COLD-BLOODED MURDER.

Especially when prices are low considerable loss is often occasioned by sending to market too soon, before the calves are fully ready, and often the difference in the quality makes so much difference in the price as to shut out the profits.

As the supply of grass in the pastures falls, good hay or corn fodder must be supplied to take its place, and the necessity for a better variety becomes greater. While in fattening cattle, as well as hogs, it is quite an item to make corn the principal ration yet it is an exceptional case when corn alone will make the most economical ration.

One of the principles of feeding that is thoroughly settled, is that no material fully supplies all the elements of nutrition in the right proportions to give the best gain at lowest cost. Of course the greater part of the feed should be grown upon the farm, yet in many cases it will pay to buy bran, middling and oil meal to feed in connection with the corn.

As long as good feed is secured in the pastures, it is of course best to allow the cattle to run out, because they will keep healthier, but they should be kept as quiet as possible. Fattening animals need but little exercise. Give them plenty of water, feed regularly all that they will eat up clean, and if intended for early market, push the fattening as much as possible and then market as soon as they are fully ready.

CREAMERY BUTTER.

A Description of Modern Methods of Handling Milk.

How many readers have seen a creamery in action, and know exactly how butter is made by the method which has taken the place of that once in vogue in every farmer's dairy? At Stowe, Vt., is a good specimen of these "new fangled" ways of treating cream, and one who wishes to spend a forenoon in the pleasant survey of an interesting work will find himself repaid for seeking out this cool, clean building in a lovely town, says a writer in the Youth's companion. First of all, unless the creamery is a co-operative one, the milk must be bought, and in any case the farmers for miles around must bring or send in their milk. Generally all the milk that a farm produces is sent. Sometimes the creamery uses over 4000 pounds a day, a "pound" of milk usually filling a "seamy" pint.

The milk is not paid for by measure, for that would be most unjust. The man who had Jersey cows would then receive no more than the owner of animals which are "large milkers," but whose milk is of poor quality. So the milk is tested by the use of an acid, and paid for according to its percentage of butter making quality.

Early in the morning the new milk is made to flow steadily into a receiver, and there it comes in contact with a cylindrical vessel which is whirling at the rate of 4,000 revolutions a minute. The motion has the effect of separating the cream from the milk; as the milk is heavier, it falls to the outside of the vessel, where it is carried off through a pipe, and the cream, being lighter, seeks the centre, exactly as the foam of a whirlpool is always thrown to the middle of the circle.

A metal ring, rising between the two fluids, serves to keep them permanently apart, and the cream, like the milk, is carried off by a pipe of its own. It flows into a large oblong tank in the next room, and there protected by a thin cloth from dust and flies, it stands for forty-eight hours, since butter has a richer taste if the cream is allowed to "ripen" a little.

The enormous churn which receives the cream when it is ready for the second process, is in a shape exactly like those used by many a farmer's wife, and turns bodily with every revolution; it is, however, moved by steam power, and not by "fallow grease," and the buttermilk is finally drained off through the floor into enormous vats.

And when the butter has "come," what delight to see it! Great yellow masses, usually about sixty pounds in quantity, are spread in a broad circle upon a round table. Immediately over this table are two grooved, wooden rollers, and when the table is set in motion by machinery, it slowly turns about under constant supervision of a white paper revolving. Thus the buttermilk is quickly and effectually pressed from the mass, and it lies spread out, ready for salting.

As the table turns a woman shakes over the butter fine salt from a sieve, an ounce of salt to a pound of butter, and when a few more revolutions of the rollers have worked it in, the butter is made.

It is then rapidly packed into small tubs, covered with a cloth and a thick layer of salt, or is made into beautifully regular pats. These pats, each weighing a pound, marked with a quarter-pound sign, are wrapped up in white paper and then placed in a very ingenious receptacle, formed of this wood, made so as to bend in the proper places and form a little box.

When one views the cleanliness and precision which go with this work, done on so large a scale, he cannot help being convinced that the creamery has not destroyed the poetry which still clings about the life of the dairy.

Mr. Foster Issues a Statement in Regard Thereof.

OTTAWA, Ont., November 20. - Hon. Geo. E. Foster, minister of finance, has issued a statement on the lumber duty question, defining Canada's position in the matter and the probable action that will be taken in case the American duties on lumber are not lowered. The statement is as follows:

"The lumber question stands in this way. In the years ago the main question was, whether Canada's position in the matter and the probable action that will be taken in case the American duties on lumber are not lowered. The statement is as follows:
