 FREDERICTON, MAY 26, 1894.
 THE MILITARY SCHOOL.

The scare about the alleged intended removal of the Military School from Fredericton has apparently blown over. Col. Lake, the gentleman unnecessarily imported from England to act as quartermaster general at headquarters, and Architect White, of the militia department, were here Wednesday on a tour of inspection, and left the impression that no such an idea as the removal of the School was hinted at Ottawa. Their business here was to inspect the barracks, and it is understood they will order some necessary repairs. They also visited the old government house grounds, which, it is said, the government have in view for barracks accommodation, and may report in favor of moving the School up there. Some time ago the City Council communicated with the militia department at Ottawa with a view of purchasing the present military property if the School should be removed to government house grounds, and it is understood that the corporation would be willing to pay somewhere in the vicinity of $20,000 for the property, but no decisive reply has ever been received to the proposition. However, the General is said to be very much impressed with the idea, and the change may come in the near future.

There is yet no indication that the band of the School will be reorganized, and for this Mr. Foster should really feel ashamed. He came down here on a political junketing trip last summer, and the band was engaged by his friends to brighten up the picnic in his honor at Belmont. General Herbert heard of it, and resenting the idea that the band should be pulled into political demonstrations, ordered it to be abolished. Fredericton will not care for many more such visits from Mr. Foster if he cannot undo the mistake occasioned by his last excursion down this way.

PRINCIPAL GRANT'S INDEPENDENCE.

The Toronto Empire, organ of the Tory party, and anti-Mowatt in Ontario, is after Rev. Principal Grant of Queen's university, Kingston, because he has expressed his wish that Sir Oliver may succeed in the present local contest. Mr. Grant is a conservative, but he believes Mowatt's twenty-two years' rule in Ontario has been for the best interests of that province, and he is not afraid to say so. The Empire has a big contract in hand if it attempts to line every Ontario conservative up against Mowatt. The St. John Sun has tried that game against the New Brunswick local government, but it miserably failed, as the Empire will. The people like to have some say in selecting their local rulers, and are not to be bulldozed into a choice by the subsidized organs of Toryism.

ARCHBISHOP O'BRIEN, of Halifax, who has been at Ottawa attending the meeting of the Royal Society, told an interviewer that in religious tolerance and good feeling Ontario is fully ninety years behind Nova Scotia. "Down in my province," said the Archbishop, "Protestants and Catholics recognize each other's rights and try to live in peace and harmony. They agree to differ, and as a result things go on very nicely. The people up this way, however, seem to be religiously speaking, just where we in Nova Scotia were 90 years ago. To my mind there is no necessity for religious strife."

A bill has been signed by the Governor of New York State which makes it a misdemeanor for any municipality in that state or any contractor doing business for any city, village, town, county or the state to employ other than citizens of the United States in such work. It not only affects a very large number of Canadians, but will deprive of employment many thousands of Poles, Italians and Hungarians. The bill seems to have been smuggled through the legislature, but since its contents have become known, has created intense excitement among the foreigners in the State.

The notorious Judge Elliott, who counted Mr. Hyman out of his election in London, Ontario, has been appointed revising barrister for that city. The wonder is that he had the hardihood to accept the position, even if the government were willing to reward him for his former questionable conduct.

HER GRACIOUS MAJESTY the Queen, celebrated her seventy-fifth birthday Thursday, and next month will complete fifty-seven years on the throne. Long may she reign, is the fervent wish of her millions of loyal subjects in every part of the civilized world.

Is the Curran bridge construction at Montreal, the Dominion government spent $300,000 of the public money over and above the legitimate cost of the work.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

LORD ROSEBERY had a Commons majority of forty on the budget bill Wednesday night.

The yachting season on the Miramichi opened Thursday, and now we may expect the usual nautical wrangles between Editors Smith and Stewart.

