HE HOLDS THE FORT.

Rev. Mr. Mullin will Not Resign the Stanley Pastorate.

In the St. John Presbyterian meeting at St. John, Tuesday, there was some discussion with reference to the Presbyterian church at Stanley, of which Rev. Mr. Mullin is pastor. The majority of the members of the Presbytery seem to be of the opinion that it would greatly improve matters if Rev. Mr. Mullin were to resign as pastor of the Presbyterian church at Stanley. This matter has been hinted at by the Rev. Mr. Mullin, but he absolutely and positively refused to accept of it. It is stated that the congregation, of which he has had charge for a number of years, is gradually but surely becoming smaller and smaller, and that the Rev. Mr. Mullin, although a very able minister in many respects, is not calculated to accomplish a very great deal of good in his present position.

Rev. Mr. Mullin does not appear to entertain the same view as that held by many members of the presbytery. Instead he contends that he and the members of his congregation are getting along very amably. When confronted by complaints from persons living at Stanley and who have always been considered adherents of the Presbyterian church at that place, Rev. Mr. Mullin answers that such persons are not members of his congregation at all.

The greater part of the discussion held Tuesday morning with regard to this matter was in the hands of Rev. Mr. Mullin. The Sun learned, however, that the members of the presbytery made Rev. Mr. Mullin several proposals, but he stoutly refused to accept any of them. He is of the opinion that the presbytery is opposing him unfairly and is determined to stand up and if necessary fight for his rights.

No action was taken by the presbytery with regard to this matter. A FREDERICTON BOY Well Spoken of by a New York Paper.

Fabrics, Fancy Goods and Notions, a New York journal, published in the interests of the dry goods trade, contains an appreciative sketch of Percy C. Biggs, a Fredericton boy, now employed by D. McCarthy & Sons, a dry goods house which does a $3,000,000 business annually.

It says: Mr. Biggs is the resident buyer of D. McCarthy & Sons, wholesale and retail dry goods, Syracuse, N. Y. He is an active, intelligent man who is fully aware that he has important interests to serve, and who has the ability to meet all the requirements of his position. He was born at Fredericton, New Brunswick, Canada, May 29, 1869. For several years he was associated with the manufacture and sale of harness at Fredericton and St. Stephen, New Brunswick, and at Newtonville, Mass.

In 1885, he became connected with the New York office of Jordan, Marsh & Co., of Boston, Mass., as a buyer, where he was regarded as a very efficient man among a staff of exceptionally bright, energetic buyers, who know that they can give this enterprising house in no other way. He went with H. D. Lewis, the resident buyer of Joseph Horne & Co., Pittsburg, Pa., in January, 1891, remaining until the following September. It was at this period that he was engaged for his present position by D. McCarthy & Sons. Always an ambitious and conscientious man, he quickly demonstrated that both were thoroughly aroused by the opportunity presented in his new more responsible duties.

He systematized everything and he gave strict attention to every claim upon his time, while as a buyer of the varied lines required from day to day, he showed technical knowledge and good judgment. He has an intelligent face and gentlemanly manners. Judging him by his career, and from what we hear of him in the market, we are prepared to say the class of resident buyers has in him a most worthy representative.

Died in Cambridge. Joseph C. Anderson, well known in the printer who worked in this city under Charles S. Lugin, and later in other offices, died at Cambridge, Mass., last Friday evening. Mr. Anderson was born in Fredericton thirty-three years ago, and resided here until about eleven years since, when with other members of his family, he made Cambridge his home. While there he worked in the Riverside Press, and was respected for his many excellent traits of character as well as for his general intelligence. In December 1891 he lost the partner of his life, and not long after began to show signs of declining health. For more than two years he has heroically battled with the disease, but was finally overcome many months ago that his days were numbered, and prepared all things for his departure. He suffered much for many weeks, but showed remarkable Christian resignation, and was glad when the Master came to serve him his summons to die. He was buried in Cambridge, and was a brother of Alex. Anderson, presser in Joseph Walker's tailor shop.

