, it has proved a success. The mock trial and debating society could not but do us members a great deal of good. How many of you who have come to us, with a high ideal ever before him. He will not only make this world better, but at the close of his career, will have the consciousness of not having lived in vain. Who are they who will receive the benefit of our conquests? Your children, who will one day fill the positions of our fathers. You, ladies and gentlemen, should feel as proud as we, and think with us that the teaching profession is second to none in the world.

Fredericton Friends.—We soon leave your beautiful city, and what a difference has been made in the feelings of to-day and those of nine months ago! We came to your city, strangers. You opened your hospitable doors and bade us "walk in," and how at home we felt when we entered those homes, and basked under the vine and the fig tree. While here a number of life-long friendships have been formed, and the farewells which must be said will be in some cases be heart-rending.

Principal and Instructors.—The day has at last arrived, when we must also bid you "farewell," even for a longer and some for a shorter time. Our work has covered a wide area. Let us hope it has been thorough. You who have been both our instructors and our friends in helping us up the path that leads to success, have not only shown your deep interest in our welfare, but have ever dealt kindly and impartially with every member of our class. We know that you have all worked together for our good and have not been weary in well doing.

To our professional instructor, we wish to tender our sincere thanks, for the many lessons he has given us, both for our good and for the good of those whom we someday hope to guide. We will "teach the young idea how to shoot" much better for having been under the instruction of one so faithful.

Some of us felt in our first lessons in natural science, that we had never seen the beauties and wonders of nature; that the little things that make up this great universe, were seen by us through a glass. But now we seem carried away, when we behold the manifold works of our Creator. And whom may we thank? Surely our faithful instructor receives it all.

In our only lady instructor we have a very sincere friend. She has endeavored to teach us to care better for ourselves and for others, and has ever been forgetful of self in thinking of our advancement. Some have to thank her for taking the speak out of their voices, others for straightening their shoulders, and not a few now know the art of breathing.

To you, our mathematical instructor, we feel that we owe very deep gratitude. How often we have worried over a problem, without success; and how very willing you were to solve the difficulties for us. We hope, as we say "good bye" to you, that we are wiser men and women. And how many pleasant hours have we whittled away with our musical professor! Coming, as our music lessons usually did, after a very tiresome lesson, it was balm to our weary souls.

Fellow Students.—In addressing myself to you I feel that I can but poorly express our feelings, when I think of the many "partings" soon to be made. What changes a few short months have brought about! When we met in this hall for the first time, how strange were we to one another, and how different now! Can you not remember how we wondered who "that one" and who "this one" was? And while we were lost in wonderment one of our kind instructors came and bled us out of the difficulty. One of our students passed away when only half through her work.

How shocked and pained we were, when arriving at school one morning to hear that another faithful and patient student had been "cut down in the bloom of her youth." May her exemplary school life prove a blessing to us all!

When fellow students begin our duties, let us hope that each will be as faithful and earnest as those who have guided and instructed us through the past months.

Classmates.—With you I am more intimately acquainted, and so it seems hard, very hard to say "good bye." We feel better for having been together for even such a short time, and though this happy hour has come we could feel it if we could. We will soon be scattered to our work, all of the same profession, yet how different the experience when we meet again. Some of our class-mates will be work hard, and had rest for a while. They had our sincere sympathy.

The test is to come yet. May we each come off more than conquerors! and as we go forth from these endeared halls, may the ties formed remain as one unbroken chain.

The bond that links our souls together, will it last through stormy weather? Will it weather and stand? As the long hours fade away? Will it stretch if Fate divide us? Will when days and weary hours have tried us? O if it look too poor and slight—

Mr. Superintendent, Frederictonians, Principal and Instructors, Fellow students, Class-mates, Farewell!

THE PRESIDENTIAL CONTEST.

The republican convention now in session at Minneapolis for the choice of a candidate to represent that party at the coming presidential election, is very much divided. James G. Blaine, secretary of state, and President Harrison are running a race with the odds at present strongly in favor of the latter. The result will not be definitely known till Saturday night. It was said that the Blainites had a majority on the committee of credentials and that enough votes would be thrown out by this body to make Blaine's nomination sure.