GOVERNOR CHAMPLAIN of Quebec, besides being an astute politician, is a linguist of no mean ability. He visited the educational institutions of Montreal the other day and replied to addresses in English, French and Latin, speaking fluently in all three tongues.

London, G. B., is to have a great gathering of the Y. M. C. A. next month and delegates are expected from all parts of the civilized globe. The Queen has invited the visitors to inspect Windsor Castle and to hold service in the Albert Memorial hall.

The review of English troops which was witnessed by the Queen at Aldershot last week, does not seem to have impressed military experts with the greatness of Britain's soldiery. The Duke of Connaught's division which is supposed to comprise the pick of the First Army Corps and to be in every respect ready to take the field, was little better than a collection of cavalry youths, unfit for foreign service, or even to bear arms. Of 10,000 men present, not half could go abroad tomorrow if their services were required.

Hon. W. R. Meredith, leader of the Ontario opposition, launched his platform the other night at London, Sir Oliver Mowatt has commended his tour of the province and a hot campaign is promised. Mr. Meredith has come out flat-footed for prohibition, and no doubt the wily "little premier" will see him and go one better.

The Woodstock Sentinel congratulates Fredericton on having a wealthy citizen like Mr. Wilnot, who is disposed to appropriate his money for the advancement of the city and the pleasure of its people. The Sentinel also suggests that it would be a good thing if some wealthy citizen of that town would buy Bill's Island for a park. The Herald could suggest a gentleman who has the means to do it if he will. What's the matter with L. P. F.?

A MAJORITY of the city council have yielded to the pressure of public opinion and ordered the purchase of a watering cart, and it is expected it will be here for use possibly the last of next week. Its arrival will be very warmly welcomed by a long suffering public, and it is to be hoped the council have made no mistake in their selection. The value of goods already destroyed on Queen street this season would almost pay the price of the new cart.

If the mayor and the city marshal are unable to suppress the rowdy instincts of certain members of the city council, they ought to call in the militia. At every meeting this year there has been a "scene" and two of the aldermen who are the ring-leaders, pay about as much attention to the mayor's calls for order as they would to the yelping of a yellow dog. The proceedings at the special meeting Tuesday evening were simply disgraceful and would not be tolerated in a brothel.

A. T. FREDY, who visited Fredericton some years ago as a member of the labor commission, has retired from the Hamilton Spectator to become inspector of weights and measures. In the days preceding the introduction of the national policy, and indeed since that time, Mr. Fredy was considered the ablest political writer on the conservative press of Canada, and he has well earned the position the government has bestowed upon him. The only trouble is that it ought to be a better one.

ENGLAND has scored another bloodless success in Africa by a treaty which has just been concluded between King Leopold of Belgium and the British ambassador to that country. The King, recognizing the British sphere of influence as indicated in the Anglo-German treaty of July 1890, abandons to England a small strip of territory in the region of the Upper Congo and Tanganyika, thus giving England access northward to the Nile. In exchange England grants the king until the end of his reign, the left bank of the Nile up to the 17th degree. This is considered the most important African treaty concluded for many years and is a master stroke of diplomacy on the part of King Leopold as it shuts out France from the Nile and places the Congo free state under the obligation of fighting the Sudan dervishes.

If Herr Dove's bullet proof coat stands all the tests to which it is to be subjected, we shall have soldiers going to war as in the old days in coats of mail, and impenetrable to the bullets of the enemy. At London, Wednesday, Dove showed his invention to several hundred army and navy officers, and the test made was very satisfactory. The garment is a curious two inches thick. A committee consisting of well-known officers were supplied with Lee-Metford German army rifles, Wednesday, charged with cordite regulation cartridges, and first fired at a target composed of elm logs thirty inches thick, and pierced it through and through. Shots with the same rifles and similar cartridges were then fired at the cuirass, but beyond a slight impression of the impact of the bullet, it was not injured. The Duke of Cambridge and others examined the cuirass after the firing, and pronounced the test a complete success.

