SIR JOHN ALLEN

STRICKEN WITH PARALYSIS AT ST. ANDREWS.

FULL DETAILS OF THE ATTACK AND HIS PRESENT CONDITION.

Sir John Allen, chief justice, left Fredericton on Monday to hold circuit court at St. Andrews, apparently in his usual health. He was well on Tuesday, able to attend to his duties, but that night in his room at Kennedy's hotel, he was stricken down with paralysis. The news first reached Fredericton in a telegram from Dr. F. E. Barker to T. Carleton Allen, clerk of the pleas, and soon spread around the city, general regret being expressed among all classes of citizens. T. Carleton Allen went to St. Andrews Wednesday, and was joined on Thursday by his wife, E. H. Allen and Dr. McLearn.

The following despatches give full particulars of Sir John's attack, and his condition each day since he was prostrated:

Wednesday.

ST. ANDREWS, Nov. 15.—Chief justice Sir John Allen, who is here attending the circuit court, was stricken down with paralysis in his room in Kennedy's hotel, a little before midnight. He had made no complaints during the day. During the night stenographer F. H. Risteen was in Sir John's room, reading over his notes of Tuesday's trial. When he got through Sir John attempted to rise, but found himself unable to. Mr. Risteen helped him to his bed, and then summoned medical assistance. Dr. Gove responded, and found that a paralytic shock had affected Sir John's whole right side. He was in partial stupor in the early morning, but at daylight his voice returned and signs of recovery manifested themselves. It is thought he will recover. Sir John awoke at two o'clock, and after a few minutes was able to talk rationally. He said he was very sick at his stomach, and he vomited considerably. A report of his case was wired to Dr. McLearn of Fredericton. His physician says that the symptoms are not unfavorable.

Thursday.

ST. ANDREWS, Nov. 16.—Sir John Allen's condition is slightly improved this morning and his physicians are looking more hopefully upon his case. He is able to converse and suffers no pain. He is able to move the fingers of his right hand, but the sensation of touch has not yet returned. His son, T. Carleton Allen, arrived last night and is at his father's bedside. He hopes to remove his father home in a few days.

Dr. Gove issued a bulletin to-night at eight o'clock that Sir John had passed a very comfortable day and he still continues to improve. Dr. McLearn, who arrived by train, was in consultation with Dr. Gove and concurred in the treatment, and fully agrees with the favorable result of the case for the present. Mrs. T. C. Allen and E. H. Allen arrived by train from Fredericton this afternoon. Supt. Timmerman has kindly offered his private car for the removal of the chief justice, but the doctors say he cannot be removed for this week at least.

Friday.

ST. ANDREWS, Nov. 17th.

Sir John C. Allen is quite bright this morning and continues to show signs of improvement. He can converse freely, and is slowly recovering the use of his paralyzed limbs. Another despatch last night says: Sir John Allen is about the same as yesterday, with the exception that he has taken considerable nourishment through the day. The use of his leg and arm is returning. Should the railway grant running powers, an engine will be attached to Superintendent Timmerman's private car on Sunday next and his honor will be taken home.

Saturday.

A special despatch to THE HERALD at noon to day, says:

Sir John passed a good night and his condition this morning is perceptibly improved. He was able to wash his own hands to-day, and is gradually recovering the use of affected limbs. If his condition does not grow any worse, he will be removed to his home to-morrow, by special train, leaving here at 10.30, a. m.

Another Account of the Attack.

The St. Croix Courier, whose editor, Mr. Clarke, was at St. Andrews attending court when Sir John was prostrated, gives the following account of the affair: "The good people of St. Andrews were shocked on Wednesday morning to hear that Sir John Allen, chief justice, who was in attendance at court there, had been stricken with paralysis and was then lying in Kennedy's hotel in an extremely critical condition. Inquiry revealed the fact that the stroke had come the night before at about half past eleven o'clock. Just previous to his illness, Sir John had been listening to the evidence of the proceedings of the day which was read to him by F. H. Risteen, the official stenographer. When Mr. Risteen had finished the work, Sir John apparently attempted to rise, but settled back in his chair again; and not dreaming that there was anything wrong, Mr. Risteen left the room and went down stairs to the hotel office. He had been there but a short time when he heard the sound as of a heavy fall on the floor above, and concluded that it came from the room of the chief justice. He rushed up stairs and found Sir John lying on the floor, resting on his right arm and side. He immediately called assistance and placed Sir John in bed. Dr. Gove was summoned as soon as possible and pronounced the trouble to be paralysis The disease had touched the entire right side of the patient, rendering it helpless and without sensation. Remedies were prescribed and willing hands from among the guests at the hotel did all that was possible to be done under the circumstances. In the morning, the symptoms were better. The patient had recovered consciousness and the use of his right arm. All day long, however, he lay in a state of coma, and last night his medical attendant could give no assurance of full recovery.

