A Wild Scene in the English Commons—A Free Fight on the Floor.

LONDON, July 27.—In the house of commons today Sir Edward Grey, parliamentary secretary for the Foreign Office, stated that the government was taking every possible step towards restoring peace between the warring factions led by King Malita and chief Mafatsa in Samoa and toward developing the trade prospects of the islands.

THE SIAM BLOCKADE REBUTED.
In response to further questions, Sir Edward said that precise information as to when the blockade of Siam would commence had not been given. The government had given no advice to Siam unless it had been asked for. Great Britain regretted that France deemed a blockade necessary in view of British shipping interests involved. No full statement as to the situation was yet possible, but complete information would be given as soon as possible.

CLOSE OF THE HOME RULE DEBATE.
On the government program, ten o'clock this evening was the hour set for the closure of the debate in committee on the home rule bill. The parts of the bill left over for the discussion of the last week and for the divisions of the evening were the new financial clauses, the schedules and the preamble.

WANTED IRELAND'S INCOME GUARANTEE.
The proceedings after in the evening were late. John Clancy, Parnellite for North Dublin county, moved an amendment to the effect that the Imperial government should guarantee to Ireland £500,000, and during the provisional period of six years.

Mr. Gladstone declined to accept the amendment. The financial scheme under discussion he said, provided fully for the equitable, liberal, treatment of the Irish government. If the estimates, which have been made with the greatest care, were realized, Ireland would have £212,000 annually secured her.

Mr. Goheen, chancellor of the exchequer in the last Salisbury cabinet, also spoke against Mr. Clancy's motion.

CHAMBERLAIN ON THE CLAUSE.
Members continued the debate until 11:45 o'clock. Then Joseph Chamberlain rose to deliver the final broadside of the opposition.

He began by giving his opinion of the clause as applied by the government. The members, he said, were about to witness the last scene in a discreditable farce. The debate on the financial clauses had been a mere sham. The government had stood over friend and foe alike, ready to fall the guillotine without regard for justice or constitutional rights. The Irish members, as well as the unionists, were anxious to discuss the length of the important financial provisions presented by the new clauses, but such discussion was to be cut short.

The bill had been changed in its most vital feature; still no debate was regarded as necessary since whatever was altered, the bill was always found perfect by the adherents of the prime minister.

Jeers from the Irish, cheers from the unionists and counter cheers from the liberals, interrupted Mr. Chamberlain at this point. He waited two or three minutes, before the confusion abated sufficiently for him to speak without effort.

AMID CONSERVATIVE CRIES OF "WITHDRAW," Mr. O'Connor humbly apologized to the speaker, "If any words of his had contributed to bringing about this most regrettable state of affairs."

The speaker said the apology was most ample and that the house could expect no more.

After Col. Sanderson and others had attempted to explain their part in the affair, the new clause was adopted by a vote of 312 to 291.

The motion that the first schedule stand a part of the bill, was carried by a 310 to 277.

The second schedule was carried by 290 to 273 amid loud opposition cheers. The rest of the schedules were carried without noteworthy incidents.

When the committee rose and chairman Mellor reported to speaker Peel, presiding over the house, the home rule bill, as amended in committee, cheer after cheer was given, and all hats were waved for Mr. Gladstone by the liberals and Irish, who were answered by counter cheers from the unionists.

The report stage was fixed for August 7. Adjourned.

WHITE'S COVE.
JULY 31.—The people in this vicinity have been busy haying on the highlands, which is not more than half crop. Quite a number of summer visitors and tourists are here.

Fun. Taylor has his pleasure boat in good order, and takes great pleasure in sailing on the cove with one or more occupants.

Miss Maud McLean, of St. John, and Miss Florrie Marsh, of Fredericton, are guests of L. P. Ferris.

Miss Eloise Charlton, is visiting J. E. Austin.

Mrs. Harve Chase and daughter spent Sunday at the cove.

The misses Gerrie and Blanche Scrubner of St. John, are visiting Miss Annie Grier.

Captain Joshua Colwell has his new steamer fitted up for tourists. He has the families of G. G. and W. C. King, on an excursion on the St. John river.

THEY DO NOT DESPAIR.
An utter loss of hope is not characteristic of the human race. It is the progress is arrested by use of Scott's Emulsion, which is Cod Liver Oil made as palatable as cream.