ONE OF THE OLD STOCK.

Interesting sketch of the late Hon. and Rev. Jonathan Odell, of Fredericton.

W. G. McFarlane of the St. John Record staff, who is contributing a series of papers to the Sun on New Brunswick authors and their works, gives a sketch of the late Hon. and Rev. Jonathan Odell, in the early days of Fredericton, one of its most prominent citizens, and one of the founders of this province.

He was born at Newark, N. J., September 25th, 1787, and died at Fredericton, November 23rd, 1818. He obtained a good education, receiving the degree of master of arts from Nassau hall. He studied medicine and became a surgeon in the British army. While in the West Indies he resigned his commission and went to England to prepare for holy orders. He was ordained deacon in the Chapel Royal, Westminster, by Rev. Dr. Terrik, bishop of London, December 21, 1795, and priest in the following January. He was appointed to Burlington, N. J., where he arrived on July 25, 1797, and was inducted into the pastorate of St. Ann's by his excellency William Franklin, governor of New Jersey. On May 6, 1772, he married Anne deCoc. During this time he associated the practice of medicine, his reading of which he had kept up with his ministerial work.

In the distance caused by the revolution he espoused the cause of the king, and in 1775 was charged with writing letters to England. He was examined by the provincial congress of New Jersey and by the commissioners of safety of Pennsylvania, and a year later was ordered to confine himself on parole on the east side of the Delaware, within a circle of eight miles from the court house in Burlington. Arnold wrote a letter to Andre, Aug. 30, 1780, "to be left at the Rev. Mr. Odell's, New York," a copy of which may be found in the Sparks's Washington. He served during the war as chaplain in a loyal New Jersey regiment, and in 1782 when colors were presented to the King's American Dragoon William Henry, then a midshipman in the fleet of admiral Digby, he delivered an address.

He accompanied Sir Guy Carleton to England, Nov. 5, 1783, and returned to accept positions of honor in the government of New Brunswick. He was called to a seat on the executive council, and was first provincial secretary. The inscription upon the flat stone which covers his grave in the old Fredericton burying ground records, as was the custom in the old days the facts of his whole life.

The Hon. and Rev. Dr. Odell was a man of many parts. He was a physician, a clergyman, a soldier, a statesman and a poet. The late Senator W. H. Odell of this city was a grandson of Jonathan Odell.

G. S. Mays, of St. John, and Miss Gilmore, of this city, will sing at the boys' brigade concert in the city hall, Monday evening.

The Children's Clover Leaf Mission Band, in connection with St. Paul's church, are to hold a fancy sale on Tuesday evening next.

The News of the World in Brief—The Cream of our Exchanges.

The closing exercises of the Sackville institutions are in progress.

Five masked men robbed the First National Bank at Longview, Texas, Wednesday of $2,500.

Halifax celebrated the Queen's birthday with a grand review of the regular troops and militia on the common.

L. Vivier, one of the conservative M. P.'s for Manitoba, has resigned his seat because of alleged financial difficulties.

Lady Aberdeen left Ottawa today for a visit to England, but will return before the vice-regal visit to New Brunswick in August.

Amherst, N. S. had a $10,000 fire yesterday, Rhodes, Curry & Co's. warehouse and four dwellings going down in the flames.

A successful operation for cataract was performed on one of Mr. Gladstone's eyes Wednesday, and he feels no ill effect of it so far.

Two children of Chas. Jackson, Upper Economy, Colchester Co., N. S., were drowned in a well, Wednesday, by their insane mother.

Thomas Brodie, president of the Quebec board of trade and a member of the firm of W. & R. Brodie, flour merchants, died Wednesday evening.

The shipping and foundry firm of Chesley Brothers, of St. John, have assigned with liabilities of $10,000. One of the firm is John A. Chesley, M. P. for St. John.

The election in Bay de Verde, Nfld., has resulted in the return of one man by the name of W. D. Whiteway, and Ayer, government. This will give the Goodridge government a quorum in the assembly.