Laid the Corner Stone. Governor Fraser laid the corner stone of the new Salvation Army barracks at 4 p. m. Thursday, in the presence of a large crowd of people. The army had an open air demonstration at 3 o'clock, upon Governor Fraser's arrival, the ceremony was gone through with. Staff Captain Howells opened the proceedings with a short speech, and handed the trowel to Governor Fraser, who laid the stone and briefly addressed the meeting, saying words of encouragement for the Salvation Army, and wishing it all success. In the corner stone were placed a bottle containing copies of late Fredericton newspapers and the War Cry, as well as a cork, containing a short history of the Army and mentioning the laying of the stone. In the evening, Staff Captain Howells and Captains O'Connell and Pyles held a demonstration in the Methodist church. Rev. Mr. Payson and Rev. Dr. Brecken also addressed the meeting.

Peppers at the Head. The McGill medical students at Montreal had their annual outing Wednesday night, attending the theatre some hundreds strong, and taking possession of the building. The Star says the students began their little jamboree at the University, where they assembled. It was raining, but it takes something more than cold water to dampen the ardor of your genuine McGill men. The stalwart president of the students of the Faculty, H. W. Peppers of Fredericton, in the second year, his tall white hat sporting enough college ribbon to supply the bandages for an army field hospital, marshalled the young gentlemen into procession order and took post in front of the Victoria Rifles band, which had been engaged for the night. The band struck up the procession got under way and the fun had begun. The students looked well and with all their characteristic modesty evidently knew it.

W. E. Stewart, who during his short residence in Fredericton, as manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, has made himself very popular both in business and social circles, left today for the West Indies, on business for the bank and will be absent five weeks. Mr. Chalmers, relieving agent, fills Mr. Stewart's place in the meantime.

THE MCADAM TROUBLE.

Sproul Who Committed the Assault on Simmons Committed for Trial.

Haggerty's Connexion with the Affair.

The trouble at McAdam between G. A. Haggerty, mechanical superintendent of the C. P. R., and Simmons, the store-keeper, has ended in the dismissal of both. The difficulties between the two date back several months. There appears to have been two parties, and these two parties have not pulled together in any sense of the word. They appear to have been divided in nearly every instance respecting the Atlantic division of the C. P. R. Some time ago Simmons was assaulted and badly beaten on the street. This brought on a crisis, heightened by the arrest at Milville the other day of Harper Sproul, charged with assaulting Simmons in the instigation of another party as alleged.

Sproul's preliminary examination was commenced before Police Magistrate Marsh Tuesday. Wesley Van Wart, Q. C., appeared for the prosecution and Wm. Wilson for the defence. Wm. Simmons was the first witness called. He deposed he was storekeeper of the Atlantic division of the C. P. R. to September 1st. He had charge of all stores and kept the time of the mechanical department. Sproul worked for the C. P. R. up to April last. He was under the direction of Master Mechanic G. A. Haggerty. Witness, as storekeeper, certified Sproul's time and there was trouble about it in March. Sproul was locked up in the room where he worked and the shop timekeeper could not get to him. As a result witness had to strike out 40 hours of his time. About the 12th of March, Sproul threatened witness saying he would fix him if he interfered with his time again. Witness then struck the shop timekeeper to stop Sproul's time, but as Mr. Haggerty had become responsible for his conduct, he was allowed to continue at work. In April he was discharged for building velocipedes with the company's material and in the company's time. Sproul afterwards reported that witness gave him material belonging to the company. Witness did not see Sproul again until Oct. 19. On that day, when witness was passing the tank house at McAdam, about 5:25 p. m., Sproul sprang out and clinched him with both hands. He said: "Now I've got you," struck witness on the forehead and knocked him down. He then kicked witness in the mouth and on the left cheek and thumped him with his fists. Witness was stunned and remained lying on the ground for some time. He was covered with blood. When he arrived home he fainted. Dr. Young, Vancouver, attended him. Witness's nervous system was completely shattered as a result of the assault. His head at times grew dizzy.

After the noon adjournment W. Simmons was cross-examined by Mr. Wilson, but his evidence disclosed nothing further except some details regarding his previous differences with Sproul which led to the investigation of June 27th-28th. Sproul had charged that Simmons, as storekeeper, had given him certain articles from the company's stores. He was completely exasperated at the investigation.