A Great Fisherman.—Sykes—Hullo, Brownlow! What luck? Brownlow—None at all. Been here three hours and haven't caught a thing. Sykes—That's queer. Lots of fish there. What bait are you using? Brownlow—By thunder! I expect that's the trouble. Forget my bait.

Ich, mange and scratches of every kind on human or animal, cured in 30 minutes by Woolf's Sanitary Lotion. Warranted by Davis, Staples & Co.

A STRUGGLING, CURSING MASS. Blows were struck right and left. Members fell and were picked up by their friends to fight again. The whole space between the front benches, was filled with a struggling, cursing mass of members, striking, clawing and upsetting each other. Manful efforts were made to separate the combats.

Both sergeants-at-arms forced their way through the thick of the fight, but as fast as one group was pacified another came to blows.

The conflict stemmed. Eventually Mr. Gladstone begged Mr. Edward Majoribanks, a sturdy liberal to do something to stop the fighting. Mr. Majoribanks dug his way through the entangled mass of belligerents, and by repeated appeals in the name of the premier, succeeded in stemming the conflict.

Col. Sanderson came out of the door with a black eye.

Just as peace was assured, the door leading to the lobby opened, and Dr. Toner, who had been outside and had heard of the fight, but a minute before, came down the house leaping over benches in his haste to get into the melee. The sergeant-at-arms caught him half way from the door to the first bench, and held him till he consented to keep the peace.

WELL SET TRAP.
English visitors to the Chicago world's fair have forwarded to the London Press, sensational details of an organization for allurement of young girls from England and other European countries to Chicago for immoral purposes.

It seems that some time before the opening of the exhibition, advertisements appeared in London and provincial papers stating that a large number of young ladies of prepossessing appearance would be required as waitresses and buffet attendants at the exhibition.

After some correspondence the applications were successful, the young women being either orphans, friendless or without near relatives.

They were selected and conveyed to America via Havre, going there with a further contingent of German, French and Swiss girls.

On arriving at Chicago, they were conveyed to lodgings, which turned out to be houses of ill fame, especially engaged for the purpose, in anticipation of the enormous number of visitors expected during the exhibition.

Finding out the true facts of the case, the girls indignantly demanded to be sent back to England, being however scattered in different parts of the city without organization, friends or money, the scheme of the villains was only too successful.

The English girls were not at such a great disadvantage as the foreigners because they were able to speak the language managed to escape and eventually obtained employment in the capacity they expected to fill when they left England.

'S FIST BETTER THAN GUNS.
A Story of a Man Whom the Old Times Would Like to Welcome in Kelly.

Kelly, New Mexico, is a pretty quiet town just now, in spite of the huge masses of lead and silver to be found mixed together in the mountain on which the town stands, but the little graveyard, with its white paling about each grave under the pines near by will start any old inhabitant's teeth of the days when Kelly, as well as the other camps of Magdalena, were "wide open."

As a rule the stories of fights are very much alike—whiskey, cards, hard words, guns, exploding cartridges, gasping victims, and funerals follow in quick succession. But Kelly has one story out of the usual routine.

In the days when pistols were worn as regularly as shirts (a plenty to satisfy any ordinary tenderfoot can still be seen in this region) a stranger came to Kelly and stopped at the hotel without saying much to anybody. He had a team and driver and took in the various gulches and prospects that could be so reached, and he kept his eyes on the trade of the various business places in town as well. Some thought he was mine speculator, and others thought he was sizing up the camp as a place to do some mercantile business. He took a drink now and then, and sat in a game of slot poker where he came out about even one night. After three or four days, when nothing had been heard about him, a rumor ran about the camp that he had died. There was Budd Wood, who was then the toughest of the sports in town, said he would "call him one for luck."

Budd is said to have been an able though in spite of a deal of swagger in his bearing but he had one falling as a tough—he had a drink and he found himself in a passion before he could kill anybody. He was by no means what would be called here a cool and gentlemanly tough. So when he set out to call the supposed detective he began by drinking a lot of whiskey, and then he had a drink and he found himself in a passion before he could kill anybody. He was by no means what would be called here a cool and gentlemanly tough.