The Harrison men are certain of victory and the contest is watched with interest. To add to the complications, major McKinley, of tariff fame, has an influential party at his back urging his claims as a future president. Then a strong appeal is made by the veterans of the war and their friends that a soldier be chosen.

The one effect of this division in the party ranks is a wholesale striking of along the line. It is proving a stimulus to the democrats, who with Cleveland as their unanimous choice see in the quarrels of their opponents a premonition of victory for their leader.

Many of the republicans are in favor of McKinley, who is regarded, while others of the McKinley stripe are determined on the very highest tariff rates. This is one cause of the trouble at the convention.

It appears to be the general opinion, judging from the clamor in the republican ranks, that the democrats, with Cleveland as candidate, will have an easy victory.

A vote was taken this morning with the result that Harrison led Blaine by four to one, Harrison's nomination was therefore declared unanimous.

BLANEY RIDGE.

June 3.—Some of the young men from this place are away on the logging train. We hope soon to welcome them back. A back social was held in the Maguery hall on the evening of May 27th. A very enjoyable time was spent, dancing being indulged in to the wee sma hours. The proceeds amounted to $11.55 and are to be presented to the rev. C. T. Easton.

Miss Anna Henry, of Maguery, is on a visit to her parents. She has been in Boston for some time. She will be heartily welcomed by her many friends.

Miss Sadie McMullin, of Maguery, is at present visiting her uncle S. McMullin, of this place. We congratulate Mr. McGarvey on a happy domestic event—a girl.

We sympathize with Mr. and Mrs. Geo. King of Maguery in their bereavement through the loss of a bright little girl who died May 31st, aged about nine months.

Miss Emma Henry, of Maguery, is at present staying at her uncle Wm. Graham's.

Miss Annie McMullin paid friends at this place a short visit this week.

Fred Davis has returned from the drive.

MAUGERVILLE.

June 4.—The weather is very fine here now except an occasional shower which does wonders in making the grass grow. Persons from the city who desire an outing can find no better road than this one for driving on because it is very dry and smooth and the scenery is beautiful. We are sure all will agree with us in saying that Maugerville is a very pretty place at present—the fruit trees are in bloom and the air is filled with the music of birds.

A long talk of event came off Thursday when John Cox of this place led to the matrimonial altar Adelia Hart, daughter of Thomas Hart, of St. Mary's, York Co. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Katie Hart, and the groom was supported by Willie Hart, brother of St. Mary's R. C. Church. After the ceremony the bride party repaired to the residence of the bride's father where breakfast was waiting. After doing justice to the good things provided the party set out for the future home of the bride and groom in this place. A very pleasant time was spent on the drive down. The well known coachman of Fredericton, J. C. Christie, being in his usual good humor helped to make the time pass very pleasantly for the young folk. The heavy shower of the afternoon did not dampen the spirits of the boys who had their guns, horns and cow-bells ready. They gave "Jack" and his bride a rousing welcome but after their appearance the crowd dispersed very quietly. "We wish you every happiness "Jack". Now we will patiently wait for "Thomas" of "Oak Hall" to fulfill the prediction that has been made on his account. Harry W. Thomas; we will be there with our cow-bells.

We extend our deepest sympathies to Frederick Ladds and wife in their recent sad bereavement.

We are sorry to hear that Phillip Cox, who has been very sick all winter, is no better. He is bed-fast nearly all the time now.

We hear with regret that James D. Banks, the two year old child of Fannie D. Banks, is very sick. We hope she will soon recover.

We are glad to hear that Mrs. Walter Smith who had a very hard attack of la grippe is recovering.

Mrs. B. H. Thomas, of Jacksville, is now visiting her sister, Mrs. A. R. Miles. Her little twin daughters are admired by all.

Mrs. Edw. Wilkinson has gone to New York to visit her daughter, Mrs. Dr. Anderson of Astoria, L. I. City.

His address was listened to with profound interest throughout, as it was highly interesting and instructive.