The Baetouche & Moncton railway station at Moncton, was broken into Thursday night, the safe door forced and thirty dollars in silver taken. The same night Jas. Flanagan's dry goods store was also broken into and a quantity of silverware and dry goods extracted. There is no clue to the burglars.

John N. Breed, father of Mrs. Geo. F. Hibbard of St. Andrews, was horribly burned and disfigured about the face, at an explosion in the granite quarry at Moorville, N. C., last week, and may lose his sight. Mr. Breed was formerly identified with the granite industry at St. George.

Edward Weeks, seventy-three years of age, committed suicide at Amherst last Saturday morning by hanging himself in a barn owned by Arthur Jones on the Nappan road. For some time past the deceased had been affected by a suicidal mania, on several occasions threatening to take his life.

In a drunken frenzy, last Sunday evening, James Wilson, Cambridge, Mass., forty years old, murdered his wife by cutting her throat with a razor and then inflicting three gashes upon his own, from the effects of which he cannot recover. Recently Wilson was discharged from the infirmary's home at Foxborough.

While George Cnarist, a professional wire-walker, was attempting to walk a steel cable stretched across the public square at Shelbyville, Tenn., and carry over his wife, Lizzie Charist, the cable slipped and both fell to the stone macadam ground, thirty-five feet below. Charist's hip is broken, and he is terribly bruised. His wife is seriously injured and will die.

Charles Small, a young lad, living with Thomas Ross at Roseway, near Digby, a few days ago found a pistol in the cellar in a basket, where it had been placed two years ago, by miners and forgotten. This he placed on the ground and struck with a stone. The explosion which followed knocked him twenty yards away into a pile of rocks. He has since been in an unconscious state.

Alfred E. Silver, a well known Halifax barrister, met with a serious accident Thursday, by which he lost his right eye. Mr. Silver, accompanied by Messrs. Payant and Thompson, was shooting from a pigeon trap. Silver was adjusting the steel spring by which the imitation pigeons are propelled into the air, when it slipped and flew back and struck him in the eye. The organ was put out and the face was terribly cut, several stitches being necessary.

The Dominion government have introduced a bill to simplify the Franchise act. The preliminary revision now required will be dispensed with, and the provincial officer will make his list from the provincial lists, and then appoint a day for each division on which he will hear complaints for striking off names and receive applications for placing names on the list. Better take the provincial lists and let them go at that. The work of the revising barrister is not in the interest of political play, and it costs the country a large sum of money.

Much interest has been aroused in fashionable circles in England over a suit for libel which has just been tried at Cork. In the case Joseph Pike brought suit against Captain Beamish, claiming $5,000 damages for slander, consisting in accusations made by Beamish that the plaintiff had cheated at cards while playing at the county club. Both men are deputy lieutenants, and the witnesses included Sir George Colthurst, Captains Barne and Cooper and Lord Brandon. A verdict was given for the defendant, the jury finding that Captain Beamish had not acted maliciously. The case was not settled the Gordon-Cumings scandal, in which the Prince of Wales was a witness.

At two o'clock Wednesday morning, burglars entered the residence of Mr. Giffard, principal of the high school at Georgetown, Ont. A noise in the parlor downstairs aroused Mr. Giffard, who jumped out of bed and was surprised to find a man already in his bedroom. The robber cried halt, but Mr. Giffard made for him, and was struck with a club and knocked down. In falling he covered his pants lying on the floor. The burglar then grabbed Giffard's coat and test and ran. Giffard has been receiving considerable money lately, but with the exception of the stolen clothes and a few bills that were in the vest, and an ugly wound on his head, the principal cause are very fortunately.