William Fraser, yard brakeman at McAdam, gave evidence that on the night of the 19th inst. he was bringing an engine from the roundhouse to the water tank and saw two men near the tank, one on top of the other, but did not know what they were doing. He was some distance away from them and it was impossible for him to see them. He afterwards saw one of them going in the direction of the machine shop.

Thomas Johnston, section foreman of the C. P. R. between McAdam and Woodstock, swore that he lives at Sugar Brook, near McAdam. There is only one house at Sugar Brook, in which he and his family, and Maynard Fielding and family reside. He was home on the night of Friday, 19th, and morning of Saturday, 20th. Retired at eight Friday night, and was awakened about 12 o'clock. Going down stairs he found the prisoner at the front door. In conversation he stated that he wanted something to eat, as he was hungry, having walked from McAdam, where he had given Simmons a beating. While he was eating he said he had struck Simmons and had him down and they were in the woods and so on up the Woodstock line intending to walk to Sugar Brook and catch a train, which would stop there for water. He would have given Simmons more if it had not been for a man coming with a light. Prisoner left his house about 2 o'clock, Saturday morning. He was accompanied by Mr. Wilson but nothing further elicited.

Adjourned. The examination was resumed Wednesday morning. James Foster, engineer, testified that for the past several months he had been locomotive engineer on the C. P. R. running from Woodstock to Hinton and back. He knew the prisoner and Simmons. Haggerty in his superior office. On the night of Friday, the 19th inst., witness passed Sugar Brook at 21 o'clock, standard, going toward McAdam with a mixed train. Conductor Gray in charge. He stopped at McAdam half an hour and then went on to Woodstock. He stopped there nearly an hour, and returned to McAdam, stopped there an hour and a half and went on to Woodstock. He swore that he had charge between McAdam and Woodstock, and that he had taken McAdam to stop or slow up at Sugar Brook and take prisoner. In obedience to same slow up at Sugar Brook tank and took on prisoner. This was between three and four o'clock, standard, Saturday morning, 20th inst. Prisoner got on engine and occupied forward seat. "We had a conversation during the ride to Houlton. Prisoner asked me if I had heard any news. I replied, I should think I did. He beat down there, and they blame you for it." Prisoner came and stood close to me and said, "I hit him and knocked him down and afterwards went up the bank and on Woodstock line on a coal shed." He asked me if I had seen the boss, I understood him to mean Haggerty. I saw Mr. Haggerty at McAdam on the night of the 19th, at his office. When I got there Mr. Haggerty took me into a private room, asked me if I would do him a favor; I replied "I will." He said, Simmons got a hell of a sounding here tonight, and Sproul went to Sugar Brook. I want you to stop or slow up at Woodstock line, and get him up." I replied, "All right." Mr. Haggerty said he did not want me to say anything about it. I had no instructions to stop the train other than those given by Mr. Haggerty. Conductor Craig knew nothing about it. I had no authority or right to stop or slow up the train on Mr. Haggerty's account.

Witness was cross-examined by Mr. Wilson, but nothing of importance to the defence was elicited. Some testimony was given regarding grades between McAdam and Woodstock, and also signals used when passing or stopping at flag stations. Flag stations are generally passed at a lower rate of speed than ordinary, but it is probable that on the night referred to, Sugar Brook would have been past at a fast rate, had not instructions been given to pick prisoner up, as train was behind time.

Re-examined, Foster said: "When I told Mr. Haggerty 'all right' I meant to give him to understand that I would take prisoner on and say nothing about it." At the opening of the police court, Thursday morning, the defence announced that they would not call any witnesses. Sproul was asked if he had anything to say in explanation, and replied that he had not. Police Magistrate Marsh committed Sproul to jail to await his trial at the next York circuit.

BISHOP MEDLEY'S MEMORIAL.

The Unveiling of a Tablet and Window to the Memory of the Late Bishop Medley. From the Exeter (England) News, Oct. 11, 1894.

