FARM AND FIRESIDE.

Timely Hints Useful to the Farmer and his Household.

There is a large number of people engaged during the summer months in drawing milk from the cheese factories. These parties have no small part to perform in maintaining the success of the factory to which they are conveying milk. The majority of milk-drawers are engaged at a certain rate per hundred pounds of milk for drawing. When such is the agreement, it is in the interest of the drawer, as well as to the factory, to please the patrons and secure as much milk as possible, and consequently each patron's milk is looked after better on the road to the factory and his can is not left very often when he is a little late getting his cows milked. In many places it is only possible to engage drawers by the trip or a lump sum for the season, because the quantity of milk collected in certain districts is not enough to warrant him taking the trip for the hundred pounds. In such instances there is not much incentive to work up the business, and as a rule the milk is not looked after as well and the drawer is not so obliging. Generally speaking, however, the milk drawers give good satisfaction and are to be blamed for many of the neglects attributed to them, although many of them are inclined to show their skill in horsemanship by indulging in a race with a loaded milk wagon, to the serious loss of milk through the badly covered can, or think it their duty to drive the rate of six miles an hour over roads in which mud-holes and wagon-ruts are only too numerous. The necessity of fast driving may be due to the cheesemaker, who demands, and justly too, that the milk should be at the factory at a seasonable hour. In many cases, in order to get the milk to the factory at a seasonable hour it is necessary for the drawer or messenger to collect milk at 5.30 a. m. or 6 a. m., where the distance is great, and where it is not possible to get the milk to the factory in time to drive faster than he should, thereby running the risk of spilling a large part of it, and of churning it too much before he reaches the factory.

NEW KINDS OF POTATOES.

It is comparatively easy to grow new varieties of potatoes, though it must be remembered that two to three years are required to bring them to perfection, and more yet to discover defects. The seed balls, if carefully saved in the fall and planted in the spring, will next season produce only very small potatoes varying from size of a bean to that of a walnut. Planting these next season, a crop of still larger potatoes will be the result. ## AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST

It is not hard work that wears out, but the work that has passed will be half their period of usefulness, but poor care. You may have observed that race horses, barring accidents, are considered good when past the time of life at which our farm horses are practically worn out. The race horse is worked hard, but he has the best care, intelligence and self-interest can give. The farmer sees to lose sight of self-interest in the treatment of his horse.

THE SCHOOL QUESTION.

Discussed at the Orange Grand Lodge by Grand Master Fowler.

In his opening address, at the meeting of the Orange Grand Lodge, Fairville, St. John, Tuesday, grand master Fowler in referring to the Bathurst school question, said:

"At the last annual session of the grand lodge, the grand master was instructed to elect a committee to investigate the school question. The committee was composed of Messrs. J. W. Skinner, Q. C., and N. Landry, and myself. We were directed to investigate the school question, and to report thereon to the grand lodge at its next annual session. We have the honor to report to you the result of our investigation. The school question is a very important one, and one which has attracted the attention of the public mind. It is a question which has been discussed for many years, and one which has given rise to much controversy. It is a question which has to do with the education of our children, and one which has to do with the future of our country. It is a question which has to do with the rights of the majority, and one which has to do with the rights of the minority. It is a question which has to do with the rights of the church, and one which has to do with the rights of the state. It is a question which has to do with the rights of the people, and one which has to do with the rights of the government. It is a question which has to do with the rights of the individual, and one which has to do with the rights of the community. It is a question which has to do with the rights of the present, and one which has to do with the rights of the future. It is a question which has to do with the rights of the living, and one which has to do with the rights of the dead. It is a question which has to do with the rights of the body, and one which has to do with the rights of the soul. It is a question which has to do with the rights of the flesh, and one which has to do with the rights of the spirit. It is a question which has to do with the rights of the material, and one which has to do with the rights of the immaterial. It is a question which has to do with the rights of the temporal, and one which has to do with the rights of the eternal. It is a question which has to do with the rights of the finite, and one which has to do with the rights of the infinite. It is a question which has to do with the rights of the limited, and one which has to do with the rights of the unlimited. It is a question which has to do with the rights of the bounded, and one which has to do with the rights of the unbounded. It is a question which has to do with the rights of the restricted, and one which has to do with the rights of the unrestricted. It is a question which has to do with the rights of the confined, and one which has to do with the rights of the unconfined. It is a question which has to do with the rights of the enclosed, and one which has to do with the rights of the unenclosed. It is a question which has to do with the rights of the contained, and one which has to do with the rights of the uncontained.