The citizens of East Sherbrooke, Quebec, are in a great flutter over the arrest of one of their members. The excitement is increased by the fact that the arrested party is a well known married lady of respectable family and good standing. The lady in question was picked up on the street by the police, who found her under the influence of something stronger than water. Facts which have leaked out since the arrest implicate some well known young men about town. In the absence of her husband this lady was in the habit of receiving these young men at her home, and there the wildest of orgies have taken place. The husband has been advised and will return home at once. It is said that he will make it hot for those who ruined his honor and home and contributed to his wife's moral degradation. He will take proceedings against these parties, and sensational developments may be expected.

TOUCHED A TENDER SPOT.

Comptroller Wallace Grows Very Angry at Dalton McCarthy.

In parliament at Ottawa, Monday, Dalton McCarthy moved for an order of the house for a return of the order, minute or direction authorizing the collector of customs at Woodstock, Ont., to admit, free of duty, certain goods, consisting of vestments or other church articles for the use of the Roman Catholic church at Woodstock, consigned to the Rev. Father Brady, of Woodstock, in the month of February, 1893; first, the decision upon which the collector acted in admitting such goods free of duty; second, all orders of the collector of customs relating thereto; third, copies of the letters and correspondence which passed between Rev. J. C. Farthing, of Woodstock, and the controller of customs with reference to the admission of such goods, and the alleged unfairness with which Mr. Farthing had been treated on the importation by him of a similar class of goods for the use of the Anglican church at Woodstock, of which he is rector. Mr. McCarthy read the correspondence in the case, and referred to what he termed the extraordinary nature of the collector's decision.

Mr. Wallace was angry when he rose to reply, and a very pretty squabble ensued. He referred to the articles on the matter which appeared in the Toronto Mail, as being inspired by craft and malice, untrue in their wording and not borne out by facts, and charged Mr. McCarthy to deny that he inspired them. He explained that he had the Anglican church at Woodstock, of which he is rector. Mr. McCarthy read the correspondence in the case, and referred to what he termed the extraordinary nature of the collector's decision.

Mr. Wallace declared there was only one letter and Mr. McCarthy had inspired them.

Col. O'Brien tried to speak and the conservatives roared him down with laughter, some remarking that the whole party was on his feet at once.

Mr. Wallace went on to say that he had never deserted his party when the leaves and fishes went sliding away. He entered upon a list of Mr. McCarthy's legal defeats, stating that his defection from the party dated from the party's discovery of his incompetency as a lawyer and consequent transference of heavy legal fees to more efficient hands.

The Speaker called the Controller to order at that point and Col. O'Brien came to Mr. McCarthy's defence, stating he (Wallace) had the only copies of the correspondence which had been published, and the Controller's insinuation that a copy had been made was absolutely unfounded.

Mr. McCarthy felt surprised at the Controller's heat. He did not blame him for the mistakes of his subordinates, occupying as he did, so very subordinate a position himself.

Mr. Wallace—It's a better position than you will ever occupy.

Mr. McCarthy—I have no desire to emulate the honorable gentleman's ambition, which appears to be gratified by my very inferior and subordinate position he holds. (Laughter.)

Sir John Thompson attempted to pour oil upon the troubled waters by a jocular reference to Mr. Edgar's motion for peaceful arbitration, but Mr. McCarthy and Mr. Wallace talked at each other over Sir John's head, until finally that gentleman was constrained to say that all the papers asked for should be brought down, and the incident ended. The engagement was very hot while it lasted, and it was greatly enjoyed by the house.

VICTORIA AT MANCHESTER.

Her Majesty Formally Opens the Great Ship Canal.

Queen Victoria left Windsor Castle for Scotland Monday, and on her way to Balmoral she stopped at Manchester and formally opened the great Manchester canal. Her Majesty arrived at Manchester at 4.30 p. m., and drove from the station through eight miles of the principal thoroughfares, which were brilliantly decorated with flags, floral arches and venetian masts, and lined with spectators.