St. Thomas, separated from Exeter by the River Exe, has a particularly fine parish church, larger by far than any parish church Exeter itself can boast. The fabric has many exceptional points of architectural interest, and contains the 14th century choir, with eagle lectern, that originally stood in the Cathedral. On the north side of the sanctuary is a recumbent figure and canopied tomb, by the sculptor which is the memory of the late Mr. Medley, with the initials of the late Bishop of Fredericton, and Metropolitan of Canada. On the south east wall is a memorial to the late Bishop Horden. In the nave, also on the south side, is a memorial by Messrs. Harry Hens and Sons, Exeter, to the late General Gordon, of Khartoum, whose grandparent's remains lie in the church.

Yesterday afternoon the ceremony took place of the unveiling of a tablet and window to the memory of the late Bishop Medley, who for seven years was the beloved and earnest vicar of St. Thomas. The window, by Mr. Drake, of Exeter, is the object of the present memorial committee, and is of unusual artistic merit. The subject is the presentation in the Temple. The tablet has been placed on the north-east wall, balancing with the fine one on the south side to Bishop Horden. The very fact that indeed, has been the motif for the present memorial. The latter is of white-moulded and polished grey dove marble, upon which is an engraved and ornamental base of letter, an alloy greatly used in medieval days. The legend, cut in faint and legible characters upon it, reads: To the memory of the most Reverend John Medley, D.D., late Bishop of Fredericton, 1848-1892, Metropolitan of Canada, 1878-1892, and Bishop of Fredericton, New Brunswick, Sept. 1892, in the 88th year of his age, and the 48th of his Episcopal ministry, who was a man of letters, a scholar, and an unflinching friend to the poor. To him Exeter owed the erection of its new and spacious church, Old St. Thomas, the enlargement and restoration of its Chapel, and this Church many of its fairest ornaments. He died at Exeter, Devon, on the 10th of October, 1892.

The ceremony of unveiling was performed with much feeling by T. M. Snow, J. P., of Exeter, Exeter, and an address was given by the Archbishop of Ontario (Dr. J. Travers Lewis). The handsome tablet, which is of exquisite design, has been carried out and erected by Messrs. Harry Hens & Sons, the well known church workers of Exeter. The fine canopied tomb and recumbent figure on the north side of the sanctuary, erected by the late Bishop to his wife's memory is said to be one of the best works of the late sculptor, Bacon. St. Thomas church was built in A. D. 1412, and much of it rebuilt in 1656. It was restored in 1871. During the religious troubles in 1549, Rev. Robert Welles was hung in chains on the top of the western tower—hung attired in his vestments. It is the tower Dr. Oliver, who in his "Ecclesiastical antiquities of Devon," tells us that it was Lord Russell who authorized his own domestic servant, Bernard Duffield, to do this brutal and impious act. Joseph Gould has been the active hon. secretary and treasurer for the memorial committee, and has admirably carried out the duties.

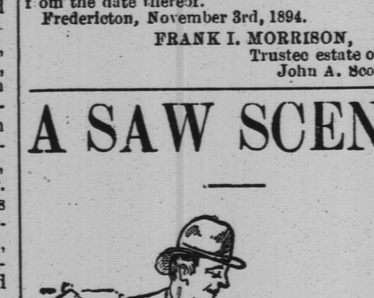

The Archbishop of Ontario (who succeeded Bishop Medley), speaking from the steps of the chancel, said it was a great privilege for him to take part in that ceremony. They had met together to perpetuate the memory of one of the greatest of modern bishops. The very fact that it was nearly fifty years since he was vicar of St. Thomas, and that he was still green, still green. He knew of no bishop who ever commended himself more to those to whom he ministered than did Bishop Medley. With his uncompromising churchmanship, and his unflinching friendliness, he was a most lovable man. The cathedral which he built at Fredericton would be a lasting memorial to him. He had many difficulties to contend with in his work, but his perseverance, his charity, and his foresight enabled him to accomplish a great deal. He hoped that in years to come they would have numbers of bishops on his model.—T. M. Snow having unveiled the memorial, spoke briefly of the work which the late Bishop Medley did years ago in St. Thomas.—Rev. W. M. Swaby having accepted the charge of the memorial, the service was concluded with the benediction. Archdeacon Bridgstock (St. John) and Rev. Mr. Moran and G. H. Williams were among those present.