Paralysis Not Necessarily Fatal.

Dr. Wm. Bayard, the noted St. John physician, said to a Record reporter, in speaking of Sir John's case, that it was difficult for him to express an opinion upon the probabilities, not having seen the case, and so he could make only very general assertions. Paralysis was caused by undue pressure upon the brain, resulting in the bursting of a blood vessel, and recovery depended upon the extent and length of continuation of the pressure. Though such an attack was attended with considerable danger to the patient and with the fear of following attacks, yet a considerable percentage recovered entirely. He cited a case which is under his care now, of a lady who was stricken with total paralysis, but has entirely recovered her powers. Dr. Bayard's words were very reassuring and should indicate favorable prospect of the recovery of the esteemed judge.

The Day Before.

The St. Andrews Beacon in its report of the last day Sir John was around and presiding in the circuit court says:

"The November sitting of the circuit court for this county was opened at the court house at noon, on Tuesday last, presided over by Sir John C. Allen, Knight, Chief Justice of this province. His honor in addressing the grand jury, said it gave him much pleasure to see so full an attendance of the grand jurymen at this session of the court, not one of the twenty-four summoned being absent. He found upon his table a pair of white kid gloves presented by the sheriff, indicating that there was no crime to be dealt with at this court. The white gloves were intended as an emblem of purity in the county, and he wished that the county was pure. While there were not any cases of crime to be submitted to the grand jury just now, yet there certainly was crime in the county, if newspaper reports were to be believed. It was a matter no doubt familiar to all of the grand jurors, that a few weeks ago, the dead body of an infant child had been found in some well here in the town of St. Andrews. That might indicate murder, and if murder, it was the highest kind of crime known to our criminal law. If murder, and the guilty party were discovered and convicted, the punishment would be death, and the judge would have no alternative but to pass the sentence of death. He hoped that the officers of the law in this county were doing their duty in the matter and making every possible effort to discover who it was that had committed so terrible a crime, and if the proper authorities were doing their duty the matter might come before a grand jury here at some future time. If the grand jurors or any of them knew of any matter they wanted to bring before the court, it was their right to do so. He had nothing to give them in charge, and he felt theirs would not be like the case of a grand juryman in Queens county, a short time ago, who refused to take the oath because he said he would not be able to keep it. If no business came before them there would be no counsel for the Queen, none of their fellows nor their own to keep secret, and the observance of that oath this time, would not likely be difficult. After a few moments in the grand juryroom they reported that they had nothing to offer to the court, and his honor discharged them from further attendance at the court.

The first case on the docket was taken up at opening of court Tuesday afternoon and was before the court at the hour of adjournment.

On Wednesday the court was adjourned till Jan. 3rd, owing to Sir John's illness.

Getting New Premises Ready.

The New Brunswick telephone company directors met Thursday night in Hon. A. G. Blair's office, St. John, to make arrangements for repairing the company's new building—the Patton place—on the south side of the market square. The contract has been given to builder Ferguson, who will be furnished with plans by architect R. C. John Dunn. The repairs are to be completed by January 1st, and the company will move from their present place of business before May 1st. The ground floor will be fitted up as a long distance telephone department and will also contain the manager's office. On the second floor will be the operating room, which will be so enlarged that instead of the present 800 subscribers, from 1,200 to 1,500 can be accommodated. The operating department will also be fitted up with cloak rooms, etc. The building will be heated by the water system, and will be in all respects well suited to the purposes of the company.