The Queen was received at Manchester by Lord Mayor Marshall, Lord Egerton of Tatton, chairman of the Manchester ship canal company, and other distinguished guests. At the town hall addresses to Her Majesty were read at Manchester at 4.30 p. m., and drove from the station through eight miles of the principal thoroughfares, which were brilliantly decorated with flags, floral arches and venetian masts, and lined with spectators.

The most extensive preparations had been made to receive Queen Victoria on the canal company which was most profusely decorated and all the regular and volunteer troops of the city and its vicinity turned out to welcome Her Majesty. Several addresses were presented to Her Majesty including one from the canal company which was most profusely decorated and all the regular and volunteer troops of the city and its vicinity turned out to welcome Her Majesty. Several addresses were presented to Her Majesty including one from the canal company which was most profusely decorated and all the regular and volunteer troops of the city and its vicinity turned out to welcome Her Majesty.

In the evening all the streets of Manchester and of the towns along the line of the canal were ablaze with illuminations. Every precaution was taken to prevent Her Majesty or any other person suffering from the effects of the pest up waters of the canal, considering discussion having been caused by the statement that the waters of the Irwell impounded in the canal and the hundred acres of docks was so bad as to be likely to produce sickness among the crowds of people expected to be present at the formal opening of the canal.

The great canal, which has converted Manchester into a seaport, was commenced on Nov. 11th, 1887, at Eastham Ferry, on the Cheshire side of the Mersey. The cost of the canal has been about $75,000,000.

FOOLED BY SMUGGLERS.

The Lower St. Lawrence smugglers have just played a good trick on the government custom Constance, Capt. May. A quantity of rum worth $40,000 was hidden in a box of cigars from Miquelon was en route to Quebec, and the revenue officers were informed of her coming up. In order to mislead them the smugglers sent forward an old schooner loaded with only 38 barrels and cases of liquor, which was purposely put in the way of the Constance. As soon as the old schooner was sighted the Constance captured her after a short resistance feigned by her crew and she was triumphantly towed to Quebec. In the meantime the other schooner with her large cargo safely proceeded on her way and landed at a certain point of the north shore, where all the whiskey was discharged and put in a safe hiding place.

W. W. Doherty's saw, grist and carding mills at Campbellton were totally destroyed by fire Saturday morning. He had no insurance and estimates his loss at $4,000. A quantity of lumber owned by David Richards was also destroyed, but this was insured.

At St. Andrews last week, Judge Landry presided in the circuit court for the first time, and was presented with a complimentary address by the bar and the grand jury. In reply to the latter, he intimated the case of a learned English judge, who recently died, and who said that there were three stages in the career of a judge; the first, when he was always afraid that he was wrong in his decisions; the second, when he was never wrong, and the third, when he didn't care a rap whether he was right or wrong. He had reached the first stage.

He hoped the other stages would never come.

Every precaution was taken to prevent Her Majesty or any other person suffering from the effects of the pest up waters of the canal, considering discussion having been caused by the statement that the waters of the Irwell impounded in the canal and the hundred acres of docks was so bad as to be likely to produce sickness among the crowds of people expected to be present at the formal opening of the canal.

The great canal, which has converted Manchester into a seaport, was commenced on Nov. 11th, 1887, at Eastham Ferry, on the Cheshire side of the Mersey. The cost of the canal has been about $75,000,000.

The Lower St. Lawrence smugglers have just played a good trick on the government custom Constance, Capt. May. A quantity of rum worth $40,000 was hidden in a box of cigars from Miquelon was en route to Quebec, and the revenue officers were informed of her coming up. In order to mislead them the smugglers sent forward an old schooner loaded with only 38 barrels and cases of liquor, which was purposely put in the way of the Constance. As soon as the old schooner was sighted the Constance captured her after a short resistance feigned by her crew and she was triumphantly towed to Quebec. In the meantime the other schooner with her large cargo safely proceeded on her way and landed at a certain point of the north shore, where all the whiskey was discharged and put in a safe hiding place.