Organ Recital and Sacred Concert.

There was a large attendance at the organ recital and sacred concert in St. Paul's Presbyterian church, Thursday evening, and the affair was very much enjoyed by the audience. Prof. Ford, of St. John, played half a dozen selections on the organ, and the vocal pieces were: duet, Mrs. H. S. Bridges and Inspector Bridges; duet, Mrs Black and Prof. Bristowe; and solos by Mrs. Bridges, Mrs. Black, Mrs. Crocket, Inspector Bridges and Prof. Bristowe. All acquitted themselves well. Inspector. Bridges was especially in fine voice, and rendered his solo, "Jerusalem," in excellent style. Mrs. Black and Mrs. Bridges are always warmly greeted by Fredericton audiences, and Prof. Bristowe quite upheld his reputation. The entertainment was under the auspices of St. Paul's working band, of which Mrs. J. R Howie is the energetic president.

RURAL TOPICS.

NEWS FROM THE STIRRING VILLAGES OF YORK.

HARVEY STATION.

Nov. 13.—Mrs. John Hay met with a very serious accident last Thursday afternoon. It appears that she was attending to the cooking of some pigs feed on an outside fireplace, when her clothing caught fire. After vainly trying to put it out, she ran into the house whose only occupant at the time was her mother-in-law, a lady over eighty years of age, who showed great courage and presence of mind in extinguishing the fire by wrapping a quilt around the unfortunate woman whose clothing was by this time almost burned off and her limbs and back terribly burned. Dr. Keith was in attendance at once. She was in great agony but is now a little easier although still in a critical condition, but hopes are entertained of her recovery.

There is considerable sickness in the place at present and Dr. Keith is kept busy. J. D. Little and most of family are down with what is thought to be a mild type of typhoid fever. John Rutherford, of Tweedside, is also seriously ill.

The parish Sunday school convention was held in the church on Monday afternoon and evening. Rev. A. Lucas and S. J. Parsons of the N. B. Sunday school association, were present. A. W. Coburn, president of the parish association, occupied the chair. The reports on the condition of the Sunday schools in the parish were very encouraging. At the evening session stirring addresses were given by Messrs. Parsons and Lucas, Rev. J. A. McLean and John Swan, of Tweedside, also gave very instructive addresses on the benefit of bible reading.

SCOTCH SETTLEMENT.

Nov. 13.—We are having remarkably fine weather this fall and our farmers are taking advantage of it by doing quite an amount of ploughing.

The farmers of this place report an excellent crop of turnips of a very large size. Our neighboring settlement farmers must not think that they have beaten us altogether on that crop, for turnips have been raised down this way weighing up as high as twenty-six pounds.

Walter Allen, of this place, and Mrs. H. A. Haines, of Hainesville, were married on the 30th October at Mr. Allen's residence. The rev. O. E. Steeves officiated. Only the immediate friends of the groom were present. The boys turned out in full force with cow bells, tin pans, horns, etc., the following evening to serenade the happy couple, but we are told they were not very heartily received.

The third monthly tea social will be held at George S. Hagerman's on the evening of Thanksgiving day. All are invited to attend and a pleasant time may be expected.

Mrs. Samuel Allen who has been quite ill for the past few weeks, is recovering.

Mrs. J. Sharp, spent part of last week visiting her daughter, Mrs. Alexander Sinnott, at Fredericton.

Mrs. James L. Clayton has returned from Houlton where she has been visiting her sister.

CROSS CREEK.

Nov. 15.—Mr. Cassidy, agent for the Mercantile insurance company, of Boston, met with a severe accident on Monday. While in the barn his foot was caught in the cutter of a mowing machine, causing him to fall. He received some severe bruises about the back and shoulders; his ankle was also wrenched badly. He is receiving good care at Thos. Coughlan's and, we are glad to learn, is improving rapidly.

John McEachern, station agent C. E. R., has been visiting his home in Millerton, and W. K. Hallett, of Marysville, has been filling his place at the station.

J. E. & R. S. Sansom's new shingle shed is rapidly nearing completion under the competent management of major Howe, M. P. P. It makes a nice addition to the little group of buildings about the station.
